HENRY MURDER SUSPECT TAKEN IN PHILADELPHIA

Frankie Blum, Gangster, Is Charged With Slaying Local Gambler in Warrant Sworn Out Here.

WOMAN ARRESTED IN JERSEY STILL BEING HELD IN CAPITAL

Tracing of Suspicious Characters to Her Apartment in Northeast Section Led to Accused Man's Seizure.

Frankie Blum, 35-year-old Philadelphia gangster, was arrested in that city yesterday by Philadelphia police acting on a warrant sworn out before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage here charging murder in connection with the slaying in this city of Milton White "Milsey" Henry, gambler, on April 21.

The arrested gangster is said to be a member of the Silverberg racketeer forces of Philadelphia. His arrest follows that of Mrs. Lillian Alice Maddox, of this city, last Saturday in Atlantic City. She has been held here since at the House of Detention. Her address now is given as 2519 Third street northwest.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, said last night that police of Philadelphia and Washington have been working in close harmony on the case since Thursday a week ago. He was unable to say at the time whether Mrs. Maddox would be kept in custody or not.

Traced to Woman's Home.

The detective chief said that information in the hands of police traced certain suspicious characters to the apartment of Mrs. Maddox here. This lead, he said, eventually brought about the arrest of Blum.

Henry was killed in a fusillade of shotgun fire early on the morning of April 21 in Brown street not far from the Sixteenth street apartment he lived in. At least one witness saw the murder car containing two men speed away. It bore license plates listed to a fictitious person in Camden, N. J., just across the Delaware River from Philadelphia.

Innuendoes of race-track fixing, crooked pay-offs and double-crossing of bookmakers swirled around the city after Henry's slaying became known.

During the race-track meeting at Bowie, Md., prior to Henry's death, he was said to have made considerable money. Police received information at the time that Henry's wagers depleted the funds of several local bookmakers and it was said that as the end of the race meeting neared they refused to take his bets.

Other Investigations.

Investigation also was made of any possible connection of Henry with "Pud" Simmons, who was arrested and questioned in connection with the hi-jacking of a quantity of imported liquor from the Salvadorean Legation here in May, 1931.

Another line of investigation followed any hookup Henry may have had with the slaying of Jack Cunningham, racketeer, in a downtown alley, not long after the legation robbery.

A further principal theory was that Henry was connected as "finger man"

Man Is Arrested Dictating Threats

Prisoner Accused of Blackmailing Official of Standard Oil.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—William H. Duff, colored, 18 years old, was arrested in a telephone booth in Jamaica, Queens, tonight while, police said, he was dictating a telegram to be sent to James A. Moffett, vice president of the Standard Oil of New Jersey, directing him to pay $30,000 to prevent his 18-year-old daughter, Peggy, and her fiance, James Carlisle, from being kidnaped and tortured.

Taken to police headquarters, Duff was said by the police to have implicated Arthur John Gaynor, 18, in the extortion plan. Both Duff and Gaynor, who is in Brooklyn Hospital for an operation, were arrested on charges of blackmail. A guard was placed at Gaynor's bedside.

Police said Mr. Moffett received a letter demanding the $30,000 payment on May 24 and at intervals since then six other letters, a telegram and two telephone calls were received.

Freak Tornado Wrecks Colorado Springs Area

Colorado Springs, June 10 (A.P.).—A freak tornado damaged more than 40 houses, uprooted trees, and disrupted electric service over an area four blocks square in West Colorado Springs late today.

An unidentified boy was injured by flying glass.

ENGLAND JOINS U.S. IN CHILEAN CONCERN

State Department Is Visited by Lindsay to Discuss Financial Peril.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Growing anxiety for the security of American capital investments in Chile spread to other nations and is believed to have been responsible for the unannounced visit of British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay to the State Department yesterday. The ambassador called on Francis White, the assistant secretary in charge of Latin-American relations, who has been directly supervising the developments in Chile.

White is understood to have discussed the situation in Chile at some length with the ambassador, particularly with reference to the possible dangers in the new economic decrees of the junta government of Provisional President Davila.

Great Britain stands to lose almost as much as the United States, as to the total amount of her investments in Chile at the present time are fixed at $350,000,000 to $400,000,000. American investments have been fixed at $500,000,000. While the greater portion of British South American holdings are located in Argentina, there are nevertheless heavy financial

Jersey Senate Passes Kidnapers' Death Bill

Trenton, N. J., June 10 (U.P.).—The New Jersey Senate tonight passed the Sterner bill, which provides the death penalty for kidnaping, with the right reserved for juries to recommend life imprisonment.

The bill is not retroactive.

2 HOOVER G.O.P FACTIONS LOSE CHICAGO POSTS

DICKINSON SUGGESTS RENAMING OF CURTIS

Repeal Plank Would Be Fatal Blunder, McBride Tells Dry Loyalists.

Chicago, June 10 (A.P.).—Two of the administration-recognized factions that handle patronage in the Southern States were rebuffed by the Republican national committee today when they sought its approval as the official delegations.

Mississippi and South Carolina, long represented on the Republican national committee by the Negro, Perry Howard, and Joseph W. Tolbert, will continue to be so represented on the tentative convention roster.

In two other Southern States—Georgia and Louisiana—the administration groups were seated. These were headed by James W. Arnall, of Athens, and Ernest Lee Jahncke, of New Orleans, the latter Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

All of the contests are subject to further action by the convention and its credentials committee, which might override the vote of the national committee.

Brown Reported Questioned.

Walter Brown, the Postmaster General and political advisor to the President, who at the request of Mr. Hoover set up the special patronage committees in the Southern States, was understood to have been called before the national committee and questioned concerning the seating of the delegations.

Since Brown set up the patronage committees, the President has been ignoring Tolbert and Howard in all appointments involving posts in South Carolina and Mississippi. Both have been the national committeemen recognized by the party.

Two of the three district contests before the committee were withdrawn without a hearing. In the third, both contesting delegations were seated and each given half a vote.

The compromises reached in the first two—the Ninth District of Tennessee and the Third District of Virginia—gave seats to C. H. King and

Rebel Troops Attack Federals in Honduras

Guatemala City, June 10 (A.P.).—Further revolutionary outbreaks in Honduras were reported in dispatches received here today. The dispatches said rebel troops under the command of Filiberto Diaz Zelaya, leader of the Nationalist party, attacked Federal forces in the department of Copan.

The Federals were driven back, the report said, and were massing for a concentrated drive to retake the territory near the place where more than three score were reported slain in a battle Tuesday.

MacDonald and De Valera Fail to Reconcile Views

Gloom Is Thick at End of London Parley, Ireland Insisting on Total Freedom and Britain Determined Oath Be Kept.

London, June 10 (A.P.).—All efforts to reconcile Ireland's profession of complete independence from Great Britain and the commonwealth's insistence on the oath to the crown as the chain that binds, failed today.

From before noon until after 5 p. m. the earnest and unsmiling president of the Free State, Eamon de Valera, and heads of the British government, including Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, battled with words across the conference table at 10 Downing street.

Finally, a few minutes before the train for Dublin was due to depart, the conferees, not a smile among them, disbanded. Mr. MacDonald went to see the king before going to Lausanne conferences tomorrow, and President de Valera and Vice President Sean O'Kelly to journey back to Erin.

While the cheers of a thousand or so Irish men and women, who had waited all day at the end of narrow Downing street for the reappearance of Mr. de Valera, echoed through Whitehall, a communique was being read aloud in the office of J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions.

It simply said:

"There was a prolonged discussion on the points at issue, but it was not found possible to reach an agreement."

"It was disappointing to us," said a source close to the Irish president. "There are to be no further negotiations."

Mr. de Valera and O'Kelly had hardly settled themselves inside their railway coach when Mr. Thomas came hurrying down the platform.

50,000 Veterans Aim Of Bonus Army Here

Nation-Wide Enlistment Drive Is Answer of Former Soldiers' Leader to Local Efforts to Stem Tide.

An enlistment drive to bring 50,000 veterans into the ranks of the ragged bonus army of occupation is the answer of Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters to the efforts of the District Commissioners to stem the tide of the invading hordes.

A systematic campaign was started yesterday by the executive committee of the army, which dispatched picked recruiting officers throughout the country, with special squads having St. Louis, Camden, Philadelphia and Southern cities as their concentration points. Their instructions are: "Bring 50,000 veterans here in three weeks."

From three sources—the health officials, the police and the veterans—came moves yesterday to improve the sanitary conditions of the camps, which have been described as a "serious menace to the health of the District." The veterans established rigid rules against citizens mingling with the veterans so as to avoid contagion from either the citizens or the veterans.

Asked whether he believes the health menace to be a ruse to hasten evacuation of the Capital, Commander in Chief Waters said he believed the health scare to be somewhat "exaggerated so as to hasten evacuation of the District by the veterans."

Health officers and police decided at a conference yesterday to establish a 50-bed hospital for the use of the veterans, and ordered the opening of a special dispensary at the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade Armory on John Marshall place.

With sickness on the increase and

POLICE SEEK CLEWS TO 5 BANK BANDITS

Faced by the second assault on a Washington Mechanics Savings Bank branch, police last night sought the trail of five bandits who boldly rushed the branch of that institution at 3608 Georgia avenue northwest just before noon yesterday and took $9,031 at gun point.

High detective officials early last night expressed the belief that the robbery was perpetrated by the same gang that robbed the East Capitol street branch of the bank on January 15 of $14,135.

The Georgia avenue branch of the local financial institution was empty of customers at 11:30 a. m., when the unmasked quintet drove up in a light model sedan and hurried into the bank drawing their guns when inside.

Six employes, one woman and five men, were forced to lie on their faces while the currency was scooped from drawers and other receptacles. One of the bandit group stood at the door and directed the movements of his companions.

Employes in the bank during the holdup were Lloyd W. Davis, assistant cashier; Thomas E. Elgin, teller; Mrs. Maude H. Clark, Richard S. Sanderson, L. J. Lann and Samuel Fingerhut.

The holdup required less than five minutes. The gang then dashed for their car which whirled north on Georgia avenue. Bank officials estimated that $20,000 was missed by the bandits.

Police obtained the names of a man and his wife who were about to enter

Senate Confirms Judge Mattingly

Jurist to Begin His Fourth Term on Municipal Bench of District.

The Senate yesterday confirmed President Hoover's appointment of Judge Robert E. Mattingly to serve another term on the District Municipal Court bench.

Judge Mattingly's nomination was reported favorably Monday by the Senate judiciary committee. He is now rounding out his third term as Municipal Court judge.

A graduate of Georgetown University and a lifetime resident of Washington, Judge Mattingly was first appointed to the bench in 1919. In that year he supervised the District's fourteenth census. He has been active in local legal and political circles over the last quarter of a century.

Father and Son Slain Filling Strikers' Places

St. Louis, June 10 (A.P.).—Two men, hired by the General Material Co., following a strike of union employes, were shot to death in St. Louis County at 5:45 a. m., today.

The slayers were seen by a woman berry picker, Mrs. Alice Jordan, to run to their automobile and escape, leaving their victims, Ben and Clarence Dody, father and son, lying on a narrow county road. The son had been hired as a chauffeur and the father as a laborer.

TESTIMONY ENDED IN TRIAL OF MEANS

No Witnesses Called by Defense; Directed Verdict Is Refused.

(Associated Press.)

Testimony in the trial of Gaston B. Means on charges of larceny and embezzlement of $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean in a weird plan to ransom the Lindbergh baby ended abruptly yesterday without the defense presenting a single witness. Today prosecution and defense counsel will discuss with the Court instructions to the jury and Monday final arguments will be made.

The defense's resting of the case came after two setbacks had been experienced by Means' counsel, T. Morris Wampler, in motions to Justice James M. Proctor and a third motion had been taken under advisement.

Justice Proctor overruled a motion by defense that the Government elect which two of the four counts upon which the former Department of Justice agent was indicted will be presented to the jury. The counts against Means are larceny of $100,000, embezzlement of $100,000, larceny of $4,000, and embezzlement of $4,000.

The second motion overruled was for a directed verdict on the first three counts. The motion taken under advisement by the Justice was for a directed verdict on the fourth count, that of embezzlement of $4,000.

The prosecution rested its case shortly after noon, after it had called a number of witnesses. Among these were Col. Robert M. Guggenheim, who said he had been contacted to take delivery of the kidnaped son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh; Capt. Emory S. Land, a relative of Lind-

U. S. Legation Stoned By Radical in Latvia

(Associated Press.)

Felix Cole, charge d'affaires of the American Legation at Riga, Latvia, reported to the State Department yesterday that at 1 a. m. Thursday a stone wrapped in a red flag was thrown through the window of a bedroom on the first floor of the chancery building of the legation.

On the red flag was written in the Lettish language: "Protest against you executioners." (Signed) "Latvian Communist party and Latvian Labor party." Nobody was injured and the only damage done was two broken window panes. No trace has been found of the person who threw the stone.

SENATE PASSES BILL PROVIDING AID TO JOBLESS

HOOVER FAVORABLE TO DEMOCRATIC PLAN

(Associated Press.)

An overwhelming bipartisan majority swept the $300,000,000 Democratic relief bill through the Senate yesterday in less than 6 hours as Congress drove for an early adjournment.

The unemployment aid measure was approved by a vote of 72 to 8 in the same Senate which last February brushed aside all legislation for the use of Federal funds.

The bill, which now goes to the House, provides for advances to the States on the basis of population through the Reconstruction Corporation.

The bill would authorize the reconstruction corporation to advance $300,000,000 to the States on certification of the governors that the money is necessary.

Administration Up to States.

When Senator Dill (Democrat), of Washington, inquired how cities in need of help would receive the relief funds, Wagner replied "that would be done throught the State administrations."

Dill said he foresaw difficulties in some cases, remarking that a governor might be unwilling to obligate the State "for the sake of one town."

Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, said he could not imagine a situation arising where a governor would refuse to borrow if real need existed anywhere in his State.

Governors to Supervise Loans.

Distribution on application of the governors, he said, was the simplest method and preferable to undertaking direct loans to thousands of cities.

Senator Borah expressed the view that the funds should be proportioned on the basis of need rather than population.

Wagner, in reply, pointed to "widespread suffering and unemployment," and said he thought distribution on the basis of population would be as accurate a method as possible.

Carrying President Hoover's approval, the relief measure found easy going in the Senate despite a prophecy by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, that it was a "mile stone in the disintegration of the American republic."

It faces harder sledding, however.

Machado Escapes Charge Of Dynamite in His Path

Havana, June 10 (A.P.).—Just a few minutes before President Machado passed in his automobile today police discovered a considerable quantity of dynamite at the corner of Miramar and Tercera streets, wired to be exploded from a distance of 500 yards.

They arrested three men, one of them the son of Senora Mariana Delatorre, a prominent feminist member of the political opposition.

Clerk Decoyed From Desk, Bank Is Robbed of $200,000

Philadelphia, June 10 (A.P.).—Thieves decoyed a bank clerk from his desk by a telephone call today and stole negotiable securities with a par value of $200,000 from the Girard Trust Co.

The securities had been delivered ten minutes earlier by a messenger of the Pennsylvania company for insurances on lives and granting annuities.

Erwin A. Piero, the administrative clerk, said he was preparing to check over the securities when his telephone rang and an agitated voice said: "Oh, Mr. Piero, I just left $50,000 worth of bonds in the business department. Please grab them up quickly before anybody gets them."

The clerk hurried to the nearby department, but could not find the bonds. When he returned to his desk the package of securities was missing.

His secretary, Miss Dorothy Jennings, said a man walked in during his absence and asked to be directed to a certain department. Miss Jennings said she did not know what department he meant and the man left. Police believe this man took the package.

The securities were covered by insurance.

CONDON NOT SURE AS HE CONFRONTS NEWEST PRISONER

Ernest Brinkert, Former Convict, Was Revealed by Girl as Her Companion on Kidnaping Night.

WAITRESS DIES DRAMATICALLY AS LONG HUNT NEARS CLIMAX

After Long Resistance, Violet Sharpe Had Bared Name of Her Friend; Drinks Poison as Police Wait.

New Rochelle, N. Y. (Saturday), June 11 (A.P.).—At 12:15 a. m., E. S. T., nearly a score of police officers completed an hour's questioning of Ernest Brinkert, named by Violet Sharpe, Mrs. Morrow's maid who committed suicide yesterday, as her companion on an automobile trip the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped, without divulging the results of their examination.

The authorities were closeted with Brinkert in an inside room in the detective bureau of police headquarters. A short time later John F. Condon, Lindbergh intermediary, stood before Brinkert, a former convict, for several minutes, but authorities described him as "uncertain" whether Brinkert was the ransom receiver with whom he dealt after he had viewed Brinkert.

As Dr. Condon arrived here late last night to confront Brinkert, he made the statement that he was "almost certain" that Brinkert was the man to whom he paid $50,000 ransom April 2.

Brinkert Arrested in New Rochelle.

Police disclosed that the actual arrest of Brinkert was made here at 10 o'clock E. S. T. last night on information telephoned to authorities here from Mamaroneck.

Director of Public Safety James Turley instructed authorities to retain custody of Brinkert until he arrived at police headquarters. Plans had been made to remove Brinkert to White Plains. Pending the arrival of Turley, Brinkert was questioned by four detectives.

A woman whose identity was withheld was also questioned at the same time.

White Plains, N. Y., June 10 (A.P.).—Dr. John F. Condon, Lindbergh intermediary, was quoted by police tonight as saying a picture of Ernest Brinkert, arrested former convict, was that of the "John" to whom he paid $50,000 ransom in a New York City cemetery April 2.

Police Have Samples of Suspect's Writing.

Trenton, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf in formal answers to questions said tonight that New Jersey investigators already in Westchester County would question Ernest Brinkert, arrested there in the Lindbergh case.

Col. Schwarzkopf said authorities had samples of Brinkert's handwriting and they would be compared by experts with the handwriting in the ransom notes received by the Lindberghs.

Another Suspect Seized in Detroit.

Detroit, June 10 (A.P.).—Robert Burns, 20, described as a former taxicab driver in the East, was arrested tonight by two homicide squad detectives, who said he was wanted for questioning in connection with the Lindbergh case. The detectives, Thomas Hutchinson and Charles Searle, said they were positive Burns was a former sweetheart of Violet Sharpe, who committed suicide in the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow today.

Burns, detectives said, had in his possession a record of all happenings in the Lindbergh case. When the detectives entered his darkened room he was reading an extra edition of a Detroit newspaper with the aid of a flashlight. The extra told of tonight's developments in the Lindbergh case.

Two New Jersey officers who had come here to question Harry Fleisher, gangster once sought in connection with the kidnaping, joined in questioning Burns.

Englewood, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—A waitress in the Dwight Morrow household, who, police believed, had guilty knowledge of the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder, committed suicide today after disclosing the name of a man with whom she had gone on a mysterious trip the night of the kidnaping.

Police immediately intensified the search for her companion, Ernest Brinkert, whom they revealed for the first time had been under suspicion since March 2, the day after the Lindbergh baby was stolen from his crib. A general alarm was broadcast for the arrest of Brinkert, who was missing from his home at 5050 Post road, White Plains, N. Y.

Sister Sailed for England.

The waitress' sister, Edna, police said, sailed for England four days after a $50,000 ransom was paid in a Bronx cemetery by Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" in the case. The sister had stayed for some time before the kidnaping at the home of Constance Chilton in Englewood as a maid, and a cablegram was sent to Scotland Yard immediately asking for her apprehension. She also had lived at 430 East Thirty-third street in New York.

In the general alarm police asked for the arrest of Brinkert on sight. They gave the number of his automobile as N. Y. 3V-1983 and said he had a police record for larceny in New York State.

Violet Sharpe had been employed by Mrs. Morrow, the murdered baby's grandmother, for a year and a half. She had been questioned repeatedly since the child was stolen on the night of March 1.

Today the police came back to grill her again. She drank from a bottle of poison as they waited and fell to the floor, her lips forever sealed by death.

Refused to Reveal Actions.

In the early examination of Miss Sharpe she refused to tell where she had been on the night of tragic crime. She wouldn't talk about a telephone call she had early in the afternoon. She wouldn't reveal the name of the man she went out with. And insofar as she did talk her statements were conflicting.

Police said nothing. In fact Miss Sharpe's name was never mentioned in published reports about the case. But they concentrated all their efs

BLAINE BLOCKS ACTION ON U.S. WAGE SLASHES

Conferees on Legislative Appropriations Bill Reach Accord.

FATE OF FURLOUGH PLAN CONJECTURAL

Pay of Farm Board Workers Limited to $10,000 by Senate Group.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Conferees reached agreement late yesterday on the legislative appropriation bill, clearing the way for consideration of the $155,000,000 economy measure today or Monday. The issue of Federal pay cuts versus compulsory furloughs still hung in the balance.

An effort to speed settlement of the controversial measure was blocked in the Senate, when Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, forced the legislative supply bill report to lie over until today.

To no avail, Appropriations Chairman Wesley L. Jones pointed out that House conferees on the economy rider can not be appointed until Senate action on the legislative conference report.

Procedure Declared Unusual.

Senator Blaine declared House procedure in naming two sets of conferees on the same bill "unusual." Senator Jones said it had never been done before in his experience. If the Senate accepts the legislative conference report this morning, House economy conferees may be named at once, and the bill thrashed out this afternoon.

Senate desire to clear up a heavy appropriations calendar yesterday superseded incisive economy objectives, which earlier this year sent three supply bills back to the appropriations committee for further reductions.

In record time the Senate yesterday approved another appropriation bill minus the 10 per cent cut under House figures, which until recently served as a guiding policy. Approval of the War Department bill Friday without the slash broke the precedent.

While in the space of three minutes the conference report on the $177,000,000 Agriculture Department supply bill was agreed to yesterday, the appropriations committee completed the billion-dollar independent offices supply bill, carrying funds for the Veterans' Administration.

District Supply Bill.

The committee reduced the independent offices total $6,432,000, from $965,331,431 to $879,588,586. This fell short of the 10 per cent precedent, as did the Agriculture supply bill. As approved by the House, the latter measure carried $175,000,000 in appropriations, which the Senate increased approximately $2,000,000 in conference.

Yesterday the Senate began consideration of another measure carrying increased appropriations — the District supply bill, its total boosted $3,875,918 over the House allotment.

The same five senators who sat on the legislative supply bill will do battle for the Senate's compulsory furlough plan when the economy bill goes to conference today or Monday. They are Senators Jones (Republican), Washington; Hale (Republican), Maine; Smoot (Republican), Utah; Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, and Broussard (Democrat), Louisiana.

Furlough Opponents.

Indications are that Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, advocate of flat pay cuts over furloughs, will head the three House conferees. The new appointees will replace Representative Sandlin (Democrat), Louisiana; Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, and Hardy (Republican), Colorado, who served on the legislative phase of the divided measure.

Predictions of outcome were based on the merest conjecture. Friends of the flat pay cut plan outnumber the furlough adherents 3 to 2 on the Senate conference group, although Chairman Jones indicated they would stand by Senate instructions.

Although make-up of the House conference group was unannounced, the House voted down the furlough plan twice—once by a 17-vote margin and finally by a vote of nearly 2 to 1.

Following the conference yesterday with President Hoover, Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Pennsylvania), Republican floor leader, said Republicans in the House will vote solidly for the furlough plan.

Farm Board Salaries.

Further, he said, he felt certain the Republican conferees will vote with the conferees of the Senate, which approved the furlough plan by a 3-vote margin. He would make no predictions as to the Democratic stand. Representative McDuffie has said right along, however, he favors pay cuts.

Several notable cuts appear in the independent office supply bill approved yesterday by the Senate appropriations committee. A reduction of $2,379,000 in appropriations for the Interstate Commerce Commission, formed the largest single slash.

Salaries of Federal Farm Board employes, with the exception of members of the board and the general counsel, were limited to $10,000. In administrative funds of the Veterans' Administration, a reduction of $538,000 was voted.

Federal Trade Commission appropriations were restored to $1,236,500, with the understanding that $300,000 will be used for chain store and public utilities investigations.

At Last, 2 Economists Find Cause of Depression

By JOHN J. DALY

TWO good economists, Senator Gerald P. Nye and Representative James H. Sinclair, of North Dakota, getting their heads together, issue a statement and put their fingers on the sore spot affecting the Nation. It is, of course, the depression.

"The depression," says the statement of the statesmen, "is not due to a shortage of wealth, but a shortage of the medium used in the exchange of wealth."

There it is in a nutshell.

Regardless of what the poverty-howlers say, this Nation is still the wealthiest on earth. It has just as much physical wealth now as it had in the good old days, before the depression. Perhaps more.

There are just as many buildings in the land, the population has not shrunk, and the farms are still growing crops.

Roses are blooming in the gardens, grass grows green, cattle feed on pasture land, and chickens come home to roost.

AUTOMOBILES are running wild around the city streets, as usual, the clang of the street car bells are heard in the still hours of night, keeping people from peaceful slumber, the milkman and the baker continue to make their rounds, and the man comes each month to read the gas meter.

First mortgage payments fall due at regular intervals, the landlord demands his rent, and the neighbors are borrowing household supplies as they did long, long ago. The only familiar figure absent from the scene is the big butter and egg man who once flourished in the land of plenty and who has now gone to that bourne whence no traveler returns.

The chambers of commerce and the boards of trade continue to boost business, and the better business bureaus check up on get-rich-quick schemes, while Wall street watches the ticker tape.

There is, perhaps, a shortage of Milk and Honey and their soulmates, beer and skittles, but the wets and the drys are still locking horns. Congress is in session, the conventions are about to assemble, the national campaign is just around the corner, and the rat-tat-tat of the machine gun and the roar of the sawed-off shotgun are heard regularly throughout gangland.

ALL seems to be the same, and there is no shortage of wealth, though many believe the bankers are hoarding. The bankers are not hoarding. They, like everybody else, are merely suffering from a shortage of the medium used in the exchange of wealth.

Ha, Ha!

Neither Senator Nye nor Representative Sinclair gives away the secret; but by this time their compatriots are beginning to understand it must be money.

Sure enough, it is money! The depression is not due to a shortage of wealth, but a shortage of long green.

What insight!

U. S. BANKERS WANT FRENCH GOLD TAKEN

(Associated Press.)

A report that New York bankers had indicated to the French government they wished France to withdraw the remainder of her gold in this country was received in official circles here yesterday as the Federal Reserve Board announced the United States had lost $385,000,000 of the metal in May and June.

The report, which was given credence by high officials, said the remaining French short-term balances in this country amounted to between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, having dropped from between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 a year ago.

In the last year, France has withdrawn $504,438,000 in gold and in the last six weeks $87,442,000 went directly to France. The figures did not include earmarked gold.

The heavy withdrawals, it was pointed out authoritatively, were met by the American banks "without a ripple" and had little effect upon American business and financial conditions due to action of the Federal banking agencies in placing all gold necessary at the disposal of the Federal Reserve banks.

Effect of Credit Ease.

In particular, the Glass-Steagall act, which permitted banks to use direct Federal obligations in the place of eligible paper or gold to guarantee currency above the 40 per cent gold requirement, was used by the Federal Reserve system to maintain gold reserves at the necessary margin, releasing other gold to meet all requirements of the banks.

The board, in its monthly statement last night, said the total gold supply of the Nation on June 8 was $3,980,000,000. Officials have said that foreign nations could redraw all their credits and not noticeably affect the gold supply of the Nation.

Much gold flowed to this country in 1929, 1930 and the early part of 1931, due to fear in European countries of their economic conditions. Most of it was sent here merely as a place of safe deposit. It reached the largest total ever held in a single nation, amounting to more than $5,000,000,000.

$824,000,000 Taken in Year.

In the last year, however, foreign central banks have been taking their gold home and placing it in their own vaults with the result that the supply here decreased in the year ended June 8 by $824,000,000.

The board said easier conditions in the international money markets and an increased volume of loanable funds in foreign countries had resulted in the recent flow of gold away from the United States.

The board reviewed gold movements to and from the United States since 1914, saying there had been three periods of large increases and that the present supply was greater than that held at any time before 1923. It added that gold reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks were $1,034,000,000 in excess of legal requirements at the beginning of the present month.

Smith Plans Start To Chicago June 21

1932 Democratic Aspirant to Spend Preconvention Time in Conferences.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith, 1928 Democratic presidential candidate and aspirant for the 1932 nomination, will leave for Chicago on June 21, it was made known at his offices today.

The Democratic convention opens there on June 27, and it was understood Mr. Smith will spend the intervening time conferring with various political leaders who are supporting his candidacy. He is a delegate at large from New York State.

Although managers of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential campaign claim the governor will receive a large proportion of the State's delegation, the action the Tammany delegates will take is so far undetermined. John F. Curry, Tammany leader, has remained noncommittal in that respect.

REICH DEBT HOLIDAY ACCORD IS EXPECTED

Conference of MacDonald and Herriot Seen as Forecasting Action.

Paris, June 10 (A.P.).—Some hope that British and French views on the pending Lausanne conference might be brought into focus appeared in diplomatic quarters tonight on the eve of preliminary conversations between Premier Edouard Herriot and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain.

It was the diplomatic consensus, however, that the most likely outcome of the two premiers' week-end discussion would be an agreement for a new moratorium for Germany.

The Lausanne conference, scheduled for Thursday, was called to find the answer to the Hoover moratorium, which expires June 30, and which must be replaced with some formula to keep the war debts and reparations books straight.

Talks With Lord Tyrrell.

The belief that a new moratorium might be forthcoming was based partly on the fact that M. Herriot initiated the preliminary conference after talking the issue over with Lord Tyrrell, the British Ambassador.

Also M. Herriot wound up his preparations for the week-end talks by conferring with Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, the German envoy, and Count Gaetano Manzoni, the Italian ambassador, on the Lausanne problems, which also include the economic stalemate in southeastern Europe.

Loan to Austria Discussed.

The premier announced after a cabinet meeting today that he and his ministers had discussed the possibility of French participation in an international loan to Austria in a "favorable light." Such a loan was recommended recently by the League of Nations finance committee.

Those who hope for a coincidence in the French and British views appear to hold for an extension of the present moratorium until after the November presidential election in the United States.

France has held in recent communications that the European debt problem can not be solved without the help of the United States, the principal creditor nation. The United States has consistently adhered to a hands-off policy until "Europe settles her own affairs."

'WAR' COUNCIL PLEA OPPOSED BY HOOVER

President Sees No Need to Recreate Old National Defense Group.

(Associated Press.)

Suggestions by 86 leading citizens that President Hoover re-create the old Council of National Defense as an economic measure yesterday drew an almost instantaneous reply from the President that "But few of these gentlemen are familiar with the law bearing on this subject."

In a brief letter to Gen. Albert L. Cox, of Raleigh, N. C., chairman of the defense committee of the American Legion, the President stated unequivocally that he would not revive the old-time council.

The President's letter was issued long after the close of his usual office hours, in reply to a letter placed before him by Cox bearing such signatures as those of Edsel Ford, August Heckscher, John Hays Hammond, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Henry Stevens, commander of the American Legion; Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, and a long list of prominent bankers and business men.

Their letter stated in part:

"We believe, as you by your public statements obviously do, that a national emergency of the first magnitude exists and that it needs emergency treatment. We, therefore, ask you to set in motion that agency of the Government especially designed for such a purpose——

"From 1916 to 1921, the Council of National Defense well earned the faith and confidence of the American people. No other agency is so well equipped to win this present fight."

Peace-Time Application.

The letter further pointed out that the council was "not intended" to expire with the completion of its task after the war, since it was created during peace time for a peace-time duty.

The President's reply, evidently prepared hastily after Cox had departed, said the Chief Executive believed "that if the signatories were fully informed" as to the advisory bodies already in existence they would not suggest a re-creation of the old council.

Mr. Hoover attached to his letter as explanation a statement made to newspapermen here last month, which they were allowed to use then without stating the source of their information.

Letter to Gen. Cox.

The President's letter to Gen. Cox follows:

"I have your letter today signed by a number of gentlemen throughout the country proposing that we reestablish the Council of National Defense. It is my impression that but few of the gentlemen are familiar with the law bearing on this subject.

"In this connection you may be interested in a 'background' statement I made to the press correspondents in Washington on May 20, a copy of which I inclose herewith.

"I am most desirous of receiving from yourself and your able associates suggestions of any specific action that might be taken by Government or private agencies which would improve the situation.

"Although I do not find myself in accord with your immediate proposal of another committee, I believe that if the signatories were fully informed as to the present effective organization they would agree with me."

Hoover's Background Statement.

A copy of the President's "background" statement, which he made to newspapermen last month with the understanding he was not to be quoted directly, follows in full:

"The resurrection of the old Council of National Defense is being advocated by certain parties. You will recollect that the Council of National Defense is a statutory body comprised of five members of the Cabinet and an advisory body comprised of civilians.

"The duties outlined for it are absolutely war duties and it can only advise Cabinet members. It contended that there are one or two expressions in the act which might be subverted into use for purposes of the general welfare, and I presume it is the creation of the advisory body in which the various promoters are interested.

"The old advisory body may still exist, but in any event it appears to have been recently canvassed to see what its opinion would be on the subject. Several of the members have written to me and stated that if it is still alive that they would not serve on such a body, because they do not believe it has any constructive purpose and they do not believe there is anything to be accomplished by it. That it would simply clog the situation.

Reasons for Opposing Move.

"In any event, if you will consider that we already have a Cabinet in which there are eminent representatives of agriculture and labor and finance and industry; that we have the Reconstruction Corporation with six or seven directors who represent directly industry and finance and agriculture; that we have the Federal Reserve Board, which represents finance and industry and agriculture; that we have the Farm Board, which represents seven different branches of agriculture; that we have the Farm Loan Board, with representatives of both agriculture and finance; that we have the President's Organization for Unemployment Relief, which is an advisory body of 100 leading citizens of the United States; that we have recently formed joint committees of industry and finance in leading centers, to coordinate the credit facilities; and back of all these organizations we have the bureaus of the Government with their mass of information and all of their expert advice; that all of these bodies are cooperating closely; that they are comprised of men of both political parties; and in fact in their total sum and their daily conferences they constitute the most effective economic council that could be devised because they have behind them both authority and cooperation.

"So it does not seem that the creation of any more commissions or committee is so much needed at this moment. I am a strong exponent of the desirability of committees of leading men which are created for some specific purpose or some specific duty where there is some definite and positive goal that can be set and methods by which it can be arrived at."

3 Killed in Flames Of Runaway Truck

Pedestrian Is Picked Up and Hurled With It Into Building.

Johnstown, Pa., June 10 (A.P.).—Three men were killed today by a truck that plunged down Frankstown Hill at terrific speed and wrecked three buildings. The dead:

Harry Kessler, 57, of Philadelphia; Norman Ballard, 22, Negro, of Philadelphia, and Mike Hudak, 63, of Johnstown.

The wildly careening vehicle splintered a meat market and barber shop and came to rest in flames within a dwelling. Five persons were hurt, one of them critically.

Kessler was the owner and Ballard the driver of the truck. Kudak was walking along the street. The truck descended upon him so suddenly he was unable to flee. He was picked up by the truck and hurled with it into the buildings. His crushed body was found in the wreckage. Fire broke out in the debris when the truck's gasoline exploded. The flames threatened complete destruction of the home of John Hammerle, but were extinguished.

SENATE GROUP TOLD OF RKO SQUEEZEOUT

Attorney for "Shorn Lamb" Describes Manipulation of Stock by R. C. A.

(Associated Press.)

William J. Morgan, of Milwaukee, a former Wisconsin attorney general, told the Senate banking committee in its stock market investigation yesterday that "the most drastic squeeze-out" of stockholders he had ever seen occurred in Radio-Keith-Orpheum stock in 1931.

Morgan appeared as attorney for Ernest W. Stirn, Milwaukee, a volunteer witness, whom Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, described as a "lamb" who had been "shorn."

Morgan said there was "a concerted short selling drive" in Radio-Keith-Orpheum stocks in October and November, 1931.

"The net result of this short selling campaign," he said, "was that the Radio Corporation of America for $11,500,000 acquired R.-K.-O., which had assets of $352,000,000, of which $67,000,000 were clear assets."

Morgan asserted the "short selling drive" was handled on the New York stock exchange by Michael J. Meehan.

He contended stockholders were "squeezed out" by being assessed $5 a share on penalty of losing three-quarters of their share, and that this stock was acquired by R. C. A.

Morgan told the committee the "short selling drive" was coincident with the reorganization in which R. C. A. acquired R. K. O. The drive, he said, began October 22, 1931, and was "practically completed" on November 12.

Stirn said the "short selling campaign" reached its peak at the time of a "secret directors meeting" at which it was decided to assess the stock on the ground an emergency was faced.

"It was an inside rigging operation," he said. "Thereafter a covering movement ensued."

The stock, he said, was driven down so that it was withdrawn from the stock exchange as worthless.

Farm Legislation Is Pushed on Hill

Senate to Vote Early Next Week; House Group Approves Two Bills.

(Associated Press.)

Farm relief pushed toward a front-row place in this session's closing business yesterday, with a Senate vote scheduled for early next week and House committee approval of two farm aid plans.

Chairman McNary, of the Senate agriculture committee, forecast the Senate ballot, on his bill incorporating into one the export debenture, equalization fee and domestic allotment plans.

Meanwhile, the House agriculture committee voted 14 to 8 for a favorable report on the same bill. Each of these plans is sponsored respectively by the National Grange, the Farm Bureau Federation and the National Farmers Union and would be used at the option of the Farm Board.

In addition, the House committee approved separately a debenture bill by Chairman Jones to make the use of this plan mandatory upon its enactment into law. The vote was 14 to 6.

An early House vote, however, was not in prospect on either of these bills. Leaders there preferred rather to await Senate action.

M'FADDEN ASKS END OF FEDERAL RESERVE

Says Hoover Knew Kreuger's Financial Condition on Visit Here.

(Associated Press.)

Representative McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, yesterday urged the House to take steps to abolish the Federal Reserve banking system, which he described as "one of the most corrupt institutions the world has ever known."

In the midst of his assault on "those twelve private credit monopolies * * * deceitfully and disloyally foisted upon this country," the former chairman of the House banking committee loosed an attack on President Hoover.

He referred to international financial dealings in which the late Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, was concerned and added that "the nature of Kreuger's organized swindle and the bankrupt condition of Kreuger was known here last June when Hoover sought to exempt Kreuger's loan to Germany of 125,000,000 marks from the operation of the moratorium. * * *"

Kansan Replies.

When Mr. McFadden's time on the floor had expired and he had obtained unanimous consent to have the last part of his 39-page prepared address printed in the Record, Representative Strong (Republican), Kansas, took the floor and said McFadden suffered from a "bellyache."

"I know of no one who has the disease in more violent form than the gentleman from Pennsylvania," Mr. Strong said.

The Pennsylvania has been deprived of all patronage privileges as a result of a charge he made that President Hoover had "sold out" this country in connection with his intergovernmental moratorium proposal.

Mr. McFadden said the reserve act created "private credit monopolies which prey upon the people of the United States for the benefit of themselves and their foreign customers, foreign and domestic speculators and swindlers and rich and predatory money lenders."

Worthless Acceptances.

These "swindlers de luxe," Mr. McFadden said, obtained Federal Reserve currency with worthless acceptances.

"Such were the exploits of Ivar Kreuger, Mr. Hoover's friend, and his hidden Wall street backers," he said. "Every dollar of the billions Kreuger and his gang drew out of this country on acceptances was drawn from the Government and the people of the United States through the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve banks. * * *

"The nature of Kreuger's swindle and the bankrupt condition of Kreuger was known here in January when he visited his friend, Mr. Hoover, at the White House. It was known here in March before he went to Paris and committed suicide there. * * *

"I believe there should be a congressional investigation of the operations of Kreuger & Toll in the United States."

After its approval by the Senate, Representative Rainey, House Democratic leader, said the measure "offers no permanent relief."

House Inquiry Witnesses on Government in Private Business Reticent in Testimony; Inland Waterways' Operation is Cited as Unfair.

(Associated Press.)

Belief that fear of reprisals was hampering the special House committee in its investigation of Government competition with private business was expressed yesterday by Representative Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the group.

He made the statement as the committee continued its hearings with testimony by Alfred P. Thom, jr., representing the Association of Railway Executives; Representative LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, and Bert Thompson, editor of the Lawton (Okla.) News Review.

Mr. Thompson was reticent about describing his efforts to have Secretary Hurley of the War Department close its "gigantic department store" at Fort Sill, 4 miles from Lawton. When committee members pressed him for answers, Mr. Shannon interposed:

"The merchants are afraid of a boycott. They're afraid of a war within a war."

Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, remarked to Thompson:

"I know exactly how you feel. You've got your head in a lion's mouth and you don't want it snapped off."

Mr. Thompson finally testified that Mr. Hurley told him no departmental investigation of the Fort Sill store would be made until the House committee's study had been completed.

The Fort Sill store, he added, sells everything but automobiles and "announces in its bulletins that if it doesn't have what you want it will get it for you at wholesale."

The privilege of purchasing from the store, which is supposed to be limited to Army men and their families, is "grossly abused," he added, promising "a pile of affidavits to show that civilians have benefited from it."

Mr. Thom urged the committee to study the inland waterways system operated by the Federal Government and Federal aid to highways.

From 1920 to 1929, he testified, railroad ton-mile freight had increased 8.8 per cent, while passenger traffic had decreased 34.2 per cent. For the same period, he asserted, the inland waterways traffic increased 93.5 per cent.

"The Government-owned Inland Waterway Corporation is competition wherein the competitor is relieved from operating costs the railroads must provide," he said.

Mr. LaGuardia's complaint was directed at Army, Navy and Marine bands. He objected specifically to concerts given by the Navy Band at Forest Hills, Long Island, last September immediately after the tennis matches.

"There is no need of this any more," he said. "How are we going to produce music and musicians if we don't let them have a means of livelihood?"

the bank when they became aware of what was going on. The woman said she hurried into the street and gesticulated at a passing motorcycle policeman. The latter, she said, evidently took her action as a friendly salutation, as he returned her wave and passed amiliingly on.

Confusion still prevailed among detectives last night as to witnesses' description of the robbery car. Some said it was a Maryland car while others said it was not. All agreed that it was a light blue, late model sedan.

Several years ago the same bank was victimized by a lone holdup man who got away with several thousand dollars and who was later arrested and convicted.

MORROW SERVANTS SUSPECTED AT FIRST

Police Say Members Were Among Few Who Knew Lindberghs' Plans.

Englewood, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—The police searchlight in the Lindbergh case centered on the Dwight Morrow household here from the outset, because its members were among the few persons who knew of the Lindbergh's whereabouts the night of March 1, when their baby son was kidnaped.

On Saturday afternoon, February 27, Mrs. Lindbergh and the baby went from Englewood to the flier's Hopewell estate after a three week's absence. They had stayed at the Morrow home on the two previous week-ends and expected to return there Tuesday March 1. Col. Lindbergh reached Hopewell late Saturday.

In the evening the baby developed a cold, which grew worse the next two days. Ollie Wheatley, the Hopewell butler, was sent to a drugstore for medicine and chatted with the clerk, who said he had a similar illness at home. Later Wheatley went to the store to buy a thermometer, telling whoever waited on him it was to take a child's temperature.

On Tuesday morning, March 1, when the cold still lingered, Mrs. Lindbergh summoned the nursemaid, Betty Gow, from Englewood and reversed the family's plans to return there. Miss Gow arrived about 1:30 p. m.

Police inquiry established that Violet Sharpe, Morrow waitress, who committed suicide today, telephoned Ernest Brinkert, a former convict, of White Plains, N. Y., about 1 p. m., after she learned of the change in the Lindbergh plans.

The Baby was stolen from his crib at the Hopewell estate between 8 and 10:30 o'clock that night. Miss Sharpe was absent from the Morrow home with Brinkert during the night on an unexplained journey.

Full Statement of Police On Violet Sharpe's Suicide

Trenton, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—The full and revised text of the statement of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf on the suicide of Violet Sharpe, Morrow waitress, was as follows:

Violet Sharpe, waitress at the Morrow home, Englewood, N. J., has been under constant suspicion and investigation by the investigating authorities since she was first interviewed in Englewood, N. J., in the early days of the kidnaping case, because she gave conflicting statements as to her whereabouts on the night of the kidnaping and because she refused to reveal the identity of the man she went out with that night. She also refused to reveal the place visited on their trip that night.

It has since been found that she was in communication by telephone with this man at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, March 1. She knew that the Lindbergh family expected to remain in Hopewell. Violet Sharpe has been interviewed a number of times, and while she was being interviewed at Hopewell all of her personal effects were confiscated during a thorough search that was made of her room.

Among these effects a number of names and addresses were found, each of which have been under investigation.

Since the headquarters of the investigation were moved from Hopewell to Trenton, a detail consisting of Inspector Walsh, Jersey City police; Sergt. Moffatt, of the Newark police; Lieut. Keaton and Corpl. Horn, of the New Jersey State police have been at Alpine with particular instructions to continue the investigation of Violet Sharpe.

In the continuance of this investigation pictures of her associates were sought and yesterday morning she was shown the picture of a man and she identified him as the man with whom she had been on the night of the kidnaping and the man who had called her on the telephone at 1 o'clock in the afternoon of the day of the kidnaping.

At the time of this identification she was in a highly nervous condition and gave unsatisfactory responses to questions as to her reasons for concealing the identity of her associates.

Because of her highly nervous condition it was decided not to question her further without the presence of a physician.

Arrangements were made to question her at Alpine Station of the State police this morning in the presence of a physician. When the investigators went to the Morrow residence to get her for the purpose of bringing her to Alpine they made their presence known to Mr. Springer, who telephoned the house and asked Violet Sharpe to get ready. Violet Sharpe went to her room, came down to the pantry and dropped on the floor in what appeared to be a faint. A doctor was sent for and upon his arrival he pronounced her dead.

Inspector Walsh, Sergt. Moffatt, Lieut. Keaten, Detective Horn and Chief Charles A. Peterson, of Englewood, who was immediately called when it was found Violet Sharpe was dead, started an immediate investigation by making a thorough examination of her room. In her room was found a can of cyanide of potassium chloride crystals and a glass, still wet, containing one or more of these crystals. The can was marked "Poison." At about this time the coroner arrived and, on the basis of his findings, stated he considered it suicide, and he made arrangements with the county physician for an autopsy. No report has been received as yet of the findings of the autopsy.

In the presence of four witnesses, Violet Sharpe yesterday morning identified the picture of Ernest Brinkert, formerly of 5050 Post road, White Plains, N. Y., but his present whereabouts are unknown, as the man who was her associate on the night of the kidnaping, and it was the identification of this man which caused her so much nervousness. The investigation is being vigorously continued in an effort to locate Ernest Brinkert.

FRIEND OF MORROW SERVANT WHO KILLED SELF CAPTURED forts on breaking down her defiant resistance.

Yesterday they began to break through. They brought her pictures of men whose names had been found in her room. She pointed to the picture of Brinkert. He, she said, was the man she had talked to on the telephone; he was the man she had gone out with that night.

Although for the first time she was at last beginning to tell what the police wanted to know, the examination had to be interrupted. For she was so nervous that her questioners feared to press her further except with a doctor in attendance.

Swallows Fatal Draft.

And so the questioning was put over until today. Shortly before noon the police sent word to the Morrow home for Charles Springer, secretary to the late Senator Morrow, to have the servant prepare herself for further examination.

The young woman went to her room and there she poured crystals from a can marked "poison" into a glass, let the crystals dissolve, and drank the deadly draft.

Returning then downstairs, Miss Sharpe entered the butler's pantry, and the next moment, as the poison struck with fatel strength, she was a crumpled heap of neatly starched uniform on the polished floor.

How long Violet Sharpe has known she was under serious suspicion is a matter of conjecture, but she must long have realized that she was being subjected to far more rigorous watch than other servants in the Lindbergh and Morrow homes.

Search Disclosed Names.

For not long after the kidnaping, when her responses were unsatisfactory, police took action against her of which she was unquestionably aware. They took her to the Lindbergh home at Hopewell for continued examination and in her absence her room was searched, all her belongings confiscated and information gained which eventually led to her partial account of her doings on the night of the kidnaping.

Among her effects in the room at the Morrow home was found a list of names and addresses, among them that of Brinkert.

Every one of those names was run down by police, the activities of each man named on the night of the kidnaping was checked and many an alibi established.

Then yesterday morning the pictures of these men were spread before the almost hysterical woman.

"Which is the man you talked with on the telephone on March 1?" she was asked. "Which is the man you went out with that night?"

The eyes of her inquisitors were boring into her from all sides. She could withstand the pressure no longer. She pointed at the picture of Brinkert and police knew that their suspicions had some definite foundation.

As police disclosed today that their suspicions of Miss Sharpe go back almost to the day of the kidnaping itself it was supposed that she had been under constant and strict surveillance ever since, to all intents a prisoner in the Morrow home.

And yet somehow she got the can of poison crystals, to hold against the day when her resistance might be gone. She must have obtained it after the kidnaping, although it is a substance sold only on a doctor's prescription, or else she had it hidden before the child was taken, and hidden it so securely that not even the thorough police search of her room disclosed it.

After the suicide, Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of State police, broadcast a general alarm for Brinkert and Miss Sharpe's sister. Brinkert, he said, had a police record, including two arrests and one penitentiary term.

Brinkert's Police Record.

The first arrest was on October 21, 1922, in Westchester County for petty larceny. No disposition of the case is on the records. On April 17, 1926, he was convicted at White Plains for assault and sent to the county penitentiary.

Brinkert drives a green coach-type automobile, the kind of car seen leaving the Lindbergh estate about the time of the kidnaping. Because this car was seen, many persons in green cars have been questioned since the kidnaping, and ownership of one green car resulted in a deportation order against one man.

Shortly after the kidnaping Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor sweetheart of the baby's nurse, Betty Gow, was picked up and subjected to lengthy examination. He eventually satisfied police he had nothing to do with the case, but it was found during his questioning that he was in the country illegally and he was ordered deported.

Miss Sharpe, Col. Schwarzkopf said, was employed by the Morrows through a New York employment agency and came from Canada two years ago.

Her Story of Night Trip.

Englewood is about 55 miles from the Hopewell estate of the Lindberghs, a distance which requires two hours by automobile through heavy suburban traffic.

The exact story of Miss Sharpe's whereabouts on the night of March 1, as pieced together after she first gave conflicting accounts, was not made known by police.

Finally, however, she was understood to have related that she had been picked up in the driveway of the Morrow home by an automobile which contained several persons, one of them Brinkert. She said they went to a motion picture show in East Orange and returned to Englewood before midnight.

The slight blonde waitress said she was introduced to Brinkert some time in February by her sister Edna. On one of the three times which Miss Sharpe was questioned by police prior to today she was taken to the headquarters established in the Lindbergh home, at Hopewell.

Brinkert had been operating a taxicab business at White Plains, N. Y., until about eighteen months ago.

London (Saturday), June 11 (A.P.).—Officials at Scotland Yard this morning denied they had a request from New Jersey police to locate Edna Sharpe, sister of Violet Sharpe, servant at the Morrow home, who committed suicide at Englewood yesterday.

WAITRESS INNOCENT, MRS. MORROW SAYS

Servant's Suicide Fails to Shake Family's Faith in Violet Sharpe.

Englewood, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—Despite suspicions of police that Violet Sharpe, waitress in the Morrow home, had guilty knowledge of the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow today reiterated her faith in the woman's innocence even after the servant had committed suicide.

All members of the Morrow household had grown fond of her since she joined the staff of servants nearly two years ago. She was a delicate type with dark curly hair and violet eyes.

She came from Berkshire, England, about two and one-half years ago, stopping first in Canada and then coming on to the United States. She obtained her position with the Morrows through a New York employment agency.

Police said their investigations had disclosed that March 1 was the first time she was known to have kept company with a man since she entered the employ of the Morrows. Most of her days off she spent at the Morrow home.

In common with other servants in both the Morrow and Lindbergh homes, the waitress had spent some time with the Lindbergh baby, the baby having been a favorite of the servants in both households. Last summer she was at the Morrow summer home in Maine, when the Lindbergh baby was there, but as far as could be ascertained she had not visited the Hopewell home of the Lindberghs prior to the kidnaping.

At the Morrow home at the time the waitress committed suicide today were Mrs. Morrow, Dwight W. Morrow, jr., who is home from Amherst, and Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

Miss Elisabeth Morrow, it was disclosed, sailed for Europe last week and arrived in England Wednesday. Miss Constance Morrow, another sister of Mrs. Lindbergh, is still in school in New England.

Mrs. Morrow, her son and daughter, Constance, plan to sail next week for a brief trip to Europe, where they will meet Elisabeth. They plan to return about August 1, and meanwhile Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, it was said, will spend the summer either at Englewood or at the Morrow summer home in Maine.

The suicide today disrupted plans for a dinner at the Morrow home tonight in honor of Miss Lucretia Butler, a niece of Gen. J. J. Morrow, who is to be married tomorrow to Edward Burton, a graduate of West Point Military Academy with today's class.

Miss Butler is a daughter of Col. Rodman Butler, who also lives at the Gen. Morrow home. The dinner party was canceled and wedding guests who were to stay at the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow went to the homes of other friends in Englewood.

Groans emanating from the butler's pantry first attracted attention of the Morrow household after the waitress had taken poison. Dwight Morrow, jr., and Banks, the butler, rushed in and caught the woman as she slumped to the floor. They first thought that she had suffered a heart attack and carried her out to the open air. A doctor was summoned, but she was beyond his aid.

It was not until some time afterward that the Morrow family learned that she had taken poison.

Borah Is Selected Delegate of Idaho

State Convention Names Senator, Despite His Declaration.

Boise, Idaho, June 10 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah was elected today to head the Idaho Republican delegation to the national Republican convention, despite his announced intention not to attend. The State Republican convention also named Senator John Thomas as a member of the group to carry Idaho's eleven votes to Chicago.

The convention had no information Senator Borah would reconsider his determination of days ago to remain away from the party's big show in 1932. It was pointed out an alternate would serve if he declined the honor.

TESTIMONY ENDED IN TRIAL OF MEANS

bergh's, and Robert F. Fleming, real estate man, of Edgemoor, Md., who said he arranged the appointment between Col. Guggenheim and Means.

Both Guggenheim and Fleming said they had conferred with Means in the library of Fleming's home four days after the Lindbergh child was kidnaped. They added the meeting was arranged at Means' request, and that he told them the kidnap plot had been carried out by persons in league with a convict friend of his whom he had met in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Fleming quoted Means, in answer to a question as to what his interest in the case was, as saying that by engineering the return of the baby he would "rehabilitate himself in the eyes of the public and get enough business for his private detective work to last him ten years."

Col. Guggenheim, because of his friendship for Lindbergh, was sought out as an intermediary, it was explained. He testified he was requested to get an automobile with diplomatic or other official tags to provide immunity, and that he obtained a car from the Austrian Minister. Col. Guggenheim said the name of Mrs. McLean was never mentioned at any time in the negotiations.

Capt. Land, who is in the Construction Corps of the Navy, testified he had been called by Mrs. McLean on March 4 and that, on the following night he met with her and Means. The latter, he said, told them that contact could be made with the kidnapers "for a price."

The proposition put up to Capt. Land, he said, was to go to Hopewell to take up with Col. Lindbergh the matter of acting as an intermediary and "to do two things, to get immunity for Means, and for the kidnapers."

"I motored to Hopewell March 6, the day of the big blizzard," Capt. Land said, "and came back that night. I reported that I had received permission and next saw Means March 16, when he said that delivery had failed and gave the storm as a reason. Several proposals were made for turning over the baby to us at spots where machine guns would be fired if false moves were made."

Later he was informed that the case had taken another angle, he said, and he did not see Means again.

Mrs. Lindbergh Spared Shock of Maid's Death

Englewood, N. J., June 10 (A.P.).—The shock of the latest tragedy in the Lindbergh case—the suicide of Violet Sharpe—was softened for Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh by the thoughtfulness of her family.

Mrs. Lindbergh, who is expecting a second child, was a guest in the home of her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, today when Miss Sharpe, Morrow waitress, committed suicide.

Col. Lindbergh and other members of the family hastened to her side, broke the news gently and saw that inadvertently she did not visit the part of the house where the body of Miss Sharpe lay.

DRY PLANKS SOUGHT BY WOMEN'S CLUBS

Federation Votes, 582 to 13, in Accordance With Traditional Stand.

Seattle, Wash., June 10 (A.P.).—The General Federation of Women's Clubs in convention here today voted 582 to 13 in favor of a bone dry plank in both the Republican and Democratic national platforms. This has been the traditional attitude of the organization.

Resolutions urging "immediate adherence" to the world court, determined support of the Kellogg peace pact and participation by United States in an international conference on economic problems were sent today to Republican and Democratic national conventions by the federation.

The resolutions, framed by directors of the federation, stand approved under previous agreement by the national convention of the federation, which held its first business session here today.

POSTS OF TOLBERT AND HOWARD ARE APPROVED BY COMMITTEE

R. R. Church, the latter a Negro, both of Memphis, and Lewis S. Strauss and George Cole Scott, both of Richmond.

The other district dispute, in the First District of Tennessee, had its roots in the campaign of two years ago in which Representative Carroll Reece was defeated by O. B. Lovette after the President had approved the candidacy of Reece. Lovette ran as an independent Republican.

There being no serious contest in sight for the presidential nomination, representation on the national committee was the chief thing involved in the outcome of the delegation disputes. The present national committeemen, Jahncke from Louisiana, Arnold from Georgia, Howard from Mississippi, and Tolbert from South Carolina, probably will retain their posts.

The cry of "Lily-Whiteism" was raised vigorously and often by the disputants over the seats in the hearings that preceded the committee's decision, especially in those from Mississippi and South Carolina.

Another refrain that ran through the hearings was the charge that if the administration-recognized factions did not have jobs to give, they would find no support.

The administration groups replied that they had complied with the different State laws, and were attempting to build up and improve the Republican party in the South.

"Dixie" Drowns Question.

Nathaniel J. Frederick, a Columbia (S. C.) Negro of the Tolbert delegation, in raising the charge that Negroes were not permitted to participate in the South Carolina State convention that selected the delegation headed by J. C. Hambright, of Rock Hill, said:

"One Negro tried to ask a question in the convention.

"They said: 'Play Dixie, band!' and the band played Dixie."

With both wet and dry leaders dinning counter advice as to a prohibition plank in their ears and only the question of delegate contests to be decided, the slowly assembling memberships of next Tuesday's Republican national convention today indulged further in gossip over President Hoover's 1932 running mate.

It was only gossip. The most authoritative word from Washington pictured Mr. Hoover as ready, if necessary, to declare his personal desire that Vice President Curtis be renamed to run with him this year.

There was nothing about the anti-Curtis gossip in hotel corridors and lobbies in Chicago today to indicate that it would be necessary for Mr. Hoover to go even that far.

Vice Presidential Speculation.

Despite the inevitable rumors, some started innocently with a view to stirring up the preconvention hotel debate, and others carrying some degree of authority, the administration forces undoubtedly were in control.

Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, convention keynoter, said if a resubmission prohibition plank were adopted it would be wise to "renominate Vice President Curtis because of his strong dry following."

The gossip today over the vice presidential nomination embraced the names of Calvin Coolidge, Gov. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt, of the Philippines; Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, and Senator McNary, of Oregon.

Administration leaders, however, were confident the renomination of Curtis would go through without a hitch.

As conferences continued over prohibition, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antisaloon League, told a "loyalty convention" of drys in a church near the convention stadium that a repeal plank in the Republican platform would be "a colossal political blunder."

Argument of McBride.

Earlier in the day Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, issued a statement saying a majority of the delegates would not go back home "until they have in their pockets the Republican party's declaration for repeal."

McBride said a repeal plank "would be an attempt to impose their will on the drys in the Republican party and would be disastrous to party harmony."

"It would be an effort to capture the party machinery for the purpose of suppressing dry votes within the party," he said, adding:

"Constitutional prohibition always has been and is now a nonpartisan issue relative to which neither party can wisely take a partisan stand. * * *

"Bread, not beer; work, not whisky; economy, and not wasteful liquor extravagance, will bring back better times.

"Without even a wet substitute plan agreed upon by the opponents of prohibition, why should the Republican party place itself in the position of advocating removal of the eighteenth amendment. To do so would be the height of political folly and would brand the party as a party of destroyers instead of builders."

Points to Wet Sentiment.

Curran arrived early in the day and established headquarters in the Blackstone Hotel. His statement, issued shortly afterward, said in part:

"As a concrete proof of what is going on in the popular mind, take the three States of Indiana, North Carolina and Florida, all three of which were supposed to be dry. Within the last week these three States have declared for repeal: Indiana, through the Republican convention; North Carolina and Florida through popular vote in their primaries. Those three States are now wet."

The antiprohibitionist leader expressed confidence that the Republican leaders "will realize better when the delegates themselves arrive, than they do now, the rapid rise in the country's demand for straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

Senator Dickinson said he was not sure if prohibition would be touched upon in his keynote speech and that this would be decided at a conference Sunday night.

"There is some discussion of the big demand for a resubmission plank," the Iowan added. "The matter is solely in the hands of the resolutions committee. A straight repeal plank is out of the question. They could hardly hold the convention to that."

Curran's Second Statement.

Curran later issued a second statement, saying:

"It looks now as though the convention might take the prohibition question into its own hands and run away with a repeal plank. Delegates understand very well that if the Republicans do not come out squarely for repeal the Democrats will probably do so two weeks later and thus obtain the vital advantage of being the wetter of the two parties before a country which is turning wetter day by day and will be pretty nearly unanimously wet by election day.

"If there be any doubt as to the rising temperature of the people for repeal the Republican leaders can readily discover 24 States which cast 332 of the 531 votes in the electoral college and which have given recent proof of their insistence upon repeal. Most of these States are normally Republican."

Edwin C. Dinwiddie, general secretary of the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, said the drys as a whole had not as yet mapped out their campaign plans, but would hold a council meeting tomorrow night for this purpose.

He described the "loyalty convention" of drys tonight as a local affair. It was held under the auspices of the Illinois organization supporting the eighteenth amendment.

AL SMITH INDORSED BY SCRIPPS-HOWARD

Roosevelt Termed "Another Hoover" in Newspaper Chain's Attack.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, announced that all Scripps-Howard newspapers were publishing today an editorial entitled: "Give Us Smith," in favor of Alfred E. Smith for President.

The editorial describes Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "another Hoover," and expresses the opinion that Roosevelt and Hoover "possess in common one dominating trait—faced in a pinch with political consequences, they yield."

"Every item of his economic training and his international experience cried out against the tariff bill," the edtiorial reads, "yet Herbert Hoover signed it. Every instinct in Franklin D. Roosevelt's make-up revolts against the New York City revelations, yet for over a year he has temporized before Tammany."

Declaring that at this time "decisiveness is called for as never before in history," the editorial states that "Our Nation is confronted with the possibility of four more years of vacillation. Between the two (Roosevelt and Hoover), it is a toss-up."

The editorial predicts the nomination of Hoover as a certainty and observes that the nomination of Roosevelt is a possibility.

"Between Roosevelt and the White House," it continues, "there now stands a man endowed in the very highest degree with those qualities which both Hoover and Roosevelt lack and which the country so direly needs. That man is Alfred E. Smith.

"Something down deep in the human being determines the type. As certain as it is that some eyes are blue and some brown, some men are negative and some positive. In Roosevelt and Smith we have the extremes. As Roosevelt generalizes, Smith is specific. As Roosevelt loves to delay, Smith loves action. Irresolution is ingrained in the one; boldness in the other. And the times plead desperately for boldness."

Poisoning of Mate And Kin Confessed

Mother of Nine Admits She Slew Husband, 24, and His Brother.

Carrollton, Miss., June 10 (A.P.).—A middle-aged widow's confession that she poisoned her youthful husband and his brother because the latter wanted to wed her daughter by a former marriage was disclosed here today by Sheriff M. B. Arrington.

Amos Bowers, 24, and his brother, Raynor, 18, died June 3 after eating lunch prepared by Amos' wife, 42. An analysis showed the food contained poison and she was arrested.

Sheriff Arrington quoted her as saying she and her husband quarreled violently because he wanted her oldest daughter, Winnie Smith, to marry Raynor. Mrs. Bowers is the mother of nine children by her first husband.

Divers Begin Taking Gold From Sunken Liner Egypt

Success in Quest for $5,000,000 in Bullion Held by Hull of Ship Now Grasped, After Loss of 15 Lives and 2 Boats Near Brest.

Brest, France, June 10 (A.P.).—The stubborn hull of the sunken liner Egypt, clinging to $5,000,000 worth of gold and silver bullion these ten years, today yielded up $45,000 to tenacious Genoese divers.

Fifteen lives and two strong ships have been lost in the two years' quest for the precious metal by an Italian salvaging crew. Today's haul, while very small, apparently heralded ultimate victory in a spectacular battle of man against the waves.

The Egypt was sunk in a collision in 1922 40 miles off Brest.

Two years ago the Italian salvage ship Artiglio gave up an attempt to get the gold and silver from the liner and turned to another wreck in the harbor here. Three mines were set in her. In the resultant explosion the Artiglio was blown to pieces and fourteen lives were lost.

The Artiglio's sister ship, the Raffio, tried the Egypt. An eight-ton block of concrete was sunk as an auchor. As it fell it caught in a chain, overturning the Raffio and dragging one of its crew to his death.

The Italian salvagers grimly named a third vessel the Artiglio II and set to work again with divers and explosives last May. By November they had penetrated the deck and the gold room, but wintry storms and high tides forced them back.

Last month they began again and opened a two-meter hole into the gold room. Yesterday this was enlarged almost to five meters, and a gleaming mass of metal was exposed to view. The job has just begun

Anderson, Ind., June 10 (A.P.).—Dr. Charles D. Bonsack, of Elgin, Ill., general secretary of the Church of Brethren Mission Board, was elected moderator at a conference of the denomination here today to serve at the 1933 meeting. The standing committee of the church granted next year's conference to East Hershey, Pa.

Dr. Bonsack also was named reader for the business meeting which will begin next Tuesday. He succeeded the Rev. D. W. Kurtz, of Long Beach, Calif., as moderator.

Newspaper Advertising Boosts Buying of Meat

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 10 (A.P.).—Newspaper advertising has been effective in increasing the consumption of meat on the Pacific Coast and in other regions, and is one of the best mediums through which to reach the consumers, Charles D. Carey, chairman of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, said today.

At a meeting of the Wyoming Stock Growers Association at Green River, the National Board was authorized to collect a fee of 25 cents each carload of live stock shipped to market centers. Approximately 50 other organizations have approved a similar resolution.

The money is to be used for advertising, research and educational work.

Submission Plank Held Unimportant

Virginia Antisaloon Head Belittles Meaning of Democrats' Move.

Richmond, Va., June 10 (A.P.).—Superintendent E. J. Richardson, of the Antisaloon League of Virginia, said today that submission of the prohibition question to popular vote does not mean that Virginia is wet.

The superintendent's statement was issued in response to the adoption of the plank in the State Democratic platform recommending submission.

Submission of the question to a popular vote, Mr. Richardson said, does not mean repeal. Ultimately repeal can be obtained only when 36 States have ratified a constitutional amendment, he explained.

3 Youths Hurt in Plane Flying to Pilot's Funeral

Poplar Bluff, Mo., June 10 (A.P.).—Three youths were injured, one possibly fatally, in an airplane crash near here today as they flew toward Little Rock, Ark., to attend the funeral of a friend who was killed in a similar accident Wednesday. The victims are Max Schneider, 21, of Shenandoah, Iowa; the pilot, Kenneth Lansing, 23, of New York, and Brooks McElloy, 21, of Sciota, N. Y. They had been attending a flying school in St. Louis. Schneider was the most seriously hurt.

Lansing said shortage of gasoline forced him to land in a meadow and the plane turned over. A. J. Graham, their schoolmate, was killed in a plane crash near Little Rock.

1,500 EN ROUTE HERE FROM LOS ANGELES

400 Motor Vehicles Used by Bonus "Marchers" to Make Trip.

Los Angeles, June 10 (A.P.).—Four hours late—and four hours of troubles behind—the Los Angeles army of bonus marchers, 1,500 strong, rattled down Broadway today with thousands who lined the curb cheering the start of a march to Washington.

With the cry, "Forward march," the war veterans stepped out at a brisk military pace, nondescript trucks and automobiles driven by donated gasoline rumbling behind.

The gasoline was slow in arriving at the veterans' camp today.

Then representatives of four auto finance companies, claiming unpaid balances on some vehicles, seized about 75 machines. This emergency finally was met when leaders dug down in the camp treasury, reported to contain $4,000, and paid.

400 Vehicles Used.

But the hours of delay had not passed in vain. Some enterprising former service men with a bed roll stretched between them circled among the spectators and collected a heavy load of silver coins.

The army will carry itself in 400 motor vehicles. They include a refrigerator truck, an ambulance and a portable sound truck. Two physicians and two nurses are in the "army."

The tentative schedule will take the group through Phoenix, Ariz.; El Paso, Tex., and Shreveport, La.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 10 (A.P.).—Cincinnati city police today were ordered to eject from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad yards here a group of from 600 to 700 former soldiers from Texas, who came here today en route to Washington to demand payment of the soldiers' bonus. The orders were issued after railroad officials refused further transportation to the "marchers."

The request that the veterans be removed from the yards was made to Safety Director John E. Blandford by F. B. Mitchell, general manager of the railroad. Blandford said he had no other course under the law than to comply, and Chief of Police William Copeland left immediately to muster police details.

Claim Trip Was Promised.

Members of the bonus group meanwhile hesitated as to their course of action. Leaders said they had been promised transportation to Washington and the sudden decision of the road to carry them no farther after bringing them here from Louisville caught them unawares. They said they had not decided if they would resist orders to desert the yards.

Creston, Iowa, June 10 (A.P.).—Sixty Omaha recruits for the bonus army in Washington arrived in Creston today on a Burlington freight train.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 10 (A.P.).—The 800 bonus marchers reported ready to go to Washington today dwindled to 24. They boarded a Baltimore & Ohio freight train bound for the Capital.

Bristol, Va.-Tenn., June 10 (A.P.).—Approximately 450 bonus marchers, veterans from Texas, Oklahoma and way points, arrived here early today and encamped in West Bristol while awaiting the outcome of efforts to arrange transportation to continue their march to Washington. The contingent is commanded by J. J. Hawley, of Houston, Tex.

The main body left Houston a week ago today. Approximately 200 are from Texas, 150 from Oklahoma and the remainder, including men from Arkansas, Alabama and Mississippi, joined the group at various points en route.

Kansas City, June 10 (A.P.).—Fifty former service men from Clovis, N. Mex., arrived here today, en route to join the bonus force at Washington. The group planned to continue its journey on a Wabash freight.

Dances to Benefit Veterans Planned

First of Series to Raise $1,500 Relief Fund to Be Held Tonight.

To help swell the funds for food and clothing, a series of dances sponsored by the bonus expeditionary forces will begin tonight at the Carpenters Auditorium, at 1003 K street northwest, eighth floor, starting at 8 o'clock.

The dances will be held under the auspices of Miss Mary Anne Scott Scharp, of 119 C street southeast, who has been giving dances for the benefit of unemployed throughout the country. She will be assisted by W. S. Keyser, of West Virginia, and M. Bernstein, Dayton, Ohio, members of the "bonus army."

The dances will be held until $1,500 has been raised. Tickets will be on sale at 402 Twelfth street northwest, Camp Marsh and Anacostia. Thirty-five cents admission will be charged. Music will be furnished by the Manhattan Serenaders.

ANGLO-IRISH PARLEY FAILS ON OATH ITEM

interview. Thomas, leaning far over the table between the car seats, appeared for a quarter of an hour to be arguing vainly with De Valera, who sat unperturbed and expressionless, holding his chin in his hand.

Thomas would count off points on his fingers, then point his right index finger straight into the eyes of the Irish president. The tall leader said hardly a word in response.

The train started, and the two shook hands, and the hurried conference was over.

The Dominions secretary, hurrying back down the platform, was asked if there would be another meeting. "You had better catch that train and ask those in there to answer that," he replied.

The same hundreds of persons, mainly women, who had shouted, "Up De Valera," when he had entered the railway station, hissed and booed, and shouted "traitor," at Thomas as he left.

Man Held on Charge of Perjury.

Walter Holland, 11 Sixth street northeast, was ordered held for the action of the grand jury under a $1,000 bond yesterday when he was arraigned in Police Court on a charge of perjury. Holland is alleged to have applied for a title to an automobile and to have made an affidavit that he purchased the car from a dealer here. It was later found, it was charged, the machine had been stolen in New York.

50,000 VETERANS HERE AIM

more than 200 veterans applying futilely each day at the Veterans' Administration for treatment, the conference issued a call for volunteer doctors and dentists to come to the aid of the veterans.

There is also under consideration by the veterans a concerted drive on the political conventions in Chicago to obtain bonus payment planks in the platforms of the major political parties. This is being thought of, in the event that the vote of the $2,000,000,000 bonus bill, which comes on the floor of the House on Monday, is adverse to the army, which is now estimated to contain between 10,000 and 11,000 veterans.

In the event that the bonus bill is rejected in either the Senate or the House, Commander in Chief Waters said: "We will carry on, with more men, and still more men, until the bill is passed."

His words took more definite shape with the dispatch of recruiting delegations to strategic centers throughout the country.

Some of the enlisting officers started out from the West Coast. Groups from Oregon were ordered to head North and South, to gather volunteers, and they will then work East, one taking the North route and the other South.

In announcing a gift of $5,000 to feed the bonus army, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, the "Radio Priest," said: "Cunning Communists are dicing for the leadership of these World War veterans. And tonight, both to cheer the hearts of the bonus army and to show that Communism is not the way out, I am donating $5,000 of borrowed money."

The plan of the army to get the bonus payment in the platforms of the political parties is to have committees urge upon the parties the inclusion of such a plank and would threaten alternatively the votes of 4,000,000 World War veterans and their wives.

In what was interpreted as a reply to the criticism of Senator Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, to the lobbying activities of the veterans, Commander in Chief Waters last night issued a statement saying: "There are many agents of the special interests and organized minorities who clutter the halls and anterooms of the National Capitol. But there is not one organization to represent the common masses except the veterans, who have organized in numerical strength and increasing sentiment throughout the Nation. Their physical demonstration has been called on in a genteel, orderly and serious fashion. This fact gnaws at the finer sensibilities of statesmen appointed and maintained by special interests."

Demonstrations Banned.

His statement also said that the Bonus Expeditionary Forces are not authorized to demonstrate in group. In reply to other queries, he said: "So far there has been no official assistance or donations in any manner by the Red Cross, the Y. M. C. A. or the Salvation Army."

To improve sanitation in the various encampments, the veterans yesterday ordered all incoming veterans to remain at Camp Marks for 24 hours for medical inspection before being transferred to the newly established encampments at Camp Meigs, to be known as Camp Stott, in honor of Capt. William G Stott, of the police department.

Those veterans who are in poor physical condition will be placed at Camp Simms, the National Guard rifle range in Anacostia. Capt. Doak E. Carter, of Cleveland, was named as sanitary officer to aid civil health authorities. All contagious and infectious cases will be placed in Fort Foote, on the Maryland side of the Potomac.

Decide on Hospital.

A conference of representatives of the dental and medical societies of the District with Brig Gen Pelham D. Glassford yesterday decided on the 50-bed hospital. The special hospital would not be needed if local hospitals would place vacant beds at the disposal of the former soldiers, the group decided.

The statement issued by the medical men read:

"Numbers at sick call have increased from 30 to 350 a day, and more than 200 are applying futilely each day for medical aid at the Veterans' Administration.

"Three patients at sick call this morning were in imperative need of surgical attention. There are many cases of respiratory diseases, trench mouth, social diseases, and a number of cases of active tuberculosis and acute heart diseases.

"The dispensary at Sixth Marine Brigade headquarters is now too small to handle the situation.

"Decision has been made to open up a more commodious dispensary to be established at the Sixth Marine Brigade Armory on John Marshall place, which will include a battery of field dental chairs. It is intended to establish a 50-bed hospital immediately, unless the existing city hospitals, of which there are about twenty, can make available some of their present unoccupied facilities to take care of the increasing sick among the visiting veterans.

The Medical Society of the District of Columbia and the Dental Society of the District of Columbia are going to cooperate and call for the voluntary services of their members. Dr. Knowlton is to remain in supervisory control over the dispensary.

"It is estimated that a least $3,000 will be needed for medical supplies and equipment (nothing for personal services), and Maj. Glassford will be glad to receive contributions. All contributions will be acknowledged.

Peril Is Stressed.

It was the consensus of opinion among all who attended this meeting that prompt action is necessary to avoid a situation which may bring discredit upon the District of Columbia, particularly an epidemic of disease, with the many fatalities which would be sure to ensue.

"Furthermore, if the veterans return to their homes in better physical condition than when they came, the District of Columbia will feel the gratification of a voluntary accomplishment well performed in the name of humanity."

The meeting at the University Club was attended by Dr. A. C. Christie, president District Medical Society; Dr. H. C. Hopkins, president District Dental Society; Lt. C. D. Cole, president-elect District Dental Society; Col. J. J. Staley, commanding Sixth Marine Brigade; Commander C. B. Jennings, V. F. W., Department of the District of Columbia; Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent police; Lieut. Comdr. D. S. Knowlton, brigade surgeon, Sixth Marine Brigade, and department surgeon, V. F. W.

An appeal to stop the incoming veterans made to health officers throughout the country was broadcast yesterday by Surgeon Gen. Hugh S. Cumming, of the United States Public Health Service.

His communication said:

"Assembling of the so-called bonus marchers in Washington presents serious problem involving the spread of disease. Suggest as measure of lessening danger you issue warning to your States advising of menace to public health of gathering of so many of these men in Washington and of consequent dangers to people of States upon return journey.

"For protection of public health everything should be done to discourage departures from your State of groups of marchers for District of Columbia. Camping facilities entirely inadequate and dangerous."

Food Still Sufficient.

There is no immediate prospect that the men will go hungry. Commander in Chief Waters said there is enough food on hand to last 48 hours. In addition, the mess fund has been swelled by the $5,000 offered by Father Coughlin, which is expected to be delivered today, either by Father Coughlin or the Rev. James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, who visited the veterans Thursday.

Father Coughlin's offer was conditional that Communist propaganda be kept from the camps and that the fund be administered by Gen. Glassford. The veterans agreed, and Gen. Glassford was reinstated as official treasurer of the army.

All Communists are to be segregated from the main army and will likely be placed in a camp which Gen. Glassford is trying to establish on Federal property near the Benning race track.

In their own camp the Communists will be allowed to make as many speeches as they desire.

Curb on Visitors.

Commander in Chief Waters last night issued an order that no visitors will be allowed in the encampment without a veteran escort. This he said was for the protection of both the veterans and the visitors.

"It is obvious," he said, "that if a contagious or an infectious disease should occur in the camp it might be carried out by the visitors who might mingle indiscriminately among the campers. That disease might be introduced into the camp by visitors carrying infectious diseases is also likely. Guides will be furnished by camp officers for men and women or children having business in the camp or wishing to inspect it."

Shifting of the veterans began last night into new encampments. Tents to house 250 men were purchased out of the mess fund and were being installed at Camp Meigs. A New York concern offered to supply a large number of pup tents and blankets for the veterans and the offer was accepted.

Gen. Glassford yesterday issued the following announcement of new plans, which were agreed to by Commander in Chief Waters:

"1. Anacostia Park to be retained as a reception center for all incoming veterans.

"2. Organized units of veterans will be transferred from Anacostia Park as quickly as other billets are made available.

"3. Camp Simms will be opened up for not to exceed 300 veterans before dark today.

"4. Camp Meigs will be established as a camp, rolling kitchens provided, tentage purchased from the Army and Navy stores and other second-hand establishments in the city and the organized units transferred thereto beginning today.

Seek Fort Foote.

"5. Two large buildings at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue will be utilized for sheltering 600 men. It is hoped that these buildings can be made available by tomorrow morning with the installation of necessary plumbing, which has been taken out, and the setting up of a rolling kitchen.

"6. Attempts will be made to secure from Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, the use of Fort Foote, which is about 6 miles south of Anacostia, on the Potomac River, Maryland side, which has facilities for accommodating approximately 500 men. This location, being accessible both by water and road, to be held in reserve for use as an isolation camp or as an infirmary where men who can not continue to stand exposure may be sent for recuperation.

"7. Attempts are being made to locate another camp on Federal property at Benning race track. This camp will be for the purpose of billeting any organization which is not accepted by the bonus expeditionary force.

"8. Although it is not the intent of the bonus expeditionary force to accept any units which are communistic in their sentiment, it is agreed that all veterans should be treated alike insofar as shelter, food and assistance of the Police Department is concerned.

"9. The major and superintendent was urged to retain custody of the funds, which he has agreed to do.

Police Organization.

"10. The Police Department organization to supervise the various camps is being expanded as follows: Capt. William G. Scott, to remain as supply and purchasing officer.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York offered last night to transport back home "on the cushions," New York State bonus marchers now in the army of occupation.

The Governors of Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Texas all pledged cooperation to get the veterans back and to discourage starters, though several indicated they had done all they could to discourage the bonus marchers from proceeding to Washington.

Gov. Roosevelt informed the Commissioners that Nels Anderson, representing temporary emergency relief administration for New York, would be in the Capital "to make arrangements for the return to this State of such bona fide residents of the State as are in need of relief and wish to come back."

The Commissioners also requested and received the assurance of Richard H. Aishton, of Washington, president of the American Railway Association, that all railroads would be urged not to furnish free transportation to other veterans bound for the National Capital.

Commander in Chief Waters yesterday urged all unescorted women and children to remain away from the bonus camp after nightfall.

The police baseball team will play a team of veterans at the Anacostia encampment at 2:30 this afternoon.

Representative Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, told newspapermen yesterday that James K. McClintock, vice chairman of the Red Cross, had advised him that if any local charity makes the request Government wheat will be provided for feeding the bonus marchers.

Connery said he had asked McClintock if the veterans would not come within provisions of the act which turned over to the Red Cross for relief purposes 40,000,000 bushels of Farm Board wheat.

Request Is Awaited.

"If any local charitable organization or the local chapter of the Red Cross makes application for some of this wheat, McClintock says it will be provided," Connery said.

"Then it is up to the bakers to make the flour into bread. In many cities this has been done voluntarily."

Representative Rainey, House Democratic leader, yesterday blocked an effort to obtain an immediate vote on the Patman bill to cash veterans' compensation certificates.

Just after the House met, Representative Andrews (Republican), New York, asked unanimous consent for consideration of the measure. The Illinois Democrat objected.

Unless unanimous consent is obtained before then, the House on Monday will decide whether to give formal consideration to the Patman bill.

The 150 veterans who were herded into a gully near the Pennsylvania avenue bridge under suspicion that they were Communists, were the victims of a swindle.

They had purchased "tickets" from the Workers Ex-Service Men's League, a Communist organization, paying from 10 cents to $1 for each ticket. They were told by the ticket sellers that they would be unable to eat unless they presented the tickets.

When the tickets were found on them, they were ousted from the camp. They explained their plight today. After pledging allegiance to the flag they were again received into the camp.

U. S. IS JOINED BY ENGLAND IN CHILEAN FUNDS CONCERN interests depending on London all throughout Chile.

For the present neither Great Britain nor the United States contemplates any definite action for the purpose of safeguarding their respective interests in the country. Several reports from Santiago on the trend of the new socialistic government there, contain certain contradictions.

It is almost a foregone conclusion here that if the Davila provisional government make good their pronouncements for the expropriation of all fiscal deposits in national banks it will be a serious obstacle for recognition by the United States or by any other government. The State Department was considerably alarmed on Thursday over reports that the Davila government had arbitrarily confiscated all American dollars in Chilean banks and had issued against them Chilean pesos to the depreciated value of 8.3 to the dollar. As the pesos were really quoted at about 16 to the dollar in foreign exchange transactions, the official government rate would have consequently worked considerable hardship on the holders of the American dollar currency.

Decision Is Delayed.

This information was discovered to be erroneous here last night following the report that the exchanges had been made at the rate of 16 to the dollar.

The State Department is proceeding very slowly with the matter of recognition of the Davila government, and it is certain that no decision will be made for some time yet, until authoritative information on the economic intentions of the junta have been received. Several American business concerns have been making vehement protests to the Department of State over the projected socialization program of Provisional President Davila. Such a program would seriously jeopardize the very considerable interests of American oil and mining companies, banks and other industrial enterprises.

Officers of the Guggenheim company who are very closely concerned with the developments in Chile on account of their almost 50 per cent interest in the gigantic nitrate monopoly, Cosach, were in telephonic communication with the State Department several times. This is the immense enterprise which President Davila threatens to liquidate with certain loss to the American capital involved in the colossal $350,000,000 monopoly.

Chilean Ambassador Cruchaga is still in possession of his functions here, as he has not yet received official word of the acceptance of his resignation by the Davila government.

American Ambassador William S. Culbertson, in Santiago, cabled the complete text of the Davila decree, to which the ambassador has registered a protest on behalf of American banking and financial concerns in Chile. The decree is as follows:

"In order to prevent unjust profits for those persons, who, to the prejudice of national economic conditions, converted their deposits into foreign money, thus weakening the position of the Central Bank and causing the devalorization of the currency, the junta of government dictates the following decree:

"Article I. Credits and deposits in foreign currency which the public may have in the national and foreign banks are declared the property of the state.

"Article II. The commercial, national and foreign banks shall transfer to the order of the state the deposits in foreign currencies which they have for account of the public and shall credit the latter with the sums equivalent to them at the exchange rate of June.

Previous Rulings Annulled.

"Article III. The state shall credit in the National Savings Bank to the order of the private banks the amounts in currency to which the previous article refers.

"Article IV. In order to cover the removal of the sums indicated in the preceding article from the National Savings Bank by the commercial banks, the Central Bank shall issue, with the guarantee on the above-mentioned gold deposits to the order of the state, the necessary amounts placing them at its disposal in the National Savings Bank.

"Article V. Anything contradictory to the present decree, contained in decree No. 486 of August 21, 1925, modified by decree law, No. 573, of September 29, 1925, and by laws, Nos. 4970, of July 30, 1931; 4993, of September 24, 1931, and 5028, of January 7, 1931, shall be annulled."

B. & O. Fined $15,000 For Elkins Law Breach

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. today was fined $15,000 by Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman after a plea of guilty had been entered by the road's attorney to three indictments charging violation of the Elkins act.

CRITTENTON HOME LEADERS REELECTED

Mrs. Robertson Will Serve Fourteenth Term as Head of Institution.

Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson was reelected president of the board of managers of Florence Crittenton Home for the fourteenth term at yesterday's meeting at the institution on Conduit road.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., was elected first vice president; Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, second vice president; Mrs. G. Mitchell, recording secretary, and Mrs. A. B. McManus, corresponding secretary. Four members of the board were elected. They are Mrs. George Price, Mrs. Fred Mitchell, Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby and Mrs. Guy E. Stephenson. LONG YET 'KINGFISH' IN HIS HOME STATE

Whips 4 Tax Bills Through Legislature as Minority Shouts "Dictator!"

Baton Rouge, La., June 10 (A.P.).—Huey P. Long is still the "Kingfish" in Louisiana, although the scene of his official labors has been shifted to the Senate chamber in Washington.

More than a week ago he forsook the National Capital and came here to tell the home folk how to put the State's financial affairs in shape and today the Legislature did his bidding in methodical order.

Senator Long wanted the Legislature to adopt four tax bills sponsored by Gov. O. K. Allen and designed to raise $4,000,000 revenue for balancing the State budget.

Hearing there was some opposition, he hurried here and took charge of steering them through committee hearings without a hitch.

Meanwhile, some of his political enemies called him a "meddler" and asked the Legislature to make him return to Washington but these applications fell on deaf ears. First, the House of Representatives passed the tax bills by overwhelming votes, paying scant heed to enemy cries of "Long, the dictator."

Long's greatest triumph came today. The Senate suspended the rules and voted approval for the tax measures in record time and by heavy majorities.

RELIEF LOANS.

No serious disagreement on the first relief bill developed in the Senate, and it was passed by a substantial majority. This measure extends the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to extend loans to the States for relief purposes. Only those States that have exhausted other means of raising funds to cope with a desperate situation will be able to draw upon this $300,000,000. Every State that does borrow under this measure must pay 5 per cent interest, and must sacrifice part of its allotment of Federal highway aid in future years to insure repayment.

Enactment of this measure may be considered certain. The House can not consistently reject it, even though the Senate does pigeonhole the Garner pork-barrel measure. President Hoover has included an emergency relief fund of this kind in his general relief program. It is thoroughly consistent with his policy of leaving responsibility for unemployment relief upon the States, and of keeping the activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on a businesslike basis.

The Senate did well to lift this noncontroversial item out of the Wagner program of relief, which it is now considering. Relief measures on which there is general agreement ought not to be held up or defeated because of a deep-seated controversy on related issues. The House set a bad precedent by passing the Garner pork-barrel measure, including several types of alleged relief. But no one now takes the Garner bill seriously. In all probability it will never reach the floor of the Senate and President Hoover will be denied the pleasure of vetoing it. If the Garner program had been contained in three separate bills, one of them might have become law with proper amendments. But in its present form it is a complete waste of energy.

The Senate ought not to make a similar mistake. The remaining portion of the Wagner program includes two separate and distinct proposals: First, a $500,000,000 bond issue for public works; second, extension of the resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by $1,500,000,000 to make funds available for projects of a quasi-public nature. If the measure should be passed in omnibus form it would risk a presidential veto, as Mr. Hoover is unalterably opposed to any bond issue that would unbalance the budget and make higher taxes necessary. On the other hand, all parties and factions agree that the power of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to issue debentures to finance self-liquidating projects should be extended. Common sense suggests that the two issues be placed before Congress in separate bills, to avoid loss of time and prevent possible failure of adequate relief plans.

POLITICAL FUNDS SCARCE.

John J. Raskob, chief angel of the Democratic party, has donated $100,000 to the "Victory Fund" which John W. Davis and other distinguished members of the party are trying to raise. That sounds very encouraging, but the music of that announcement is rendered discordant by the ugly fact that this donation was spent in 1928 in trying to elect Al Smith. In other words, Mr. Raskob has merely canceled $100,000 of his mortgage. The Democratic party still has a deficit of $559,358, which must be paid before it can start the 1932 campaign with a clean slate.

A few months ago a group of eminent Democrats set out to collect $1,500,000 to rid the party of debt and carry it up to the national convention. A report filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives shows that $229,158 has been collected and $109,235 pledged. Aside from Mr. Raskob's generous donation, Democratic contributors have not made a very good record thus far.

Mr. Raskob has given warning that no more benefactions from him may be expected. Unless some new "angel" is found, or the rate of contributions from the rank and file is accelerated, the party will not be out of the hole by election day. In fact, cash contributions during the last three months did not quite equal expenditures. No doubt contributions will come in faster after the convention is held, but even so, it begins to look as if the committee will do well if it collects its $1,500,000 fund by the end of the campaign.

Both parties will have hard sledding this year in the matter of raising campaign funds. The Republicans are extremely fortunate in being out of debt. As the campaign progresses the Democratic debt will become more and more irksome.

PORK VS. NATIONAL DEFENSE.

In a most decisive manner the Senate has repudiated the House's tactics of "economizing" at the expense of national defense. After having refused to reduce by one cent the extravagant allowances to veterans who took no part in the war, and after having maintained in the War Department appropriation bill a number of pork-barrel items, the House voted to cut off 2,000 officers from the present meager force. The Senate nullified that gesture by providing funds for payment of salaries for these officers, and then refused to reconsider its action by a vote of 51 to 16.

As the Senate passed the War Department supply bill it calls for the expenditure of $3,000,000 less than did the House measure. But there is a vital difference in the type of economies approved by the two houses. The Senate trimmed down the allowance for river and harbor development, much of which is in the nature of pork-barrel handouts to various districts. Expenditures for clothing, equipage and incidental items were reduced in accordance with the existing low prices. The fund for apprehending deserters was also slashed.

In this way the Senate effected greater economies than did the House, without reducing the meager strength of the Army. In times of emergency the entire organization for national defense must be built up by the regular officers. They constitute the mainspring of American security. To reduce further their strength while all the world remains "armed to the teeth" would be utterly inexcusable. There can be no economy in destroying the agencies of national defense.

The action of the Senate brings the pacifism of the Democratic leaders in the House into bold relief. It was not necessary to emasculate the Army to effect the desired economies in the War Department. Apparently the assault upon the officers' personnel and upon the Citizens Military Training Camps in the House was a raid against the Army itself under the guise of economy. This is not the first time during the present session that the Democratic majority in the House has manifested opposition to national defense. An attempt was made to merge the Army and Navy. That was Speaker Garner's pet project. But it was even too preposterous to command the full support of the Democratic majority. Consequently, the House voted it down.

It may be taken for granted that the conference committee will insist on maintaining the economies which do not impair national defense. But that will not wipe out the blunder of the majority leaders in the House. Speaker Garner has placed his party in the position of demanding millions for the pork barrel and for unwarranted allowances to veterans while trying to cripple the institutions of national defense.

COMMODITY PRICES.

The dream of getting prices back to the high level of 1926 has occupied the imagination of the world for several years. Reckoning that happy level at 100, a great many persons have the impression that it was a normal or average price level. But it was, in fact, a period of abnormally high prices, unprecedented during the life of the American republic except for the brief peak prices caused by wars. So far from the average level of commodity prices being around 100, it is plainly shown by any chart covering the range of 100 years to be well below the 70 line. The present point of 65 is very near the century average.

In the period from 1880 to 1916 the curve dropped steadily from the 70 level in 1880 to 45 in 1896 and then rose just as gradually to 70 again in 1914, before beginning the spectacular jump to nearly 170 in 1919. The perpendicular drop in 1920 went slightly below 100, zigzagging across that line until the decline of 1928 set in, carrying the price level down in three years to 65.

The periods of great inflation, lasting about five years each, covering the rise and decline of prices, are found during the War of 1812, the Civil War and the World War. For all the rest of the time from 1820 the average commodity level was just about where it is today. The hope of getting prices back to the abnormal five-year period centering in 1926 is illusory. Some increase will be realized with returning market activity, but the happy medium will have to be reached by costs and other prices coming down to meet commodity rates. It would be cheerful to think that all present-day problems would soon be solved by greatly increased prices for basic products, but the logic of historical facts does not justify such rosy hopes. The other end of the scale will have to contribute largely to the reestablishment of equilibrium.

The inevitable adjustment of this balance has been under way for some time. The prices of products of industry are approaching a common meeting point with agricultural commodities. The stumbling block to the complete adjustment of values on a new level is, of course, the fixed status of financial obligations. Taxes can be reduced when the universal demand for economy in all forms of government has been put into effect. Mortgages and other loans that today require twice as much, measured in commodities, for payment as when the loans were contracted, constitute a real burden to a large percentage of the population.

Inflation of the currency to give the borrowers a cheaper dollar with which to pay their debts is always one of the first demands in situations such as the present. That these citizens are hard pressed, many of them losing their property, can not be denied. On the other hand, it can be as readily proved that a much greater number would suffer from a depreciation of the currency. Investors, financial and insurance companies of all kinds and their millions of stockholders would lose their savings. Bad money is not an effective remedy for bad times.

In international affairs there is much discussion these days about adjusting indebtedness to meet the capacity of the debtor to pay. No such consideration is vouchsafed the individual. He must pay in the money he received, no matter what has happened to his income or the price of the things he produces. The only alternative is repudiation and foreclosure. This unfortunate method of readjustment is going on today, just as capital values are being wiped out and incomes and wages reduced. Economic laws are inexorable and ruthless. Modern ingenuity and courageous initiative have devised means of mitigating the severest exactions, and they are at work with good effect in this country, with the prospect in sight that a balance will be struck that will enable enterprise, labor and finance to cooperate again.

CRIME NOT ACCIDENTAL.

There has been so much indefensible nonsense written and published about the accidental character of crime that it is refreshing to learn of the work of Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, anthropologist, of Harvard University, who, at least, is not a sentimentalist.

Dr. Hooton punches holes in the romantic notion that criminals are created by environment. He says that crime problems might be solved more readily if more were known of the racial and national heredity of evildoers. He suggests examination of the physical peculiarities of criminals for clues to the causes of crime. He insists that professional criminologists have failed. He believes that it is clear that crime is increasing without regard to juvenile courts, social centers and educational, reformative and charitable agencies. He has studied 15,000 prison and asylum inmates, and his verdict is that heredity has more to do with promoting wrongdoing than any environmental influence.

"The criminologist," he observes, "has been infected too often with the fatuous philanthropy which creates the prejudice that the evildoer is but an unfortunate, warped by environmental circumstances such as foreign-born parents, broken homes, slum neighborhoods, and the financial opportunities offered by violation of prohibition laws."

Honest men, he indicates, are sometimes born of alien fathers and mothers, know on occasion the sorrow of disrupted homes, grow up in poverty-stricken slums and yet resist the temptation to get rich quick by shady means. Dishonest men, on the other hand, have been known to come from the most comfortable homes, from the so-called upper stratum of society. It is the inner nature of the individual that decides his destiny. Dr. Hooton scouts the idea that coddling will preserve men from wickedness. He believes that people behave in accordance with inborn traits.

Society, in its struggle to survive, is obliged to be realistic in dealing with its foes. A Canadian city recently has discovered that sentencing highwaymen, when caught, to receive fifteen lashes apiece has been effective in reducing holdups. There is no sentimentalism about such a device. It is applied science, and it prevents. Convicted deliberate criminals must be dealt with as such, not as innocent victims of circumstances over which they have no control.

SPEED ON THE RAIL

From the Boston Transcript.

That the railroad may furnish the fastest means of conveyance over considerable distances on the surface of the earth is again demonstrated. The motor car may be driven at a speed of 70 miles an hour or more, but it is a speed that can not long be maintained, for highways run from town to town only a few miles apart, and between them the stretches on which great speed is possible, if there is any regard to safety, are few. But the railway train may tear along for an hour without great decrease in its speed.

Consider the performance of the Great Western Railway's London-Cheltenham flyer. It has covered the 77¼ miles between Swindon and London in 56 minutes 47 seconds. The train of seven coaches was propelled over the rails at an average speed of 81.6 miles an hour. It attained a maximum speed of 92 miles. This performance broke the record held by the Chicago-Montreal flyer of the Canadian Pacific which covered the 125 miles from Smiths Falls, Ontario, to Montreal West in 108 minutes, an average speed of 69.44 miles an hour. It is asserted that over comparable distances no train ever traveled as fast as these two.

The railroad may provide the fastest service when it comes to traveling on the surface of the earth. When it comes to competition with travel in the air there is another story to tell. The plane moves faster than the fastest of trains. But the advantage is not all with the air craft. The train may run when weather conditions keep this competitor on the ground. And the railroad appeals to a vast public that has not yet taken to the air. If the appeal is to be effective, there must be a combination of speed and safety. It is an age of speed, and it is also a time in which he who travels at high speed on the highways has by his side the specter of sudden death.

Disarmament at Geneva being doomed, Prime Minister MacDonald will make the Lausanne conference equally successful by proposing cancellation of all war debts and reparations.

Freight receipts should reflect the many consignments of wet planks and dry kilns to Chicago.

In addition to the primary reason Representative Ruth Bryan Owen will retire from Congress before the next session is she does not care to be a lame duckess.

Former Premier Tardieu shifts a bit to the Right, transforms the Left Republicans into Center Republicans, and will attempt to become the La-Guardia of the French Chamber.

According to the last count, if all those "places" are closed by Mr. Woodcock New York will have to worry along with only about 30,000 speakeasies and blatant clubs.

Some troops have been called out in the Kentucky coal region, but no further trouble is anticipated unless there is another attack by student reformers.

When Senator Glass got down to Richmond he predicted that "Congress had not come within a billion dollars of balancing the budget;" and cause why? "because of the vacillation and lack of foresight and courage of the Republican executive."

Cancellation of war debts and reparations would leave everybody all square—in Europe.

A London market expert predicting a 300 per cent rise in American shares within three years says: "America has already adopted an active program of reflation, is not dependent appreciably on world trade, and is not particularly damaged by the turmoil of Europe." What are we waiting for?

The R. F. C. is working so smoothly that Gen. Dawes just had to get out on a new course that has some tough bunkers in it.

Germans are funny. They are getting all worked up over revising their constitution and it has nothing to do with prohibition.

WHEN THE BABY ARRIVES.

When the little baby comes
Little fingers, little thumbs,
Little chubby feet and toes
And the little button nose
Give the mother more delight
Than the stars which shine at night.

Others race to get a view
Of that little baby new.
Come the grandmas hastening there
In the happiness to share,
And among the wondering crowd
Walk the grandpas, very proud.

Comes a most devoted aunt,
Whom no other can supplant,
To discover endless charms
In those little dimpled arms
And to bring, as aunties do,
Little gifts of pink or blue.

So in manners quaint and strange
Thus the lives of many change.
With new hope the future gleams,
New delights, new cares, new dreams.
And with joy the old world hums

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE: Playwrights, novelists and candidates for the Presidency have recently revealed a strange aversion to the use of quotation marks, and I wish to drop a word of warning before the epidemic reaches you.

Yesterday I read one of your school papers. You had done considerable research work to assemble your material, and in a few places you quoted authorities and confessed your obligation in foot notes.

But when I asked if you had copied anything verbatim without using quotation marks, you answered: "Nothing except facts and figures." And then you added that facts belong to everybody.

That is true, as you meant it, but copying anything without giving credit is a dangerous practice and it is better to err on the side of honesty.

When you copy anything without using quotation marks, you are pretending that another's work is your own. You are trying to get credit for something you didn't do. And the world has an ugly name for that kind of business.

You wouldn't copy answers from a text book during an examination. You wouldn't exhibit another student's drawing and say: "This is mine."

Yet that kind of cheating is no whit worse than using another's sentences and pretending they are yours.

I know it is a common practice. Youngsters in all grades do it, often with the knowledge of their parents. They persuade older and wiser people to write their compositions and debates, and then submit the work as their own without a twinge of conscience. Apparently they have learned to believe that dishonesty isn't dishonest if it doesn't invite a jail sentence.

Is the good opinion of a teacher worth the sacrifices of honor? Is a high mark in school valuable enough to justify stealing and lying to win it?

If this thing politely called plagiarism no longer seems shameful, it would be well for the schools to drop a few 'ologies and add a course in common honesty.

Don't misunderstand me, dear. I'm not accusing. I'm merely warning.

If a single phrase is valuable enough to borrow, it is valuable enough to be acknowledged as another's work.

I'd rather have you flunk every class as a square shooter than to graduate cum laude by cheating. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Pork, Just the Same.
New York Herald Tribune.

The Senate seems disposed to heave the Garner bill out of the window, as it richly deserves. For this the country will be grateful.

But let the Senate make no mistake about the Wagner bill which it is now debating. It is far better than the Garner bill in every respect. It differs from the administration's proposal in only one considerable item. But that item is vital. We mean the half-billion bond issue for public buildings without regard to whether they are self-sustaining or not.

As we have stated in these columns, and as Senator Wagner argued at length in a recent letter on this page, this is a relatively small amount of pork. It is, too, as the senator insisted, the very best pork, stamped with the seal of offical approval. But it is pork. It would have only the slenderest value as relief. And being a bond issue for projects not self-sustaining, it would unbalance the budget in the eyes of every investor and depress the value of the Government's securities.

Both Well-Dressed.
Boston Transcript.

We doubt whether Caesar's wife dressed any more resplendently than the Honorable James J. Walker; but beyond that point we hesitate to draw comparisons.

Brookhart's Mistakes.
Kansas City Times.

Brookhart is one of the Senate group of insurgent Republicans. He joined the La Follette movement in 1924. He opposed Hoover's nomination in 1928, but, as did Senator Borah, he campaigned for the ticket. But the campaign support was about the only conspicuous help he gave to Hoover. He has been hostile to the administration in many ways. In his utterances and attitudes he often has been demagogic.

The conclusion logically may be reached that the Iowa senator has overplayed his radical hand, and that at a time when conservatism should direct economic recovery he is made to pay the penalty.

Jack Garner a Liability.
Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Hon. Garner is the political washout of 1932. Yesterday he was regarded as an asset to his party and his country. Today he is a liability.

His party must assume the responsibility for him and for the House under his Speakership. Democrats organized the House and made him its Speaker. They assumed the authority, and with the authority went the responsibility to the country.

The House has failed, and in failing it has done more than destroy Speaker Garner. It has destroyed what was a growing belief in the wisdom and ability of the Democratic party. Mr. Garner's deflation is one of the major political tragedies of 1932.

Other Radicals Take Note.
Chicago Tribune.

The red flag came down with a run in Iowa when Smith Wildman Brookhart lost the Republican primary. It has taken some years for the full meaning of Brookhart's development to come home. But the people of Iowa, we have been always confident, are not for socialism, disguised or not.

Brookhart, dressed up as a champion of the plain people against the dragons of this, that and the other, no longer represented Iowa, but a tendency and policies which Iowa only wanted one good straight look at to repudiate. All the big show needed was some Iowa horse sense, and Henry Field brought it into the field. Field showed up the Brookhart bunk and the stage fire has fizzled out.

Iowa is a Commonwealth of Americans, quite able to defend American rights and institutions and with no disposition to throw away their heritage in exchange for the bogus promises of socialism. Other States now represented by the clique of which Brookhart made himself a vociferous member are not going to submit much longer to their misrepresentation by self-styled progressives whose ideas of progress have no roots in America and would land us in a tyranny of overwhelming debt and bureaucratic rule.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Depression Hard on Dilly-Dally Congressmen—People Will Choose Better Representatives, Says Mr. Parsons, Quoting Mr. Leahy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heard Wm. B. Leahy, the prominent local attorney, speak at the commencement exercises of Columbus University. The thing that impressed me most in his speech was what he thought of the constructive side of the present depression. As the old saying goes, it is an ill wind that blows nobody good. One of the major benefits, as stressed by Mr. Leahy, is that the voting population of the country will soon come to its senses and elect brilliant, clear-thinking men who possess a generous amount of common sense, as their representatives in the State and National legislatures.

There are too many men on Capitol Hill who dilly-dally and get nothing accomplished. The depression has had a great deal to do with showing up these individuals, and the voting population now will have a great deal to do with showing these dilly-dallying congressmen out of office.

It will not be long before the November elections. When this time rolls around every one will realize that the depression has had its beneficial effects. With constructive and intelligent men in Congress, some means will be devised to run Old Man Depression off the face of the earth.

Helen Langstream a Martyr to Speed; Hurt in One Accident, Killed in Another.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I recommend to the attention of William Ullman and other apologists for fast driving the story of the death of Helen Langstream.

This child was playing in front of a school. She was struck and hurt by a passenger car. The driver started with her for Sibley Hospital. En route to the institution they were involved in a collision with a bakery truck. Helen was thrown out and killed.

No man can dismiss such a chronicle as a mere accident. It is part of the harvest of death and disaster which the country pays for the shameless carelessness of drivers whose only interest is speed. It was a speeding car that first injured Helen, and a speeding truck that crushed out her life.

I doubt the sanity of people willing to longer tolerate such crimes.

CHARLOTTE FIELDING.

Taxi Drivers Must Wear Coats or Dusters—Cigarette Smoking Objectionable.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Under the head of "Utility Body Tells Cabmen They Must Wear Dusters" is printed in The Post of June 8 this regulation: "Operators of taxicabs shall be clean in dress and in person and wear a coat or duster at all times while operating a cab."

The discerning assiduity seen in the activities of our Public Utilities Commission has long ago proved its worth, and what may be called the minor regulation here quoted pleases me very much.

As The Post item says, "at present almost every taxi driver appears in his shirt sleeves on warm days," and I might add that the habit of men appearing in public without their coats on has become entirely too common.

Of course, the P. U. C. can not interfere with the general breach of good form in this respect, but if the taxi regulation holds good, I think it would be within the law for the Traffic Bureau to revoke the year's license of any motorist operating his car in his shirt sleeves.

Taxi drivers who smoke cigarettes are as objectionable as shirt-sleeve drivers.

Senator Brookhart's Defeat Brings Joy to "American Voter," Who Hopes for Conservative Control of Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When I read of Senator Brookhart's defeat for renomination my eyes filled with tears of joy, for I am working only two or three days a week now because Senator Brookhart and other senators and representatives of his caliber have intensified and prolonged this depression by trying to force demagogic and pork barrel legislation on the country since 1929. Their stupid acts have created fear in the minds of the leaders of business and industry, resulting in driving billions of dollars into hiding that would have been used to keep the millions now unemployed at work.

I hope that Brookhart's defeat is a sign that a majority of conservative members will regain control of both houses of Congress this fall, for unless that comes to pass hard times are just beginning.

Wool Trade Improving in England. Mr. Reel Suggests Abandoning Gold Standard.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I draw attention to a paragraph in the "Summary of World Wool Prospects," issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, May 31?

The paragraph in question reads: "Bradford conditioning house figures for the first four months of the year show great improvement over those of last year, and strongly indicate the recent improvement in trade."

A year ago England's situation was infinitely worse than ours. England left the gold standard with the above result. Is there any reason why we should continue to adhere to that antiquated fetish?

Our institutions should be made solvent by reflation so that credit might be restored. We had better have a dollar that buys what it did in 1930 than none at all.

HERMAN REEL.

GEN. HARBORD SAYS WAR IS 'TOO LIKELY'

West Point Graduates Hear of Probability of Strife in Their Lifetime.

West Point, N. Y., June 10 (A.P.).—Maj. Gen. J. G. Harbord, retired, said in the commencement address at the United States Military Academy today that it seemed "all to likely" that during the lifetime of the graduating cadets "our streets may again be filled with marching men."

"No one who has known war cares to look on its ugly face again," he said. "But while envy, malice, deceit, and the baser qualities of human nature remain; while nations strive for commercial supremacy; with populations increasing in territories that remain unchanged; and with homogeneous races divided by artificial boundaries in continental Europe, wars will still come.

Far East Situation.

"With the Philippines turned loose to become the prey of the strongest; with the red menace in Russia; with civil war still casually going on in China; with Henry Pu-Yi shivering in the executive chair of Manchuria; and with a quota of hungry men and women in every country in the world, it seems all too likely that some day in your lifetime our streets may again be filled with marching men."

Gen. Harbord told the cadets graduating into Army life that they might be the ones to witness the final justification of democracy "in the long, weary aftermath of the great war."

"Yours may be the generation," he said, "to reap the fruits of the sacrifices your fathers and your brothers made."

Cadet Kenneth E. Fields, of Elkhart, Ind., was appointed first captain of the Corps of Cadets by Maj. Gen. W. D. Connor, superintendent of the Academy. The promotion was announced after the graduation exercises.

Will Lead Corps.

As first captain, Fields will be the senior cadet and will lead the corps at all parades, reviews and other ceremonies. In addition to this highest military honor he has stood No. 1 in his class for the past two years and he has won three major A's, two as a half back on the football team and one as a baseball pitcher.

Other cadets promoted to the grade of captain and placed in command of cadet companies include Theodore J. Conway, San Francisco; George W. Beeler, Seattle; William O. Senter, Abilene, Tex.; Lawrence J. Lincoln, Harbor Beach, Mich.; Alden K. Sibley, Reno, Nev.; John G. Shinkle, Aberdeen, Md.; Randolph W. Fletter, Douglas, Utah; Milton F. Summerfelt, Benton Harbor, Mich.; Edward T. Ashworth, Payette, Idaho; William O. Darby, Fort Smith, Ark.

Summerfelt is captain of the football team.

The 1932 graduating class of the Military Academy with their addresses is as follows:

A to D.

President Is Greeted by 5,000 on His Arrival With Wilbur.

"The Negro race comprises 10 per cent of our population," said President Hoover yesterday at the sixty-third annual commencement exercises held on the campus of Howard University, "and unless this 10 per cent is developed proportionately with the rest of the population, it can not pull its proper strength at the oars of our pressing problems of democracy. To provide this development requires trained leadership and I conceive that to be the function of Howard University."

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Hoover, by Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur, Capt. C. R. Train, U. S. N.; Col. Campbell Hodges, U. S. A.; Capt. Joel T. Boone and Theodore Joslin. The Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, gave the invocation immediately following rendition of the "Prayer of the Holy Women and Apostles" (S. Coleridge Taylor), which was sung by the university Musical Arts Society as soon as the presidential party was seated amid the applause of the assemblage of 5,000.

An academic procession of administrative officers, deans, faculties and 341 candidates for diplomas, together with 18 who received the master's degree in the graduate school, 24 who were awarded internships in Freedmen's Hospital, and 21 who received commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps, had preceded the President's arrival, so that he was detained but a brief space on the campus, his address consuming a little more than three minutes.

University Is Inspiration.

"It is an inspiration," he said, "to come into this great institution of higher education for the Negro race. Nothing that the Federal Government has done reflects more credit upon it for the meeting of an obligation than this institution to bring to a great segment of our population the means of overcoming a handicap for which they were not responsible, and of leveling upward for them an equal opportunity to share in the full measure of citizenship with their brethren of other races.

"You are providing here professional training in all those fields to which the community naturally looks for leadership, to men and women of the colored race, to your own best talents, your own leaders by natural endowment. Through the instruction which they receive here, your natural leaders become trained leaders, and this training is of the same kind and efficiency with that which is provided for the natural leaders of the white race. These things are the natural right of citizens of the republic. The Federal Government has nobly acknowledged its duty to provide them here."

Electricity Shock Throws Phone Operator From Chair

Fairfax Line Put Out of Order as Road Builders' Steam Shovel Short-Circuits Wires While Excavating on Lee Highway.

Mrs. Harry Holbrooke, chief operator at the Fairfax, Va., telephone exchange, is suffering from an electric shock received yesterday morning when high-tension wires became short circuited with a telephone wire 3 miles east of Fairfax, on the Lee highway.

Contractors building the Lee highway cut-off around the town of Fairfax were excavating along the right of way to make a fill, when the steam shovel bucket struck a guy wire on the electric line. The strain pulled the electric wires into the telephone lines.

Mrs. Holbrooke, on duty alone at the time, had several connections on the board, and the sudden change in current momentarily jumped the safety devices and she received a shock which threw her from the chair.

The electric company was forced to use 400 feet of new high-tension cable to repair the damaged lines.

PERMIT FOR DUMP DENIED BY COUNTY

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

On motion of Fred Goanell, seconded by John C. Gall, board members, the Arlington County Board, in special session at the courthouse last night, unanimously refused to grant a permit to the Arlington Development Co. for a dump on the property on the east side of Mount Vernon avenue and adjacent to the City of Alexandria, formerly known as Jefferson District.

William C. Gloth, former Commonwealth's attorney, appearing as counsel for the company, stated that the property was in the extreme southeastern section of the county and was swampland and is now what he termed very unsanitary. He stated further that the nearest property is the old barns of the former Alexandria-Washington Railway.

Leading the protest against the permit, Roy Miller stated the citizens are opposed to a dump in any section of the county.

Others to file protest against the dump were Mrs. Alice W. Bemones, Fred Lyons, O. H. Baaham, Clyde Mills and George Wilson.

The action with regard to the issuing of permits for dumps was passed at the request of the County Health Officer Dr. P. M. Chichester, who states that he believes the county manager should issue these permits, with the county health department acting in an advisory capacity from a sanitary standpoint.

Culbertson on Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

THE importance of the Opening lead at Contract Bridge can not be too greatly stressed. With many hands the choice of the card or even the suit which shall be opened is merely a choice of evils. There is no attacking lead available in the hand, no probability of the quick development of a trick and not even a bid by partner to solve the difficult problem of what to lead.

The hand shown below, played in a Duplicate game in New York City recently, through West's choice of an Opening lead, presented to the holder of the South cards, one of the world's ranking bridge players, an early opportunity to guess as to the line of play he should follow to make his contract, and, as so frequently happens, he guessed wrong.

South—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

Through what would appear to be rather optimistic bidding, South was playing a contract of seven diamonds, and West, from his meager holdings, decided to open the spade deuce, wishing to preserve his tenace holding in clubs and hearts. South studied long and carefully. If West's lead was from the spade Queen, the hand could be made by letting the first trick run to the Knave. This chance was possibly about even, but if it were to be done, it must be done immediatly, as there would be no other opportunity to turn the spade Knave into a winner except the extremely remote chance, in view of the opening, of the Queen being a doubleton in either the East or West hand.

South saw, however, that there was another manner in which the contract might be made. If West held four clubs and the spade Queen was in the East hand, a triple squeeze could be worked, against which the opponents would be helpless. After much study, South elected to play West for the spade Queen. East won the trick, and South lost the hand.

It is interesting to note how the hand could have been made by the use of the triple squeeze. South would win the first trick with the spade Ace, lead the spade King from Dummy, and follow with the Ace and King of clubs and a small club, which would be ruffed in the closed hand. Four rounds of diamonds would then be taken, and the following situation would develop:

On the lead of the last diamond, the squeeze would operate against West, who must either throw the high club or unguard the heart. As the heart Ace is an obvious entry, his choice would, no doubt, be a small heart, upon which Dummy's club would be discarded. East, however, would also be squeezed. He must either discard the spade Queen or also unguard the heast suit, in either cast the contract of seven diamonds would be fulfilled.

The hand is interesting as a problem in play and also as showing how careful the Declarer must be in planning the play of a close hand. While the taking of the finesse can not be condemned as distinctly bad, the chance of effecting the squeeze presented a greater probability of success.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Close hands require the most careful planning of the play from the first trick down to the last. Before beginning the play, the Declarer should always make a study of the possible holdings of his opponents, as shown by any preceding bidding or by the lead.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Summer girdles have to have certain comfortable features and fit like the paper on the wall! (says Dah-ray).

NEW YORK, June 10.—"And why, of all the umteen girdles I have did you insist on me using the little grosgrain ribbon one?" I asked La Chic Secretaire.

"Um we—e-e-el. Because I think it is the best-looking one. Because it is made of material that is simple to buy and work with. Elastic that doesn't have to be fancy and 'spensive because the ribbon covers it—and—oh-h-h-h I just like it and you do too."

Yes, I do. Summer girdles are a problem, I think. We can't all go stockingless—fact is, I don't believe a lovely lady can at all. And we all know how uncomfortable and deforming, really, rolled stockings are. So what? Why, the merest excuse for a girdle that garters can hang to—and that one can wash as easily as any other piece of lingerie—and consequently wear right next to the skin.

Well, I have discovered two such. One is made of grosgrain ribbon, even to the garter attachments—and is exactly 3 inches wide. The other is more supporting, goes the length of the hips, and has a slide-fastener opening, which interferes not at all with its washableness. And this last-mentioned one is always of some material that washes well, and seems to need no elastic—which washes not so well, anywhere but on the garters.

Now don't write and ask me where you can buy these—because you can buy them at any department store—if you know just what to ask for, and insist upon getting that and nothing else!

• • • •

'Course, if you want to see whether you can make either or both of these, all you have to do is send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for a leaflet giving you the most careful instructions for so doing. You can try it out in some cheaper material, you see—and then won't lose much if it doesn't work! But it should work—if you follow the directions. And then you can have a whole flock of comfortable and chic and practical summer girdles—for what you might have to pay otherwise. Try it, why not? There are two in the leaflet—and the French maid, who is Spanish, made ours, you know!

• • • •

If you have the patience to "knit one and purl two" you can do the most delightful things with yarns! Summer nights can be cool, you know—boating, for instance. And every department store has a charming instructoress who will guide your stitches and help you turn out Fifth avenue and Rue de la Paix stuff! She will even keep you on the right row and pick you up if you drop one—that's knitting talk, dahr-lings.

• • • •

May I tell you about a bag that Mademoiselle wrote about in her last letter? 'Tis made of wild boar! No, I don't mean the kind who drop in on you for sustenance these days—dahr-ing. 'Course there is a watch in it—but that isn't anything new. The nice thing about this animal hide seems to be it's soft, soft brownness, soft to the touch, but pretty tough—like its original owner.

• • • •

Had to make a reprint on Bandanna-Apron hankies—so there are some leaflets left telling you how to make the darlingist aprons you ever saw, out of two bandanna handkerchiefs apiece! Hurry—mail the letter now.

Au Revoir.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE transfer of Station WJSV to the Old Dominion Broadcasting Co., a subsidiary of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was approved by the Federal Radio Commission yesterday. WJSV will cease operation immediately.

Columbia plans to install the practically new transmitter abandoned by Station WCAU, when the latter station stepped its power up to 50,000 watts, at Baileys Cross Roads, Va., maintaining the Alexandria studios used by Station WJSV. However, several improvements will be made, bringing the studios up to date. It is expected that WJSV will be on the air with Columbia programs about September 15.

The commission, in announcing its decision, declared that WJSV had been having serious difficulty in the maintenance of well-balanced programs of good quality, having a general listener interest, and that it expected the transfer to result in substantial improvement of the programs of WJSV to the benefit of the listening public within the station's service area.

Station WMAL has not announced its plans following the transfer of its network features to WJSV, but it is not impossible that a deal will be made whereby the National Broadcasting Co. will use the transmitter for local distribution of WJZ network programs.

BY plugging in the proper combination of electrical gadgets in connection with the microphone, almost any political speaker's voice may be "beautified" and given charm and persuasiveness, O. H. Caldwell, former radio commissioner, declares. Some political speakers who have poor radio voices, might carry the necessary compensating equipment with them whenever they are to speak over the radio, thus adding thousands of admiring voters to their cause.

Another possibility of the use of the gadgets, suggests Mr. Caldwell, might be for speakers addressing a nation-wide audience over a broadcasting network. By feeding the various outgoing lines through appropriate compensators, persons listening in New England would hear the speaker with a shrill Yankee twang; south of the Mason and Dixon line the same voice would have a marked Southern drawl, and in the West a breezy Western accent would be added.

During a broadcast which Mr. Caldwell will make a week from tonight over Columbia, a new "applause meter" will be demonstrated by which it is possible to accurately evaluate national convention ovations in terms of "decibel seconds," thus getting a direct measure of candidates' popularity, in units of the intensity and duration of the applau. at the mention of their names, and so settling the matter at once and saving much useless later balloting.

Signals of the world's most perfect clock and how it operates—losing only one second each year—will be demonstrated by Mr. Caldwell tonight (WMAL, 7:45 o'clock).

PORTIONS of the sesquicentennial celebration and commencement exercises of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., the only institution of learning in the United States which bears the name of the first President with his personal approval and consent, will be heard at 11 o'clock this morning over WRC.

Albert C. Ritchie, Governor of Maryland; Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, and Count von Prittwitz, German Ambassador to the United States, have been invited to speak during the broadcast.

Washington College was founded in 1782. Dr. Paul E. Titsworth is president of the institution.

The story of a German navy code, and a dirigible that crashed to earth will be dramatized during the broadcast of K-7 over WRC at 8 p. m. This is another in the series of programs presenting authentic methods of secret service operatives during the World War.

Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Philippine Legislature, will talk on "Philippine Independence" (WMAL, 9:15 p. m.) during the Institute of Public Affairs program. The address will be given at the height of efforts by many American organizations and individuals to persuade Congress to vote conditional independence to the islanders before the close of this session.

THE "March of Time" will return to the air on September 9 as a sustaining feature over the Columbia network. The series will lay particular emphasis on the events of the American political drama, but the most important and interesting events of all the world will be staged weekly also.

Renewal of contracts presenting Ruth Etting, the Boswell Sisters, Alex Gray, Norman Brokenshire and Nat Shilkret's Orchestra in "Music That Satisfies" have been announced. The series, offered every night except Sunday at 9 o'clock, will retain its present schedule.

Celebration in Hawaii of the birthday of King Kamahamaha, which might be compared to the Washington's Birthday celebration in the United States, will be heard over the WJZ network at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Royal Hawaiian Band will play, and there will be native singing.

Ceremonies at the launching of the Grace Line's new fast mail ship, the Santa Paula, will be heard over WRC at 1:30 p. m. today. L. S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union, will be the principal speaker on the program.

A description of the running of the Queens County Handicap at Aqueduct, N. Y., will be given by Thomas B. George (WMAL, 2:30 p. m.).

ED WYNN, the Perfect Fool, changes his hat and coat for each episode of his Tuesday night broadcasts. During the musical selections of the program, Wynn and Graham McNamee, his "straight" man, retreat from the studio to an ante room. As the music ends, they gallop back to the microphone, and the new costume Wynn wears each time brings laughter from the visible audience. Wynn doesn't change his famous old shoes during the entire program, however.

A German military program, presenting martial music of the past three centuries, will be heard over WRC during an international broadcast from Berlin. Four military bands of 200 men will furnish the instrumental music, and a massed chorus of 500 men will sing.

Ralph Kirbery, dream singer, is becoming an authority on late radio programs. He recently had a radio set installed in his automobile to entertain himself while driving home to Paterson, N. J., after his midnight broadcast.

REMEMBER the broadcast of the nightingale from England over WMAL a couple of weeks ago? An Englishman writes that a friend of his has a house in a wood frequented by nightingales. While the broadcast was going on, one of the songsters heard his colleague performing through the loud speaker. Not to be outdone, the bird perched on the nearest window sill and sang back at his fellow.

How to Be Beautiful

Expert Answers Questions of General Interest—Calloused Cuticle Around the Nails

MISS M. F. E.: You can change the condition easily. Start with a manicure by a good operator, one who does not unnecessarily clip the cuticle. Night and morning bathe hands thoroughly in luke-warm water and soap. Each night and morning when cleansing the face, rub nourishing cream thoroughly around, over, and under the nails. In a month's time I venture to promise that the cuticle will be lovely and soft and easily trained. The treatment may be hastened by soaking the nails and finger tips in warm olive oil twice per week. To keep them lovely, always rub nourishing cream into your nails every time you put cream on your face.

To Prevent Cracked, Parched Lips.

Miss Cary: Apply nourishing cream to dry lips night and morning. Let remain as long as convenient. If lips are sore, wet thoroughly with spirits of camphor and niter before applying the cream. Drink water copiously. Avoid constipation.

Sagging Throats.

Miss Florence S.: This condition requires much patting with nourishing cream, muscle oil, ice water, and astringents. The main object is to bring renewed activity to nerves, skin, and muscles. This must be done by speeding up the circulation and feeding wasted tissue with nourishing cream. I have written many articles on this subject. Therefore, if you desire more specific information please write to me, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I have a leaflet called "Unwelcome Signs of Age" which might help you.

Warm Baths.

Miss C. N. A.: Yes, I think that a warm lathery bath before retiring is not only relaxing and conducive to sleep, but that it is a necessity for cleansing. A cold bath does not perform this purpose adequately. Try cold water for washing greasy substances from a drinking glass, and you will get the principle involved. You will find that warm, soapy lather does the real cleansing. Take your cold baths, or cold shower, or cold sponge baths, when you arise in the morning. Your cleansing bath at night.

Reddened, Itching Eyelids.

Mrs. Carl B.: This might arise from so many different causes that I do not dare give you specific directions. You should consult your oculist. It might be from eye strain, internal troubles, or from irritated oil glands underneath the lids. You can, however, safely bathe your eyes in a weak solution of salt water or boracic acid. Be sure that you have not been eating too many strawberries. This fruit affects some skins that way. However, never take a chance on giving eyes the wrong treatment. What is more precious than eyesight? Most people neglect their eyes shamefully. They spend far more time on hair and nails than on care of eyes, yet eyes are infinitely more precious.

Elsie Pierce, famous beauty lecturer, will answer any questions on beauty you wish to ask her. Address Miss Pierce, in care of The Washington Post, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

AN inquirer says she read the two news stories about the splitting of the hydrogen atom and the production of helium a few days ago, and she wants to know whether this discovery is soon to be of service in the practice of medicine or the prevention of disease.

There is no reason to expect any immediate help in the field of disease—care and cure. The element, helium, has been known a long time, having been discovered three-quarters of a century ago. Furthermore, this element is in considerable use and America is the principal source of the world's supply. The wells of the Amarillo, Tex., district supply a gas that is relatively rich in this gas. By cooling to a very low point and subjecting it to great pressure all other ingredients are changed to the liquid form and the gaseous helium which remains is drawn off and put into suitable containers. In the World War the demand for helium to replace hydrogen in balloons became very great and since then our Government has had some control over the American supply.

Helium is a light, noninflammable and quite inert gas. Therefore, there is small chance that any medical use can be found for it. It is so inert that foods saturated with it do not undergo bacterial decomposition for several months. If any use for it is found in or near the field of medicine, it will be in some direction suggested by the fact that foods saturated with it do not decay. Certain other phases of the discovery may promise something for medicine.

The original theory was that the elements could not be changed and that atoms could not be divided. Gold was always gold and iron was always iron. In recent years discovery after discovery is knocking this theory to pieces. The alchemists of the Dark Ages had the right idea, though they never got anywhere in their efforts to change mercury into gold.

It was discovered that lead, mesothorium and radium, all considered elements, are simply different forms and stages of the same element. This substance, in the flux, finally was supposed to come to rest as lead. Then we were told that radium and helium, supposedly elements, were different forms of the same element. It has been said that the various metals mined out of the earth were all from the same base and that, whether we found it as gold, silver, copper, lead, zinc or iron depended upon the pressure and heat to which it was subjected in the earlier ages of the world. Now it has been proved that an old guess is true, namely, that helium and hydrogen are different forms of the same element.

Perhaps in time a way will be found to convert some medically useless elements such as helium into useful forms such as radium. Once we begin transforming elements no one can put a limit on what might be produced and the uses that might be found for the new elements.

But all of this is dreaming. Should something new be found, the length of Rip Van Winkle's sleep will be required to get it into general use. It was about 20 years after the discovery of the tubercle bacillus before general practical application of the discovery was made. It was fully 20 years after the discovery of the diphtheria bacillus before diphtheria antitoxin was freely accepted, and much more than 20 years before diphtheria vaccination came into general use.

CHILDREN'S BUREAU.

Mrs. E. P. writes: I expect to become a mother next June, for the first time. Where, in Washington, can I write for a bulletin?

REPLY.

Write to the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. Ask for two booklets—"Prenatal Care" and "Infant Care."

EPILEPSY OPERATION.

Subscriber writes: What is the consensus with regard to trephining as a cure for epilepsy?

REPLY.

It is of service in Jacksonian epilepsy, if done properly. Otherwise, it is of no service in any form of epilepsy.

IT'S DONE EVERY DAY.

S. writes: Could an alloy filling be removed and replaced with a gold filling without injury to the tooth?

REPLY.

Yes. It is done every day. The cavity will have to be enlarged a bit.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 a. m. to 9:20 a. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Today's forecast (June 11th): A riot of disjointed incidents, both tiring and fruitless, will crowd one upon the other. Favorable for informal and impromptu social affairs; a wrong atmosphere for state and formal functions. Expenditures heavy, profits small, and unexpected drains on resources.

The child born on this June 11 will be a sophisticated, self-confident and pert little being, with many rough and unattractive corners to be rubbed off by a none too coddling world. It will grow out of its selfish pinafore days into a more thoughtful and less frivolous man or woman.

Born on June 11, you have all the faults and virtues accompanying a restless and impulsive nature. Your mind, butterfly fashion, flits from subject to subject, leaving most depths unprobed. It is difficult for you to concentrate, and until you have acquired more mental discipline, the world will have little opportunity to witness your real cleverness.

You have no desire to show off, and it would inure to your benefit if you had more of certain kinds of pride. You are unconsciously self-satisfied, and are not given to self-reflection. You make quick decisions and never lose opportunities through procrastination or indecision. You are guided almost solely by instinct and desire.

You work very quickly, and could do most things exceptionally if you were less indifferent to results. Work to you is a necessary evil, something to be gotten over with, a medicine to be swallowed. Your disposition is chronically amiable, and you never store up bad feelings for long—laughter soon displaces your tears. You are sincerely democratic, and no class barriers stand between you and any friendship which seems desirous. You, as a friend, are exceptional, and you stick to people even after their unworthiness has been proven, and you return loyalty for disloyalty. You quickly sponsor new people or fresh ideas, but many times regret your haste.

Successful people born on June 11: Henry W. Bellows, clergyman. Jeannette Rankin, congresswoman. Walter Byron, British film artist. Augustus H. Garland, Attorney General under Cleveland. Leland H. Garland, entomologist. Eliphalet F. Andrews, artist.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

IS it true that evergreens can be set out later than deciduous trees?

HENRY F. U.

Evergreens can be planted later than deciduous trees, but in the case of late planting the trees must be kept well watered daily after they have been moved. If the roots once dry out they can not be revived.

My garden is troubled with peony blight. I have two dozen old but beautiful bushes about my grounds and about 50 per cent of them are attacked with blight. Is there any way of treating the plants before growth begins or is there a spray which can be used later in the season?

WILLIAM S. G.

Peonies require an abundance of water while the buds are being formed in May. A spray of one pound of blue stone and one pound of lime to 50 gallons of water, applied when the buds are the size of buckshot, will prevent blight and early applications of bonemeal will supply nourishment. Wood ashes are good but should be kept two or three inches from the crowns.

My roses are attacked by leaf hoppers. What shall I do to get rid of them?

MRS. PAUL H. L.

The leaf hoppers that disfigure rose foliage may be controlled by spraying the under sides of the leaves with a nicotine preparation containing soap.

Each year I lose a few of my asters with root insects. Some one in our garden club told us of a preparation to incorporate with the soil before planting. I can not remember this formula. Can you give it to me?

MRS. FRANCIS L.

Tobacco dust worked into the ground where you are planting asters will protect the plants from root lice.

I am spraying my delphiniums and hollyhocks every ten days with Bordeaux mixture to protect them from rust. Is this too often?

NATALIE H. D.

No.

Can you please tell me where I can get some cactus slips? Also please tell me the name of a firm of cactus merchants that issues a catalogue.

LOUIS S.

If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to give you the name of a grower specializing in cacti.

Please tell me of an insecticide to kill currant worms? MABEL M. D.

Hellebore will destroy these worms.

I have two grapevines which are attacked with a disease known as black rot, at least, that is all I have ever heard it called. What can I do to kill the disease and encourage a healthy growth? MRS. HARRIET S. W.

Spray your grapevines with ammoniacal copper carbonate solution or potassium sulphide for mildew or black rot.

Will clipping the tops of alyssum and forget-me-nots insure a second crop of blooms? MADGE McM.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MORE AND MORE OF LESS AND LESS.

["One of the troubles was that in the craze for specialization we concentrated too much on learning more and more of less and less."—Mr. Owen D. Young.]

* * * *

I.

'TWAS the age of specializing—
All the folks did nothing but Seek to be the great big Kingfish
In their own exclusive rut;
To be master of one furrow—
That's the goal they did confess,
Knowing more and more quite fully
About (frankly) less and less.

II.

Each man sought to be an expert
In his own small world untouched;
At the last thin shred of business
In his own small line he'd clutch;
With one eye intently squinting
Down one rifle, he'd suppress Anything that balked his knowing
More and more of less and less.

III.

"Be a specializing bear cat!"
Was the slogan of the day;
"Shoot the works down one big alley,
Making ev'ry motion pay!
Broader visions? Don't be silly!
From the one aim don't digress—
You'll be constantly absorbing

IV.

"Never mind the other fellow,
Just forget the world as such;
Looking at the whole big picture,
Never gets you very much!"
This became the people's gospel
As they battled for success,
And they studied quite intently,
Learning more of less and less.

V.

"Europe? Say, what does she matter?
Asia? What if she goes bust?
Let those crazy foreign nations
All go blooey if they must!"
Thus the specialists each reasoned,
Blind to portents of distress,
Mastering in fiercest frenzy
More and more of less and less.

VI.

'Twas the era of the expert—
Of the Big Shot in his field,
And the split-ups and the mergers
Told of quite a handsome yield;
What was going on about them
They did neither know nor guess,
For they were too busy learning
More and more of less and less.

FROM LONG EXPERIENCE.

THE Federal tax bill as finally passed takes the tax on power and light from the companies and places it on the consumer. "I knew I'd get it anyhow in the end," said John Q. Public philosophically today.

GOOD NEWS.

"THE willingness of our people to accept this added burden," says President Hoover of the new tax bill, "is a great tribute to their wisdom and courage." Evidently it's optional, and thanks for the tip, Herb!

We know a yacht owner who is so sensitive to the depression that he swooned the other day when told his compass was two points off.

The Drys to Mr. Rockefeller, Jr.

Oh, John, how could you do this thing?
How could you treat us so?
You were our friend, our sunny boy,
And source of ready dough.
When others wavered, you stood firm.
You were our friend and guide.
How could you, John, how could you,
Up and take us for a ride?

SERVICES FOR YOUTH TO BE AT CATHEDRAL

Representative Rogers and George Wharton Pepper to Give Talks.

Under the auspices of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, a religious service for the youth of the District of Columbia and adjoining communities will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the great choir and sanctuary of Washington Cathedral. It is expected that the Cathedral will be filled to overflowing with boys and girls representing not only parishes in the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, but other churches and such organizations as the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts.

The Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., LL.D., will welcome the young people from the chancel, and the addresses will be delivered by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers and George Wharton Pepper, LL.D., former senator from Pennsylvania, and an active member of the board of trustees of the Cathedral.

Plans for this first great service for young people in the choir are being handled by the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, D. D., canon and chancellor of the Cathedral, assisted by Canon Edward S. Dunlap and Canon Raymond L. Wolven, chaplain to the Bishop of Washington. Special music appropriate to the occasion will be rendered by the Cathedral choir of men and boys under the direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

During the service, Bishop Freeman will present prize awards to the boys and girls who submitted the best essays on "The Religious Life and Faith of George Washington and Their Lesson for Us Today," which was conducted with the cooperation of Sunday schools throughout the city. The authors of the winning essays will be escorted to seats in the front of the choir.

Church schools and Sunday schools have been invited to attend the service in groups or as individuals, and will enter by the North Transept doorway. No cards of admission will be required, and there should be ample room for the general public, who are requested to use the south transept entrance.

Delegations and church schools are requested to not bring their banners.

The "Service for Youth" was suggested to the Washington Cathedral committee on the Bicentennial celebration by Mrs. John D. Sherman, of the Federal Commission, who is also associated with the national women's committee for the Cathedral. It is part of the Federal Commission's plan to commend the religious significance of George Washington's character to the young men and women who are soon to be charged with the responsibilities of citizenship.

CATHOLICS PLANNING ON NEW CATHEDRAL

First Sketch for Baltimore Edifice Is Approved by Archbishop Curley.

An item of great interest to Catholics of this diocese is the announcement that a new cathedral will be built in Baltimore. Frederick Vernon Murphy, professor of architecture in the Catholic University of America, has made the preliminary studies and they were presented to Archbishop Curley, just before he left for Ireland last Tuesday. The new cathedral will be erected on Charles street, near Saint Mary's Seminary.

The sketches are by no means final, but there may not be many changes from them when the last plans are drawn. Prof. Murphy has visited many of the great cathedrals of Europe, and will spend his vacation on this work. He was assisted in the preliminary studies by a number of graduates of the School of Architecture, among them Thomas Hall Locraft, Ph. D., winner of the Paris prize; Robert A. Weppner, jr., and Paul A. Goettleman.

The preliminary drawings have been carefully prepared. General consideration of site, style and composition have received foremost consideration. It is the aim to give each step careful scrutiny, meeting the criticism that will develop from a comparative study of similar edifices throughout the world.

5,000 Communions.

Five thousand communions were received at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart during the recent novena in honor of the Sacred Heart.

Response Is Loyal.

The people responded loyally and fervently to the appeal of the holy father that they pray for Divine guidance in these days of trials. Especially did they pray for Divine guidance for the leaders of the Nation, who have been striving in this the Capital City of the country, to bring the country forth from its trials.

The Rev. Dr. George Johnson, of the Catholic University, delivered the course of sermons and, as usual, gave his congregation many points for meditation and many suggestions for prayer.

Mgr. P. C. Gavan, pastor of the church, was impressed by the fervor of his people and their love for the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

FIVE JUDGES NAMED FOR ESSAY CONTEST

The five judges selected for the National Bicentennial Essay Contest, in which more than a million students in high schools in 34 States and the Territory of Hawaii were announced yesterday by Representative Sol Bloom, associate director of the Bicentennial Commission.

Those selected are Dr. William J. Cooper, of the United States Office of Education; Senator Hattie W. Caraway, of Arkansas; Representative Florence P. Kahn, of California; Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, and Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, historian of the Bicentennial Commission.

State contest committees, cooperating with the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission in Washington and operating on their own expense, selected the winning essay in each State. The State winning essay, in turn, was forwarded to the Bicentennial Commission headquarters in Washington, and it is from these State winners that the commission's judges will select the national winner.

Each State winner already has received a silver Bicentennial medal from the United States Commission. The national winner will be awarded the official gold medal of the commission, and the presentation will take place in Washington on June 24.

No names or addresses will appear on the competing essay papers. Each paper will be numbered and will go to the judges in that form.

Congress' Inquiry On Parks Sought

Rockefeller Co. Named in Charges That Settlers Are Harassed in Wyoming.

(Associated Press.)

A congressional investigation of the activities of the National Park Service and the Snake River Land Co., controlled by John D. Rockefeller, jr., in seeking to enlarge the Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks was asked yesterday in a resolution introduced by Senators Kendrick and Carey, of Wyoming.

Carey and Kendrick charged that the National Park Service and the Snake River Co. are "discouraging and harassing persons" seeking to settle on the lands so they get the lands to add to the parks. Residents of the area oppose the enlargements, officials contending Teton County is being deprived of the bulk of its taxable lands by virtue of the acreage falling under Government control.

The Snake River Co. has acquired about 30,000 acres of the land, which is in the famous "Jacksons Hole" country of Wyoming. Mr. Carey told newspapermen yesterday that efforts over the past year to settle the long standing conflict without resorting to congressional action had failed.

The Boys' Independent Band will appear in a concert as another feature of the closing night. A watermelon eating contest provided amusement for the crowd last night. Carl A. Knapp, of 5708 Eighth street northwest, won a baseball glove for disposing of his melon first. All of the contestants struggled under the handicap of having their hands tied behind them.

"FORGOTTEN COMMANDMENTS." Paramount's picturization of a story embodying Biblical sequences from Cecil B. De Mille's "Ten Commandments," and featuring Sari Maritza, Gene Raymond, Marguerite Churchill and Irving Pichel. Directed by Louis Gasnier and William Schorr. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

Conscious, no doubt, that the "Forgotten Commandments," which they watched unwind itself from the shiny new spools, never would set any worlds on fire or touch off any elaborate set pieces of dramatic pyrotechnics, the gentlemen who preside over the destinies of Paramount had a happy thought.

They remembered that tucked away in their vaults were prints of another tale dealing with commandments which, in its day, had set the country by the ears—Cecil B. De Mille's "Ten Commandments," a colossus of the silent era, when the screen went in for Gargantuan effects, great masses of people, movement, spectacle and thrill. Why not give "Forgotten Commandments" an intravenous injection of this infallible elixir and let nature take its course? So that was done.

The result, as disclosed upon the screen of Loew's Fox this week, is a sketchily contrived and flimsy story purporting to pillory the doctrines of the Soviet regime in Russia, whereby all of civilization's accepted precepts have been thrown out as impediments of progress, that is happily interrupted by the interpolation of staggering scenes that visualize the story told to a crowd of scoffing urchins by a faithful and gentle priest.

The interlude, borrowed from Mr. De Mille's pretentious and respectful epic of christianity's birth, is by far the most impressive part of a film to which it is supposed to be but incidental.

The modern story is told through the medium of two young couples immersed in the five-year plan of the Muscovites—a brilliant young scientist, who preaches the overthrow of all of humanity's orthodox beliefs, and the sirenic young creature who is his choice as a mate but not his wife, and Paul and Marya, newlyweds, who come to the Capital to worship and learn at the feet of the master. Their love affairs become woefully tangled and in a sudden repudiation of all that he has thought he believed, Marinoff shoots his sweetheart to death and seriously wounds Paul. A climax of conspicuous weakness thus is reached in the surrender of Marinoff to the authorities as the perpetrator of a crime whose penalties he might easily have evaded.

The weakness of the story does not, of course, lie in Marinoff's honest surrender, but in the fact that an attempt has been made to picture life in Soviet Russia, not from the viewpoint of the Soviet but from the distinctly prejudiced point of view of this country to which the whole Russian scheme seems subversive and destructive.

The outstanding performances in this subject are contributed by Sari Maritza, a new and assertively attractive screen personality, in the role of Marinoff's sweetheart, and Marguerite Churchill, as Marya, the young wife whose life was all but wrecked by her staunch adherence to her principles and her God. Neither Irving Pichel, in the role of Marinoff, leader among his fellows, nor Gene Raymond, as Paul, is in any scene in the least impressive or convincing.

Harry Beresford offers the most believable male impersonation as the aged priest whose brief appearance leads to the introduction of the late Theodore Roberts, Estelle Taylor, Julia Faye, Lawson Butt and the hosts of others who participate in Mr. De Mille's visualization of the Israelites' deliverance from bondage, the destruction of the Pharaoh and his cohorts in the Red Sea, the Lord's revelation to Moses on the mountainside and the other Biblical incidents that so dwarf the picture they attempt to bolster.

"Parisienne," a rather more expansive stage revue than usual, offers three smash hits in Wesley Eddy's song specialties, the ne plus ultra tap dancing of King, King and King, and the conversational drolleries, double-voiced singing and white-hot piano playing of Radcliffe and Rogers, two brown boys so well remembered from earlier visits that they received a rousing hand before they had opened their mouths. Les Gails, Apache dancers; Anita Avila and Jack Nile, in toe, acrobatic and eccentric dances, and Sylvia Nelson contribute further to many handsomely staged scenes in which the Chesterfield Girls also acquit themselves nobly in routines ranging from classic ballet to "snake-hip" rhumbas.

The Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's wildly applauded "Chocolate Soldier" overture, in which he plays "My Hero" as a trumpet solo, complete a spacious program.

COLUMBIA

"WHILE PARIS SLEEPS." Fox picturization of a story by Basil Woon, starring Victor McLaglen, with Helen Mack and William Bakewell. Directed by Allan Dwan. Reviewed Friday night by J. F. Brady.

To inaugurate its new policy of "best pictures" at lower prices, the selection of "While Paris Sleeps" as the week's feature at the Columbia, bids fair to make the new policy a popular and successful one.

Highly pitched in tenseness, a vivid and sensational melodrama, "While Paris Sleeps," will not allow you to, by any means. Most of the time you can hold your breath and grip your seat and enjoy this new effort of Victor McLaglen and Helen Mack. It is their show, although the supporting cast, including William Bakewell, Jack LaRue and Dot Farley, add to the splendid working out of the fast-moving story. It is one of those stories which depend upon the smooth-running continuity and action, and these are provided by the fine direction of Allan Dwan.

Victor McLaglen, cast as Jacques, the escaped convict serving a life term, puts over a peculiarly exacting character. His one desire in escaping was to reach the bedside of his dying wife and see his baby girl, now grown to womanhood. To make the story, of course, the wife is dead and the daughter about to fall into the clutches of the underworld. He is a war hero, but was sent to prison for life for an accidental killing.

Helen Mack, playing opposite as Manon, the daughter, protected by the father, whose identity could not be revealed, performs splendidly the innocent girl cast upon the world, happily falling in love with a fellow employe of the underworld dive. At times, Miss Mack almost steals the picture.

"While Paris Sleeps" tells an appealing story of the dutiful daughter who spent her all to bury her mother, who had taught her to love and believe her father had died a hero in the war. Then when the father at last locates her, he foresees the folly of shattering this belief and turns to protection of his beautiful child without her knowledge of his identity. There are many moments of hair-raising sensationalism, scenes of underground passages and torture chamber, all put to effective use in the working out of the plot.

Supporting the feature are an excellent Paramount Newsreel, a most interesting travelogue, "High Andes;" a pleasing comedy, "Dumb Dicks;" an enjoyable Krazy Kat cartoon, "Ritz Hotel," and an organlogue, "Daffy Ditties."

IN OPERATIC SPECTACLE

Martha Henkel, premiere danseuse of the Metropolitan Opera, who will be seen in the outdoor operatic spectacle "Aida," to be presented at Griffith Stadium tomorrow night.

PALACE

"MERRILY WE GO TO HELL." Paramount picturization of Cleo Lucas' story, "I, Jerry, Take Thee, Joan," featuring Fredric March and Sylvia Sidney, with "Skeets" Gallagher, Adrianne Allen and George Irving. Directed by Dorothy Arzner. Reviewed Friday evening by Dorothea Lewis.

The expert and moving acting of that delightful duo, Sylvia Sidney and Fredric March, practically conceals the commonplace and slightly weak framework of their play. For "Merrily We Go to Hell" has far less zest than its name. Certainly it is not "light comedy drama" as billed, being much sadder than gladder.

When Jerry took Joan, he put a corkscrew on her finger, murmured "I think you're swell," and started to go merrily to hell again. Merrily meaning staggeringly, to Jerry.

But when Joan took Jerry, though she should have known better, having seen him drunk and heard of the actress who started him on his drinking, she took him for better or worse and didn't stop at thinking him "swell." She said she loved him.

And Joan sticks after the honeymoon-on-the-wagon-excursion ends, after Jerry's play makes a hit with his actress-past in the lead, through most of an affair with that actress, and through a sad little attempt to be a modern, hard-drinking, non-caring wife. Then finding much more of worse than better in her marriage, she tells him a few things and leaves him. So Jerry, who's a much nicer person than he sounds, suddenly finds out about himself—almost too late.

The amputation of the extremely tragic ending of the story loses the play something of its point. However, for once we're glad they did go happy on us at the end. With Fredric March and that little crinkly-eyed Sidney girl playing Jerry and Joan, an unhappy fade-out would have broken our heart.

The combination of the vital March and the slumberous Sidney is remarkably apt, each performing faultlessly to give a rather routine story more than usual interest and considerable of entertainment. March's sheer naturalness always amazes, and as Jerry, likeable, happy-go-lucky or disgustingly drunk, he again proves one of those rare persons who can refrain from overacting without underacting. Particularly excellent is a brief but powerful scene with Joan's father at the very end of the picture. As for Sylvia Sidney, she is Joan to the life and you'll love her. Hers is a demanding role, and the enthusiasm with which she plays it should make up for the recent sullenness of her "Miracle Man" part.

"Skeets" Gallagher is somewhat amusing as Jerry's friend; Adrianne Allen is attractive and nicely spoken as the come-hither actress, and George Irving does well by Joan's a trifle unsympathetic father.

Thelma Todd and ZaSu Pitts in "Red Noses" have time for only two or three laughs between racing around a slap-stick Turkish bath. A Sportlight shows a few Olympic games hopes, and a newsreel completes the bill.

All Souls' Players To Offer Comedy

"The Florist Shop" to Be Produced by New Club Next Friday.

"The Florist Shop," a one-act comedy by Winifred Hawkridge, will be the initial offering of the newly-organized dramatic club of All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church next Friday evening at an entertainment to be given in the Parish Hall of the church, Connecticut and Cathedral avenues, under the general management of Mrs. William S. Quinter.

Miss Adrienne Low, well-known in local art circles, is directing the production, and Richard Stiles is stage manager. The cast includes Miss Virginia Noble, engenue lead; Miss Stockton Voorhees, Henry Scheper, Ernest Hudgins and Dr. G. Austin Hewey.

METROPOLITAN

"THE STRANGE CASE OF CLARA DEANE." Paramount picturization of a play by Arthur Brilant, featuring Wynne Gibson, Pat O'Brien, Frances Dee and Dudley Digges. Directed by Louis Gasnier and Max Marcin. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

There are times when a further repetition of an old theme becomes the signal for heaving great sighs; there are other times when such a repetition becomes the cause for rejoicing. "The Strange Case of Clara Deane" is such a case. Though its theme of self-abnegating mother love is considerably more than twice-told, the characterization that Wynne Gibson brings to the principal role raises the film from the commonplace and sets it among the more nearly inspired delineations of the season.

Clara Deane's case is that of a girl who has unknowingly married a gambler. While getting out of town with his wife and child, he commits burglary. Caught, Clara is convicted as an accomplice. In prison she signs a release of little Nancy. Years pass, and Clara is paroled and her first thought is to find traces of her baby, now grown to womanhood and about to be married. Frank, the husband, also is paroled and when he is about to start the gentle game of blackmail, on discovering the identity of the daughter, Clara shoots him. Thus having proved her faith in forever withholding her real identity from Nancy, the picture closes, but not before Clara and Nancy have mutually come to understand one another.

No light frothy thing, this; rather is it heavy, tense drama, built on a fundamentally sound basis and acted superbly. Wynne Gibson, as Clara, does an exceptionally fine piece of restrained emotional acting that reaches those rarified heights attained by Winifred Westover in "Lummox." In fact, Miss Gibson, in her quiet, unassuming manner, grayed with the years of unjust penal servitude, and yet with eyes shining with the benign light of a loving mother, brings strongly to mind Miss Westover's similar portrayal.

As the gambling, good-for-nothing husband, Pat O'Brien is everything that could be desired, playing the part in such a manner as to engender no pangs of regret at his demise. Frances Dee, as the grown-up Nancy, is highly acceptable; yet it is the 4-year-old Nancy, played by Cora Sue Collins, who builds the foundation on which Miss Dee can carry on. Little Cora is called upon to play an emotional part that rings with a genuineness that would do credit to one many years her senior.

The inspector who takes an interest in Clara, and ultimately adopts Nancy, is played by Dudley Digges in his accustomed finished manner. The other half of Nancy's later romance is upheld by Russel Gleason, who acquits himself creditably.

Chief among the subsidiary attractions is the release of the Paramount News, in which, had it not been for the inclusion of the recent competitive drill of the high school cadets, Col. Fred Pabst's remarks on beer-for-revenue would have received the most applause. A Merrie Melody, "Moonlight for Two," and an issue in Robert L. Ripley's "Believe It or Not" series complete a highly meritorious program.

Circular Basin Favored At Chevy Chase Circle

The Fine Arts Commission has recommened the construction of a circular basin in the center of Chevy Chase Circle approximately 60 feet in diameter.

In a report addressed to Col. U. S. Grant the commission makes the recommendation, saying that "the commission also advises two rows of trees with a walk between the rows," and "there should be no sidewalks at the curb."

RKO-KEITH'S

"IS MY FACE RED." RKO-Radio picturization of an original story by Ben Markson and Allen Rivkin, featuring Ricardo Cortez and Helen Twelvetrees. Directed by William Seiter. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

First of the anticipated crop of film stories dealing with Broadway columnists who live off the mistakes of others, "Is My Face Red?" sets a fast pace. As may be judged from its title, the piece is done in a satirical vein, and never for an instant does it let up on the original idea. While it stretches plausibility now and then, it has entertainment value throughout.

Exaggerated and melodramatic as it is, the picture reveals considerable insight into the means and methods of those who have to dig deep to obtain the material from which they build daily blurbs on allegedly "prominent" people. The newspaper angles of the yarn are exceptionally well enacted with one exception. Even the columnists don't ask the boss about his private affairs to get a new lead.

Ricardo Cortez adds another fine performance to his long list, as Bill Foster, the first of the gossip columnists, imitated by scores. His chief rival is Robert Armstrong, as Maloney, on another sheet. Helen Twelvetrees is delightfully refreshing as Peggy, show girl and chief snooper for Foster, and madly in love with him. Jill Esmond, new to these eyes and strikingly like Norma Shearer in facial appearance, furnishes the opposition to Peggy's affair of the heart as Mildred Huntington, one of society's blue bloods. Another great characterization is that of Bee, Foster's secretary, played by the rapidly rising Arline Judge. ZaSu Pitts is intermittently thrown into the action as telephone operator on Foster's paper with each appearance marked by new and sparkling comedy.

The climax of this recital of the events in a columnist's life comes when he personally witnesses a speak-easy murder and scoops the town. The resultant furors goes to his head until he crosses himself in love and at work. He dares retribution for his stories and radio talks and it finally overtakes him in the form of a bullet from the gun of the speak-easy murderer. However, there is a decidedly clever finish which leaves the audience laughing, which is apparently just what the producers had in mind when the film was made. Photographically, "Is My Face Red?" is marked by many artistic touches, the best a tour of the big town's gutters, from which Foster gathered his news, and a series of shots through windows aboard an ocean liner.

Auxiliary attractions are on a high plane, headed by "Foiled Again," a comedy-melodrama which goes back to the days when pictures were in their infancy. It's a wow. Arthur Tracy, the "Street Singer," offers several numbers under the title of "Memories;" there is an Oswald, the Rabbit cartoon, called "Making Good," with plenty of laughs tucked away in it and the usual issue of Pathe News, featuring a thrilling Italian aerial carnival and West Point Cadets at drill.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ODD the way things happen. I mean like night before last, when I had just finished a paragraph for yesterday morning's column about the success being scored on the West Coast by Claudia Dell and Reginald Denny in "Blessed Event" and the telephone bell rang. Who should it be on the other end, believe it or not, but Forrest Wilson, coauthor with Manuel Seff of "Blessed Event," and individual author of the magazine story upon which the play was based.

Mr. Wilson, known familiarly to his friends as Bob—his full name is Robert Forrest Wilson—just back from Europe and in town for a day, called up in a final attempt, after several futile ones, to say some pleasant things about some pleasant things that have been said here from time to time about his play, which this column still deems one of the best of the recent comedies. In the course of conversation he dropped a valuable item or two.

To begin with, both Messrs. Wilson and Seff and the Messrs. Sidney Phillips and Harlan Thompson, who produced "Blessed Event," profess to be well satisfied with the play's record on the season. It was enthusiastically received in its tryout tour and subsequently scored something like 115 performances on Broadway—not bad for a season like the last. More important at this juncture, perhaps, is the fact that the columnar comedy is a riot in stock. Mr. Wilson expects Miss Dell and Mr. Denny to exceed the guaranteed twelve weeks of the play on the coast; Roger Pryor, who created the role of Alvin Roberts, the gossip columnist, is playing it with high success in Denver and will tour the road with it in the fall, and an increasing demand is being manifested for rentals in all parts of the country.

Contrary to prevalent impression, the film version of "Blessed Event," with Lee Tracy in the stellar role, has been completed by the Warner Brothers and is ready for national release, according to Mr. Wilson. Since the first thing he was asked to do upon his return from abroad was to O. K. the picture's release, he should know!

That European jaunt of his, by the way, was for purposes of whipping the script for a new musical piece into shape. The musical is in preparation for production in Chicago next year during the World's Exposition to be held along the Lake Front in Grant Park. If it does as well in Chicago in 1932 as "America" and "Ali Baba or the Cave of the Forty Thieves," the hits of World's Columbian Exposition year, did in 1893, Mr. Wilson will find the bother about his income tax greatly magnified!

There are other plays in the back of the Wilson mind, too, some of which may be dashed off here in Washington. An old newspaperman himself once, to coin a phrase, Bob is coming back shortly to stay maybe as long as two days instead of one.

A print of the exclusive pictures of the Dick Shikat-Ed "Strangler" Lewis championship wrestling match—rasslin' to you, fan—held in New York Thursday night, is expected to arrive in Washington this morning by special plane.

The film will be shown exclusively at Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater as an added feature of the program of supplementary short subjects, beginning today.

As there is no law prohibiting the interstate transportation of wrestling films, as there foolishly and contradictorily is with regard to fight films, the subject is complete, presenting actual ringside pictures in sound of the entire bout, which was staged for the benefit of the New York City Baby Milk Fund.

Is Mr. Londos in the house?

Bos'n Charles Warren McClintock calls up in a pet and vigorously denies the libelous implication published in this column that Capt. Francois Felippe Morse was paid a substantial sum to receive him back aboard the good ship Frantic after a week-end outing that lasted twelve days! The boatswain avers that he was sent for to take charge of the galley and thus prevent Capt. Morse's slow death from starvation.

So we accepted his invitation to swim out and sample a mess of his boiled beef with hot horseradish sauce. And it better be good!

Bos'n McClintock was not barren of useful items, either, any more than Bob Wilson was.

Having recently served as the literary harbinger of her professional activities in the Middle West, Mr. McClintock was privy to the fact that Miss Helen Hayes, Washington's favorite star, is at the moment aboard the S. S. Bremen on the high seas, bound for New York, after a week on the other side, divided between London and Paris.

Upon landing in New York, Miss Hayes will board a plane for Hollywood, without even stopping to catch her breath. Her next picture is due to go into work June 23 on the West Coast.

Amos 'n' Andy, otherwise those versatile minstrels, the Messrs. Gosden and Correll will be at home this afternoon at 4:30 in suite 500-E at the Shoreham for purposes of being interviewed by the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the press. Oh-oh!

They came, they sawed and tooted and they conquered!

That, so far, seems to be the record of Bert Milan and his boys on the newly opened Arlington Roof. This broadcasting and recording orchestra, playing its first Washington engagement, has caught on like nobody's business and is being toasted in Grade A ginger ale and sparkling mineral water by all those who appreciate dynamic leadership and acute showmanship in putting over the more tantalizing of the day's popular tunes.

Bert Milan is as fast in his chosen field as Clyde used to be in center—or am I taking liberties with your age?

DANCE IS PLANNED AT WOODLAND BEACH

Party Tonight Only One of Numerous Social Events at Post Resort.

If it is a pleasant spot in which to locate a summer home for yourself and your family that you are seeking—the answer is a trip to Woodland Beach over the week-end.

Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland, is rapidly becoming the mecca for Washingtonians who wish to have a quiet place in which to spend their short and long vacations.

Just 32 miles from the Capital in a beautiful section of Maryland, it offers bathing, boating and fishing with a number of community activities which will appeal to all. There will be a dance tonight in the clubhouse and those who have cottages on the tract are constantly entertaining their friends at delightful affairs.

More than 200 cottages are already on the ground at Woodland Beach with many other lot owners planning the erection of summer homes this season. It is so easy to buy at the Beach that no one can afford to miss this opportunity. A down payment of $9 followed by monthly installments of $3.50 will take care of the original purchase. The only added cost is the price of a subscription to The Washington Post, something everyone would want anyway.

Take a spin out to the Beach today or tomorrow and have one of the Beach representatives show you some of the choice locations still available. Follow Defense highway to Camp Parole, turning right there into Maryland State highway No. 2 across South River and then left or to Mayo road which leads directly to the clubhouse.

Recipes Necessary for Week-end Plans.

TODAY, as usual, we must confine our comments to the minimum, for Saturday's column is always bulging with recipes pertinent to the week-end needs. So here they are, and may the week-end prove a delightful respite from the usual weekly routine.

Fresh Fruit Cup.

2 oranges
1 grapefruit
2 bananas
1 apple
½ cupful white grapes
Scant ¼ cupful lemon juice
1 cupful confectioners' sugar

Remove pulp from oranges and grapefruit. Slice bananas and peel and cube apple. Arrange fruit in sherbet glasses, sprinkle with sugar and lemon juice and chill for one hour. When ready to serve, decorate the tops with white grapes.

Rolled Shoulder of Veal with Vegetable Sauce.

Bone and stuff a five-pound shoulder of veal. Roll and tie in shape. Cut a quarter pound of fat salt pork in pieces and try out in frying pan. Wipe the meat, sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour and brown in the pork fat. Place in roasting pan with two tablespoonfuls each of diced carrots, turnips, onion and celery. Also add salt and pepper, two sprigs of thyme and three cupfuls of boiling water. Cover and bake in slow oven from twenty-five to thirty minutes to the pound, basting occasionally. When done remove meat and make a gravy of the meat juices and vegetables in the pan. Sufficient water should be kept in the pan to prevent vegetables from burning.

Cherry Pie.

1 quart cherries (after stoning)
½ to 1 cupful granulated sugar
1 tablespoonful flour
1½ teaspoonfuls cinnamon

Line pie pan with pastry and brush over with slightly beaten egg white. Add stoned cherries and sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and flour. Cover with a top crust, folding it back under the edge of the lower crust on the edge of pie pan. Then, with the thumb, flute the two edges together. Bake in a hot oven for first five minutes, then reduce heat to moderate to finish baking.

Plain Pastry.

1½ cupfuls flour
½ cupful shortening
½ teaspoonful salt
3 to 4 tablespoonfuls ice water

Have all the ingredients, the mixing bowl and utensils as cold as possible. Sift the flour and salt together. Cut in the shortening with two knives, leaving it in thin slices or small pieces to give the desired flakiness. Add sufficient ice water to hold the mixture together. Handle quickly and roll out lightly, taking from the bowl only half the mixture at a time. Prick the top crust to permit the steam to escape, thus preventing sogginess.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—I don't care for hot milk. Would cocoa be all right instead? I am very busy reducing my weight and getting along very nicely. It isn't nearly so hard as I thought it would be and I feel so very much better. You have no idea!

Hoping to hear from you soon,
HULDA.

But I have an idea, Hulda—you would be surprised—and am just as glad as can be to hear the good news. Keep it up, my dear, and don't ever run any possible risk of losing your precious sylph-like figure. It is a far too dear and hard-earned possession for that.

About the cocoa, it would really be best to avoid it while you are still overweight. Both chocolate and cocoa have too many calories for those who must watch their diets. One tablespoonful of cocoa powder contains about 40 calories. Made with half milk and half water, one cupful contains 150 calories; made with all milk, one cupful contains 200 calories. There is a cocoa powder on the market, however, which may be used, even while reducing, if desired. It has a low fat content, and is, therefore, the best form for those counting their calories. Or, if you wish to avoid coffee, which, by the way, if taken in moderation by one in good health, should not be harmful, why not substitute one of the cereal beverages, or the special coffee from which almost all of the drug caffein has been removed? Coffee, itself, you know, is not fattening. It is the sugar and cream used which spell disaster to those overweight.

Do not neglect your pint of milk each day. It is very essential if you are to reduce safely and sanely. Just be sure to remove the cream, that is all. Or, if you like substitute buttermilk, which is so very refreshing and appetizing, especially in hot summer weather.

MRS. SARA HOLLAND WINS RECIPE PRIZE

"Cart-Wheel Fruit Salad" Brings Her $5 Award in Weekly Contest.

One of those creations which are excellent if they taste as well as they look was awarded this week's $5 Post recipe prize.

In other words, this week's prize went to a formula for a dish, the primary appeal of which is visual and not gustatory.

The recipe was submitted by Mrs. Sara G. Holland, of 1619 H street southeast. It is called "Cart-wheel Fruit Salad."

However, Mrs. Holland's salad should be as delightful to the tongue as it is to the eye. The recipe follows:

Bananas, romaine, cantaloupe, sliced oranges.

Cut 6 or 8 bananas in halves. Place each half on a crisp romaine salad-leaf, and at the base of each leaf a slice of orange. Arrange the leaves in cartwheel design on a glass platter. In the center of the wheel, pile cantaloupe balls, cut with a potato scoop. Garnish with parsley and serve with mayonnaise. All ingredients purchased at Sanitary Grocery Co.

A LOBSTER SERVICE.
(Honorable Mention.)

Select live broiled lobster from your Atlantic & Pacific store.

Cut live broiled lobsters in pieces and mix with Gold Medal salad dressing (Sanitary Stores). Place on a bed of shredded ice cold lettuce; around one side alternate slices of tomato and cucumber; around the other half of the salad place asparagus tips in a slanting position, with a radish rose in between the tips. Decorate the tops of the salad with sliced hard-boiled egg and stuffed olives.

This lobster service goes well with creamed new potatoes and buttered new peas, hot biscuit or Parker House rolls, fresh strawberry gelatin and a good cup of Sanico coffee.

MRS. CHARLES C. KENNON.
3120 Thirty-eighth street northwest.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Sugar at 4 Cents a Pound Reminds Housewives That Grocery Prices of 30 Years Ago Prevail Now; Huckleberries Begin Arriving.

Those of us who can remember being sent by our mothers to a nearby grocery with less than $1 with which to buy 5 pounds of sugar, a dozen of eggs, a pound of butter and perhaps a little meat or some potatoes are getting along in our thirties. For it has been approximately 30 years since a dollar could buy enough important food to fill the market basket.

Reminiscing with a local marketer over those days of trudging to the grocery for our mothers, the Meanderer became so interested in the realization that those 30-year-ago prices are today's prices that she left unguarded the fact that her years are nigh onto 40. How much more interested could your Meanderer be in studying the Washington markets, Mrs. Housewives?

The manager of one of a group of well-known groceries, who is only slightly "nigher" onto 40 than is the Meanderer, is selling the food from his shelves at almost exactly what was asked for the same food in his boyhood, he declares. "We sold sugar for less than 4 cents a pound last week," he said. "I'm sure that good sugar has not sold for less than 5 cents a pound for 30 years." Here the marketer demonstrated what he meant by "good sugar." He opened one of the 10-pound bags that sold under 4 cents a pound and lifted out a bit of the sugar. It ran from his hand freely, in dry, lumpless state. "When sugar crystals stick together and do not run freely, you may be sure there is something mixed with the sugar to make more bulk or weight. Frequently cheap sugar is not pure sugar."

Twelve pounds of flour for 25 cents was another of the surprising values in this low-price shop. "I know who mills this flour, I know how it is milled and what kind of wheat is used in the flour," the marketer said. "The housewife will be completely satisfied with it." Some other foods in this shop in central Washington, on which prices are lower than for more than a quarter of a century, are butter, 21 cents; coffee, 15 cents a pound; eggs, guaranteed for freshness, 15 to 17 cents, and vinegar, 15 cents for a half gallon.

Another marketer, his white hair showing that he passed the 41-year mark a number of years ago, did some reminiscing for the Meanderer, also. Thirty years ago this marketer sold foods in a shop on Louisiana avenue, and the foods bore almost exactly the price labels that the same foods bear in his present shop.

The best of fresh peas are in short pods, they are small peas of a clear, bright-green color, according to a dealer in peas by the carload. This dealer, who sells vegetables and fruits in the big Southwest wholesale district, had received and sold two carloads of peas, the best of the season, on the morning the Meanderer visited his market. By the bushel the peas sold for from $1 to $1.75. A bushel contains approximately 28 pounds.

Huckleberries are the newest arrivals in the fruit market. They sell for 25 cents a quart, or slightly less. Plums and apricots are among the newer arrivals, too, selling for 25 cents a dozen.

A green tomato chutney pickle from London, labeled "British best," is found in a big downtown market. This relish should have an appeal in the summer menu featuring cold meat cuts. Near this relish jar in the market stand was an offering of three miniature bottles of meat sauces in one package. In the small bottles were Worcestershire, catsup and a thick meat sauce.

Strawberries have taken an upward trend, with crates selling for more than $2. A crate of exceptionally good berries, large and sweet, cost $2.50 in a Southwest terminal market.

A curiosity for the gardener the Meanderer found in one market was a water lily, selling for 10 cents each, three for 25 cents. Any home gardener can cultivate these water lilies in the home garden pool, or in a mere bucket of water. The lily if immersed, will keep green through the summer and bear pink, yellow or purple flowers.

Probably the lowest price ever asked in Washington for sweet cider was nine cents for a half gallon, noted in a certain market in central Washington.

Honorable Mention.

Each week I look forward to the Food page and the fine recipes it contains. This week I was happy to find that the Sanitary and Piggly Wiggly stores advertised Gold Medal Bisquick, because I want to pass on to you the most delicious quick cinnamon buns you ever ate. They just melt in your mouth and can be made in a jiffy.

Quick Cinnamon Rolls.

2 cups Gold Medal Bisquick
¾ cup milk

Mix well by beating dough with spoon for 30 seconds. Turn dough on to lightly floured board. Knead gently to smooth up. Roll out in oblong shape to about ¼-inch thick then spread with the following:

Filling.

⅓ cup Crisco
1 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg yolk
½ cup chopped nuts from M. B. Frazier

Cream Crisco with sugar and cinnamon. Add egg yolk and chopped nuts. Spread over above dough. Roll up and cut into slices ½-inch thick. Place cut side down in a deep baking pan rubbed with Crisco. Bake in a moderate oven fifteen minutes.

OUR DAILY FOOD

By COLONEL GOODBODY

WHOLE-MEAL SANDWICHES.

LET'S turn the calendar back 150 years, or more—back to the eighteenth century, when the reckless Earl of Sandwich was making history. The Fourth Earl of Sandwich loved the gaming table; he was so passionately fond of cards that he couldn't tear himself away—no, not even long enough to satisfy the pangs of hunger. So, the story goes, the English earl ordered a slice of ham to be placed between two pieces of bread and brought to him.

And thus the first sandwich was created.

Now I'm going to describe two menus with hearty sandwiches. I'm sure that either one of them would have satisfied the English earl.

The first menu includes: Minced ham sandwiches, French toasted, cole slaw, sliced oranges, coconut cookies and coffee.

To make the minced ham sandwiches, you mix some ham, minced ham, with enough white sauce to moisten thoroughly. Season it with a little finely chopped onion or green pepper, or with Worcestershire sauce or ketchup. Then make your sandwiches. Now they're ready for the French toasting. Dip them into a mixture of beaten egg and milk (one egg to one cup of milk). Then brown them in butter, in a frying pan. And serve them immediately while they're sizzling hot.

Here's a second sandwich menu! Toasted cheese, tomato and bacon sandwiches; pickles and olives; raisin spice cake; tea or coffee.

To make this sandwich, you arrange slices of tomato on buttered bread. Then cover with thinly sliced American cheese, and over the top place two or three slices of bacon. Toast under a broiler flame until the bacon is crisp and the cheese partially melted. Serve immediately.

One of the most important things in making sandwiches—besides the makings, of course—is a good sharp knife. A blunt-edged tool won't make neat slices of bread and meat, tomatoes, cucumbers and so on.

My staff made a list of condiments to have on hand for sandwiches during the picnic season. Prepared mustard comes in small, medium and large jars. The large jars are really the best bargains, but mustard dries out, so if you don't use much of it, better get the smaller jars. Then you can buy salad dressing and sandwich spreads. Most stores have sandwich spread made of salad dressing mixed with sweet pickles.

Then, of course, there are the old standbys used for sandwich fillings: Boiled corned beef, boiled ham, deviled ham and tongue. You can get ham in tins, pickled lamb's tongue in glass jars and chicken for sandwiches in both tins and glass—all ready to use.

WHEAT PRICE HIGHER ON CROP ESTIMATES

Chicago, June 10 (A.P.).—With buying demand augmented, wheat prices made their best response late today to sensationally bullish crop figures issued at Washington after trading had ended yesterday.

Buying enthusiasm earlier had been held in check as a result of apparent chilling indifference shown by the Liverpool market regarding the Washington summary of crop prospects in this country, although the official estimates of combined winter and spring domestic wheat yields for 1932 indicated barely enough for home requirements. Toward the end of the day, though, indications that the New York Stock Market was reflecting in wheat values gave increased confidence to buyers and the grains all wound up at virtually the day's top.

Wheat closed firm, 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents higher than yesterday's finish, corn, ½ to 1 cent up, oats, ½ to ¾ cent advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Crop Report Rules Trade.

Most wheat traders had expected that the Government estimate of 1932 domestic winter wheat production would be as large if not larger than the May official forecast. The 30,000,000 bushels reduction from the forecast was a big surprise, but temporarily the market effect was minimized not only by the action of Liverpool quotations, but also by opinions expressed in some quarters that the forecast was an underestimate, and final returns would be higher. Subsequently, the fact developed that the drop in the winter wheat estimate was due largely to a poorer promise east of the Mississippi than had been expected.

Actual heavy abandonment of winter wheat acreage during May in the hard wheat districts west was also a strengthening influence toward the last. Special notice was taken that the probable yield in Kansas this season had been curtailed to 72,254,000, the smallest total for that State since 1917 and less than a third of the 1931 harvest, with the crop condition only 50 per cent of normal.

Another stimulus to buyers was a statement from a leading private expert that the domestic spring wheat official crop condition figures were below a ten-year average, and gave little basis for predicting a large yield. About 600,000 bushels of North American wheat, chiefly Canadian, was taken today for shipment overseas.

Corn and oats followed the changes in wheat values.

ACTION IN CONGRESS INSPIRITS BUSINESS

Retail Trade Stages Rise; Observers See Confidence Begin to Return.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—The leading weekly mercantile reviews agree that business sentiment turned considerably more cheerful during the past week on the constructive developments in Washington and in the banking world. A considerable improvement in the volume of retail trade throughout the country was the principal encouraging development of the week.

The upward trend, said Bradstreet's, was in seasonal lines, due in large part to favorable weather. In addition there has been evidence of returning confidence on the part of business men and the purchasing public, brought about largely by the knowledge that Congress has made a definite beginning in the balancing of the budget.

The rise in retail transactions, Bradstreet's observed, is regarded generally as a hopeful augury for the future. Stocks are at a minimum and must be replaced, and, taking advantage of this, wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers are busily preparing their lines and sending out representatives to the sources of distribution in the expectation that the growth will continue.

Dun's review commented with equal optimism, declaring that "constructive measures carrying potentialities for business expansion are making more progress each week." This review added that hesitancy is less in evidence in some directions, and that further confidence has been contributed by the maintenance of improvement in the banking situation and continued betterment of credit conditions.

The encouraging effect of these trends, it was stated, is reflected in slightly heavier retail trade.

Chain Store Sales.

Sales of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for the four weeks ended May 28 totaled $72,432,886 compared with $81,053,595, a decrease of 10.8 per cent. For the thirteen weeks ended May 28 sales showed a decrease of 13.7 per cent as compared with the same period last year.

The company's tonnage sales for the four weeks ended May 28 amounted to 437,687 tons against 443,449 tons in the same period of 1931, a decrease of 1.3 per cent. For the thirteen weeks' period tonnage sales were off 4.9 per cent.

New Financing.

New State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals $37,665,102, according to the Daily Bond Buyer. This amount includes financing by 46 States and municipalities, with Illinois, Maine and New Jersey and the City of Buffalo, N. Y., accounting for the major portion.

New bond offerings in this district during the past week totaled $6,260,673, compared with $31,800,000 in the preceding week and $7,184,000 in the corresponding week of last year.

Construction Awards.

Heavy engineering construction contracts awarded during the week ended June 6 totaled $44,000,000, the largest weekly total reported this year, according to the Engineering-News Record. The business was swelled by Federal Government awards of $21,000,000. Heavy construction contracts from the first of the year to date total $513,000,000 as compared with $1,293,000,000 reported for the same period last year.

Why Stocks Went Down.

A clew to the liquidation of the first three days of the week appeared in the consolidated weekly condition statement of the New York City banks for the week ended Wednesday night, showing a drop of $78,000,000 in loans against security collateral, including both the loans to brokers and dealers and those to individuals. This was widely interpreted as indicating that the rally of late last week invited further liquidation of impaired loans.

Bankruptcies Lower.

Dun's insolvency index for the first week of June stood at 148.3, compared with 162.0 for May, and 158.0 for April.

Earnings and Dividends.

Directors of the Singer Manufacturing Co. today declared a dividend of $2 on the capital stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 10. In announcing its action the board did not designate the dividend as a quarterly payment, although it was similar to the payments ordered three and six months ago.

The Imperial Oil Co., Ltd., controlled by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, reports for the year ended December 31, 1931, consolidated net income of $18,226,894 after income taxes and other charges, equal to 68 cents a share on 26,557,496 no par shares of capital stock. This compares with $19,020,360, or 71 cents a share, in 1930.

Davenport Hosiery Mills today declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, placing it on a $1 annual basis, compared with $2 previously. The dividend is payable July 1 to stock of record June 20.

Directors of the Electric Autolite Co. declared a dividend of 30 cents on the common stock. Previously the company paid $1 quarterly. The dividend is payable July 1 to stock of record June 22.

C. O. Miniger, president of the company, said, after the meeting, that indications are that earnings for the first half of the year, after preferred dividends, will be in excess of $1 a common share and that earnings for the third quarter under present indications will substantially exceed those of either the first or second quarter.

Directors of the National Steel Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the capital stock, payable June 30 to stock of record June 20.

Directors of the company were informed by E. T. Weir, chairman, that earnings so far this year had exceeded the dividend requirements and that the financial condition of the company showed considerable improvement over the condition on December 31 last, when the ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 4.7 to 1.

Interest Rates Reduced On All Foreign Deposits

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Effective next Monday, the rate of interest paid by banks here on deposits of foreign central banks and governments will be reduced from 1 per cent to one-half of 1 per cent, according to a ruling by the informal committee of bankers, which governs interest rates on foreign deposits.

At the same time interest on all foreign time deposits will be lowered from 1½ per cent to 1 per cent.

As a result of this reduction, which is the second cut in foreign deposit rates in three weeks, foreign central banks and governments will lose for the first time their preferential standing as depositors, as against other foreign deposits.

MARKET COMMENT

Robert C. Jones & Co.—We are reliably informed that the Young economic committee, who were responsible for organizing the bankers syndicate to support the bond market, are going to organize a pool to support the commodity markets. Strength and stability in commodity prices is requisite to business recovery and such a development would also be highly constructive for the securities market. There is also persistent talk that Calvin Coolidge is going to be appointed to succeed Mr. Dawes as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.—With passage of the bonus bill by the House likely early next week and with the date of adjournment or recess of Congress unknown, it is hard to find reasons for anything better than dullness and irregularity.

Waggaman, Brawner & Co.—The market was strong Friday with increased volume on the advance. The strength developing without any news was most impressive. The Federal Reserve bought $69,000,000 additional Government bonds last week and their bond buying policy must eventually have its effect. Banks will be forced to put idle funds to work.

Westheimer & Co.—The market is governed largely at present by technical conditions. Covering of shorts regarded as largely responsible for today's strengthening of prices, and outlook appears fairly favorable for continued firmness.

The following reviews of yesterday's financial markets abroad are from the regular European service of the Associated Press:

London—Home rails, gilt-edged securities and foreign bonds developed further weakness on realizing. Industrial issues, Kaffirs and oil shares were bright spots. The closing was uncertain.

Paris—After a steady opening, prices on the bourse weakened on an erroneous report of a failure on the London stock exchange. Trading in rentes was heavy. Bank shares and international issues were weak, and Royal Dutch and Suez issues steady. The market closed heavy.

Berlin—Trading on the boerse was quiet and the close was generally unchanged.

F. O. B. Gasoline Prices At Refinerise Increase

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—The average f. o. b. refinery price of United States motor gasoline in nine refinery districts of the United States on June 4 was 5.887 cents per gallon, an increase of 0.4 per cent from the 5.861 cents ruling a week before and higher by 67.8 per cent than the 3.508 cents of June 6, 1931, J. Edward Jones research department reports.

The weighted average price of crude oil at the wells in twelve production districts was $0.860 per barrel against $0.858 in the previous week and higher by 125.1 per cent from the figure of June 6, 1931.

Ship Building Declines.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—In all maritime nations shipbuilding activities have declined sharply during the past year, and in the United States tonnage on the ways of domestic yards on April 1 was 57.4 per cent smaller than that of a year previous, the Standard Statistics Co. reports.

Machinery Trade Quiet.

EUROPE'S GOLD SAGS AS DOLLARS MOUNT

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—European gold currencies, with the single exception of the Swiss franc, sagged well below their gold points today. The decline, which conversely was reflected in a spirited advance by the dollar, was general, virtually all European and South American currencies yielding ground to the dollar.

The action of the foreign markets coincided with indications furnished in recent New York Federal Reserve Bank gold statements that the exodus of metal from this country to Europe now is ebbing. It also tended to confirm reports received by Wall street banks, that European central banks had largely completed their programs of calling back their gold balances.

The French franc reacted 9-16 points to 3.93 13-16 cents for cables, which compares with the franc's gold point of 3.94½ cents. The Belgian belga reacted ½ point to 13.94½ cents, against its gold point of 14 cents. Holland guilders yielded 1 point to 40.48 cents against their gold point of 40.508 cents. The Swiss franc reacted 3¼ points to 19.52½ cents, but still ruled above its gold point of 19.49 cents.

Gold exports totaled $26,608,000 for the day, but $13,925,800 of this represented shipment of gold previously set aside for that purpose and not counted in the American stock. Gold losses of the past two days have been substantially under those of the preceding fortnight.

Brokers Cut Fees For Small Buyers

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Brokers who specialize in handling security transactions for the small investor have cut their commission charges to induce small buyers to enter the market more liberally.

The new commission is 12½ cents a share on stock bought or sold for "odd lot" customers, against 25 cents previously.

Under the new rate, a buyer of a small block of $100 par value stock selling at $20 a share pays the odd lot broker 12½ cents a share plus a Federal tax of 4 cents and a State tax of like amount. When he sells, he pays another 12½-cent commission.

On this basis, a small investor who takes a round trip in a security transaction pays 25 cents a share to the "odd lot" broker and 8 cents in taxes, or 33 cents in all.

Under the former rate, rescinded on June 6, the small buyer paid no tax. The broker paid the tax, but to take care of it the customer was charged a commission of 25 cents a share on his purchase plus 12½ cents on his sale, or 37½ cents for the round trip.

WALL STREET—AND BEYOND

Markets and Business in Review and Outlook

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

The Case of Mr. Brookhart.

THE defeat of the Hon. Smith Wildman Brookhart in the Iowa primary does not signalize, unfortunately, the sudden end of quackery, humbug and garrulous vulgarity in national politics. But it does signalize the beginning of the end, and as such it stands as the most inspiring evidence of the year of America's slowly returning economic sanity. It signalizes that the heyday of the fake and the fraud is past and that swinish buffoonery henceforward is on the spot. It signalizes that the great body of responsible citizens throughout the country who pay, and pay, and pay are awake at last to the ultimate cost of professional demagoguery and are determined for the future that those who traffic in human travail shall no more have standing in the councils of honorable men. With the ever-bellowing Mr. Heflin, who was retired some two years ago, Mr. Brookhart now takes his final place in history—as the rainbow in the political heavens which promises that, given two more seasons of the primary, the United States Senate shall be without a single professional clown, without a single irresponsible demagogue, without a single member who may be judged, on sight, to be treasonably incompetent.

• • • •

ANYONE who ever has seen the good people of Iowa at work, at play and at prayer will certify that Mr. Brookhart was not rejected for the mere fact that he was utterly lacking in those qualities of spirit which might have enabled him to represent the State in the Senate of the United States. Out West they have a sort of unwritten law that so long as a fellow makes anything like a faithful effort to live up to his responsibilities he shall have the aid and comfort of his neighbors, the counsel of his betters and the charitable good will even of those upon whom his shortcomings bear most heavily.

So deeply rooted is this noble tradition in the lands beyond the Mississippi that when, a generation ago, a great oracle set out to epitomize the spirit of the American people he took from the folklore of the Corn Belt that majestic aphorism, "A man may be down, but he is never out."

• • • •

THUS, Mr. Brookhart's timely and wholly propitious retirement from public life can not be regarded as in any sense a personal affront to either the man or his human capacities. He remains one of the best rifle shots in the United States. He remains, beyond question, a loyal and devoted citizen of both Iowa and the great Republic beyond. And he remains, we hope, a taxpayer who will contribute his even share to the liquidation of the bill America recently has received as her assessment for a decade of disgraceful Federal extravagance enforced by congressional blocs—in which Senator Brookhart was a conspicuous figure.

Not often in national affairs is it so easy to distinguish the personal from the public aspects of a gentleman's career. But in dealing with the great State of Iowa no one could make the mistake of presuming that anything less than a revitalized devotion to the welfare of the Nation accounts for Mr. Brookhart's defeat. He was turned out, not because he was unrestrained in his public utterances, not because he was flamboyant in his promises, not because he was utterly irresponsible in his quest for economic panaceas and nostrums. He was turned out, rather, because he was disloyal to the party whose name he capitalized in his race for office, because he was oblivious to the first needs of his country in a time of grave crisis, because he was unmindful of the finer traditions of the honorable Senate, and because he was ever in league with that dwindling little band of nondescripts on Capitol Hill who everlastingly are "playing politics with human misery."

They were a by-product of the war, as inevitable as broken men, high prices and crushing State debts. That they are beginning to pass marks an epochal date in history.

Peace upon them all.

And for Mr. Brookhart, a respectful adieu.

With you, sir, a distressing era passes.

New Financing Lower.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Excluding domestic and Canadian municipal bond issues, new public financing in the United States for the first five months of this year aggregated $229,078,000, according to Otto P. Schwarzchild, president of the National Statistical Service, Inc. This amount, which includes both stocks and bonds, compares with $1,800,697,000 for the same period in 1931 and $2,689,080,000 for the first five months of 1930.

Paramount Deposits Bonds.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—The Paramount Broadway Corporation, subsidiary of Paramount Publix, has delivered $125,000 of its first mortgage 5½ per cent sinking fund bonds to the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., as trustee, to meet sinking fund requirements for July 1. Retirement of the bonds, which are a closed first mortgage lien on the Paramount Building, reduces the amount outstanding to $9,000,000 against an original issue of $10,000,000.

POPULAR CRITICISMS OF BANKERS SCORED

Special to The Washington Post.

Hot Springs, Va., June 10.—Assailing the current popular chorus which charges that the bankers of the Nation have been unnecessarily drastic in reducing credits during the last two years, Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, told the annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association today that only a widespread misconception of the banker's function is responsible for the minor note of complaint heard throughout the country.

Those who understand the basic principles of banking and credit, he said, never are found among the critics of genuine financial security.

"In the troublesome times through which we are now going," he said, "it is inevitable that the criticism should be severe. A year ago, when bank failures were prevalent, the banker was charged with lending too much money; today, with practically no bank failures, the banker is represented as being the chief devil of the hoarders."

Thorpe Urges Cooperation.

Mr. Thorpe was the principal speaker at the second day's session of the convention, which is attended by some 200 members of the District of Columbia banking fraternity. He urged business leaders and all citizens "who are long-sighted in thinking of their community" to cooperate with the banks in every way possible to conserve and develop soundly their credit facilities.

To the bankers themselves, he suggested a systematic program of heart-to-heart educational advertising, to acquaint the entire community with the fundamentals of modern credit operations.

"It is plain that the first duty of a bank is to its depositors," Mr. Thorpe continued. "In using funds at his disposal and extending credit, he has always to keep before him this first responsibility. This is the way in which our banks maintain their position in our economic life as our greatest bulwark of public confidence. That is elementary."

Credits Await Demand.

There would be more bank credit today if there were more demand for it from sound and solvent business enterprises, the speaker said in reviewing the recent operations of the Federal Reserve Board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"Business isn't eager to borrow for purposes of expansion unless it sees a possibility of increased activity. I have no doubt that the General Electric Co., for example, could borrow very easily, but I doubt very much if the General Electric Co. is eager to borrow at this time.

"There is another factor that is making it difficult for the banks to serve their communities with credit, and that is the increasing control of banks by Government, with a corresponding substitution of abstract principles for experienced banking judgment upon credit risks.

Advertising Is Advised.

"If I were a banker today and was accused of hoarding, I would set out to clear up the misapprehension and misunderstanding of a bank's proper function. I would use advertising space, I would clear up the mystery of banking. I would say something like this, and say it over and over again:

"'Credit is simply confidence, one man in another, that he will keep his word, and, what is important just now, that conditions are such that he will be able to keep his word.

"'A bank is the highest development of this credit and confidence in the community.

"'A bank is the repository of that part of the Nation's credit and confidence represented by the community. A strong bank indicates a healthy business life.'"

SOUND BANKING!

MERLE THORPE,

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Fri.	Thurs.
Number of advances	307	167
Number of declines	90	241
Stocks unchanged	110	130
Total issues traded	507	538

Stocks.

Wheat, foreign exchange and favorable commercial reviews brightened the general outlook and the market made the most of the news, which more than offset the steel tonnage report. The 90-stock average advanced 2.7 points, which was better than last week's best day. Auburn went up 22 points on a short squeeze and Case was up 8½ net on the same performance.

Bonds.

Rails showed some wholesome advances, but the day was mostly a standoff with the averages practically unchanged. The undertone, however, was decidedly better.

Curb.

The list advanced 1 to 5 points, with the industrials most active. Out of line, Quaker Oats was off 13½ points to a new low at 55.

Wheat.

Liverpool rejected Thursday's official crop report for a time, but the bulls prevailed in the end and the Chicago market closed at advances of 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents.

Cotton.

July dipped to 4.91 early, but soon stiffened in response to the improvement in grains. The close was 10 to 12 points up.

U. S. Steel Orders Drop 149,764 Tons

May Backlog Decrease Is Normal; Capacity Run, 20 Per Cent.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation dropped 149,764 tons in May to a total of 2,177,162 tons. This was the fourteenth consecutive monthly decrease and established another record low.

A decrease in the backlog during May, is normal. For the past eight years the shrinkage in that month has averaged around 250,000 tons, the largest loss occurring in 1924, when the decline was 580,000 tons.

Operations of the corporation last month were about 20 per cent of capacity.

Not since March, 1931, has there been an increase in unfilled tonnage. April of this year showed a decline of 145,487 tons.

STOCK PRICES RALLY ON BETTER OUTLOOK

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Stocks recovered their balance today and then stepped forward briskly.

After early uneasiness, the market started an advance which gained considerable strength in the final hour, when Auburn Auto was winding up its day with a 22-point rise at expense of shorts. Net gains of 1 to 3 points or more were general. Several stocks whose technical positions offered splendid opportunities for run-ins of recent sellers responded more briskly. Volume rose to 1,270,180 shares, the largest total this week.

Several incentives for the rally were available and the market probably used all of them for leverage. Wheat, too, took heart from the new Government crop estimate. Dollars showed substantial strength, especially against French francs. Weekly mercantile reviews reported gains in retail trade. And last—but not least, as Wall street views it—there was a feeling that Congress was nearing the end of its long grind and might finish in another week.

Recent Rally Exceeded.

By averaging 2.7 points higher, stocks improved on their best performance of the recent rally, which was last Saturday's 2.6 rise. A large proportion of the turnover was in relatively few shares, but all groups profited by the reversal.

Farm implement issues made a brave showing. Case, in particular, staging a revolt against the shorts. It was up 8½ net. International Harvester's rise was 2½.

U. S. Steel brushed aside another poor unfilled tonnage statement and closed 2¼ higher. American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Peoples Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Safeway Stores, American Tobacco B, Allied Chemical and Liggett & Myers B gained 3 points or so. Du Pont, American Can, National Biscuit, Loew's, General Foods, Woolworth, North American and Westinghouse were in the 2-point class. Coca Cola's rally was 5½. Western Union recovered after making a new low.

Lower Interest Effects.

Reports that France and other countries planned to complete reparation of American balances within the next ten days went unconfirmed here, but their removal is a matter of small importance to bankers. By lowering interest rates allowed on deposits of foreign central banks and governments New York banking institutions, in effect, invited withdrawal of all such funds. They are not to receive the preferential treatment in regard to interest which heretofore has customarily been given them.

The Steel Corporation's backlog dropped 149,764 tons in May to 2,177,162 tons. This was smaller than both the April shrinkage and the average May decline for the last eight years, but with allowance for the low operating rate in effect last month it was still sizable enough. Appearances of the figures, nevertheless, failed to affect stocks.

Dun's review of trade said constructive measures being undertaken in several directions were "making more progress each week," and that business hesitancy was less evident. Improvement in banking and credit conditions, it added, has been reflected in slightly heavier retail trade."

Bradstreet's was more optimistic than recently, saying a "fairly pronounced upturn" had been reported by its correspondents in 55 key cities.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railway Co. in its preliminary report for May shows a net operating deficit of $1,300,000 compared with an operating deficit of $195,203 last year. May gross revenues totaled $6,400,000 compared with $9,481,831 in 1931.

A quarterly dividend of 12½ cents on the capital stock of the P. G. Shattuck Co. was declared today, placing the issue on a 50-cent annual basis, compared with $1 previously. The dividend is payable July 11 to stock of record June 21. The company announced that the reduction was to bring the rate more in line with current earnings.

The Continental Baking Corporation has declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the preferred stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 20. Previously the company paid $2 quarterly.

Further Decline Noted In Kansas Wheat Crop

Topeka, Kans., June 10 (A.P.).—A further decline in the condition of the Kansas wheat crop reduced the official forecast of the total yield today to 72,254,000 bushels, the smallest since 1917, and less than a third of last year's record crop of 239,742,000 bushels.

Conditions of the crop on June 1 was rated at 50 per cent of normal, with an indicated average production of only 6.7 bushels an acre.

CROWDER HOLDS CHISOX TO 3 HITS IN 10-0 VICTORY

Nats' Veteran Is Puzzle To Sox as 7-Run Rally in 8th Inning Decides Game

Errors Aid Washington to Gain 3-Run Lead Off Sam Jones in Early Innings; Bluege Hits Homer With Two on.

Crowder in Complete Command From Outset, Scoring Eighth Win of Year; Shares Batting Honors With Spencer.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of the Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 10.—When "General" Alvin Crowder is good, he is very good indeed, and he was good against the Chicago White Sox here this afternoon, holding them to but three scattered hits and, with the aid of his mates' bludgeons, being credited with a 10-to-0 victory, his eighth to date.

Not only did Crowder pitch sensationally, never being in any trouble and holding the allen advance at second base, but he, with Catcher Roy Spencer, shared the Washington attack honors, each getting three hits. Myer and Kerr cracked out two each, with Bluege getting in the hardest lick of the game—a homer into the left-field stands in the eighth with two on, to score the last three runs of this cluster of seven.

"Sad Sam" Jones, former Nat, started on the hill for the Sox and did not prove particularly soft, only one of the three runs scored from his slants being earned. Alphonse Thomas and Fat Caraway followed him on the hill after he had given way to a pinch hitter and most of the damage was done at their expense.

Heinie Manush returned to the line-up and laced out one hit. He looked fairly spry on his feet, but favored his ailing leg and gave way on the bases in the eighth to Sam Rice, after coaching a pass.

So effective was Crowder in the first half of the game that he granted but two hits and the only reason that two of the Sox rambled as far as second base was because of Kerr's two-base error in the first canto and Selp's double to left with two dead in the fourth.

Nats Peck Away At Jones.

Meanwhile, the Nats had continually pecked away at Jones' offerings but had scored only two runs, and one of these because of one of the several "boots" charged to the natives.

Washington's first run came in the first as a result of Blue's error on Manush's hot grasser, West's single and Reynolds' useful out. A chance was passed up in the second when a walk, error and Spencer's single filled the sacks with one dead and Myer and Manush failed, but the Nats became two up in the fourth. A single by Spencer and Crowder's double accounted for this tally.

Another Washington marker came in the sixth, but it took two errors to help make it. Spencer singled and carried on to second when Hodapp let the ball get away from him, and, on Crowder's attempted suicide, Hayes dropped Berry's peg for a force play at third. Myer's infield out let the run score. Manush followed with a single, but two were left.

Berry Beats Out Roller.

With two dead in the seventh, Berry beat out a topped roller down third and, as this was the nearest thing to a rally which the Sox had enjoyed since the fourth, Fonseca sent Fothergill to hit for Jones. A looper to Manush followed.

This change brought Thomas to the peak in the Nats' eighth and his offerings were gleaned for four runs as a result of two walks, singles by Crowder, West and Kerr and a triple by Myer while he was getting two out, when he gave way to Caraway. Bluege greeted the southpaw with a homer into the left-field stands to drive two mates ahead of him, giving the Nats seven for the round.

In the Wake Of the Game

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 10.—It will be a good thing for the peace of mind of the Nats when June 15 comes and goes. This is the final trading date and trade rumors are flying so thick and fast around the Washington camp that the boys are thinking more of the possibility of being sent away than they are of playing baseball.

All have a double reason for not wanting to leave Washington. The first, of course, is that they know that no deals will be made with the Yankees or Mackmen; hence any shift involving them means that they will go to a club behind the Nats in the race, with a subsequent loss of world series cut, if any, for only the first-division clubs cash in. The other reason is that all like the Capital as a city in which to live.

The Washington club may pull another deal and, then again, it may not, but in any event the players may be expected to come down to earth and play better ball after the trading season ends.

Immediately after today's game the Nats hustled for a train headed for St. Louis, being due to arrive there late tonight. When the Browns visited Washington last month they swept a four-game series and Manager Walter Johnson and his charges are hopeful of returning the compliment in the coming set. A double-header has been listed for Sunday as a crowd teaser, with the teams idling Monday and ending the set on Tuesday. Lloyd Brown will do the Nat flinging tomorrow.

While Carl Fischer was popular with his mates it seemed to be generally agreed around the Washington camp this morning that the Nats made a good deal in trading him to the Browns for Dick Coffman.

Infielder Wes Kingdon reported here this morning. Manager Johnson immediately announcing the sending of Jimmy McLeod on option to the Springfield Club of the Eastern League. Jimmy left tonight to join his new club.

YANKEES WIN AT DETROIT IN 11TH, 8-7

DETROIT, June 10 (A.P.).—Henry George Schuble, a Detroit bench warmer until a few days ago, walloped two home runs against the New York Yankees today and made it three in two games, but his clouts were not enough to win. The Yanks came through in the eleventh inning for an 8-to-7 triumph when Earle Combs doubled and Joe Sewell singled him home after two were out.

Lou Gehrig pasted his thirteenth homer of the season and Lefty Vernon Gomez, third Yankee pitcher, was credited with his eighth straight victory and his eleventh of the season.

Red Sox Trade Russell To Cleveland Indians

Boston, June 10 (A.P.).—The Boston Red Sox management announced today it had swapped Pitcher Jack Russell to Cleveland for Pitcher Pete Jablonowski. Both are right-handers.

The move was one to bolster the swamped Red Sox, who have a clear claim to the cellar in the American League. The Sox gained a young pitcher who has been with Cleveland but three years, and Cleveland gained a hurler of seven years' experience.

Caldwell New Mid-Atlantic Champion

Winner Shoots 68 to Foe's 71; Birdies Halve 2 Holes.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ONE of the greatest, if not the greatest, final rounds in Middle Atlantic Golf Association tournament was played yesterday on the course of the Columbia Country Club, when Ernest L. Caldwell, of the Hillendale Club, Baltimore, defeated W. K. Lanman, former captain of the Yale Golf Team and now a member of the Indian Spring Club, on the sixteenth green, 4 and 2.

This recital does not tell the whole story, for Lanman, who played the course in 71 strokes, one over par, suffered his defeat at the hands of an opponent who had a card o 68, two under par. To play a course in 71 and still be beaten 4 and 2 is something phenomenal. The only event to be recalled in anything like a comparison was the final round of the Middle Atlantic tournament on the Chevy Chase course nine years ago, when Albert R. Mackenzie defeated his son, Roland R. Mackenzie, on the nineteenth hole. Yesterday's struggle was even more spectacular and thrilling.

Start of Match Not Sensational.

The beginning of the match promised to be like all other final rounds, but little more than commonplace. Lanman lost the first hole by overapproaching the green and holing out in 5 against Caldwell's 4, but the match was immediately squared when Caldwell, encountering two traps, lost the second. With the third and fourth halved in pars, Caldwell came to the front on the fifth. He pulled an almost missed drive into the rough on the left of the course, but with a remarkable iron shot carried the distant bunkers and then his third left him about 12 feet above the cup. Lanman again overapproached the green, but scored a par 5, although this was unavailing against a birdie 4 holed by his opponent. Caldwell won the sixth and seventh, Lanman unfortunately being compelled to play out of traps, and was then 3 up.

Nothing more dramatic has been seen on any course in many a day than the playing of the eighth and ninth holes. Caldwell, driving with an iron on the short eighth, reached the green and his ball rested fully 12 or 15 feet below the pin. Then Lanman, also with an iron, laid his ball so close to the cup that the gallery spontaneously shouted, "A hole in one." However, it was not an ace, although the ball was not more than 6 inches from the cup.

Caldwell, stepping on the green and carefully sighting his putt, rolled the ball into the cup for a birdie deuce and conceded his opponent's putt. This was not all. On the ninth green, which both reached with their second shots, Caldwell was at least 15 or 20 feet away. He rammed the ball in the cup for a birdie 3, whereupon Lanman, about 7 feet away, did likewise. Two consecutive holes had thus been halved in birdies.

Caldwell Has 33 for First Nine.

Lanman was out in 36, only 1 stroke over par, but he was 3 down to Caldwell, who had played the first nine in 33. With the tenth halved in par 4s, Caldwell lost the eleventh when his second shot found a trap. The crucial point of the match, however, came on the twelfth hole. Caldwell, with three putts, secured a par 5, but Lanman had a chance to win with a birdie 4, for he merely needed to hole a 4-foot putt from above the hole. He putted and missed. Then Lanman took three strokes from off the green on the thirteenth and lost, being again 3 down. On the fourteenth he sliced his drive again into the rough and his second into a trap, but played out near enough to the cup to be sure of his par 4. It proved to be a futile effort, for Caldwell, from a distance of 25 feet, putted uphill into the cup for a birdie 3 and was 4 up and 4 to play. It was the seventh one-putt green for Caldwell, whose putter seemed to bear a charmed existence. The magnet never turned to the pole with more certainty than Caldwell's ball found the bottom of the cup from every distance and from every angle.

It is true that Lanman gave another life-saving gasp when he holed out a birdie 3 for a win on the fifteenth hole, but when he lost the sixteenth to Caldwell's par 3 the match was over. The two players

U. S. CLINCHES MATCH WITH BRAZIL

Allison-Van Ryn Win Davis Cup Doubles in Easy Fashion.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., June 10 (A. P.).—Scoring a ridiculously easy victory over Brazil's best doubles pair on the new red court at Forest Hills today, the United States Davis Cup team completed a two-day conquest of the South Americans and cleared the final obstacle this side of the interzone finals at Paris July 22, 23 and 24.

Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, a slick doubles team, closed the series proper and assured Uncle Sam the championship of the Americas by overwhelming Ricardo Pernambuco and Ivo Simone, 6—1, 6—1, 6—2, in a match that required only 40 minutes to play.

Today's triumph, following on the singles victories, registered by Frank Shields and Allison yesterday, gave the United States team a string of eighteen straight matches against Canada, Mexico, Australia and Brazil on its path to Paris.

Allison and Van Ryn will have the opportunity to make it an even score tomorrow when they face Pernambuco and Simone, respectively, in the concluding singles tilts, which cannot affect the outcome of the current series.

The three members of the American squad will sail Tuesday night on the Europa to compete at Wimbledon, while the Brazilians intend to compete in several Eastern tournaments.

Browns Beat Boston As Michaels Weakens

St. Louis, June 10 (A.P.).—St. Louis made a clean sweep of a four-game series by defeating the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 3, today. The victory brought the Browns' percentage to .500.

John Michaels, a southpaw, held the Browns for six innings, but went to pieces in the seventh when St. Louis made all its runs. Kimsey relieved Hadley in the eighth for the Browns.

FREE-FOR-ALL BY DODGERS AND CUBS

Jurges and Finn Start Melee; Joined by Other Players.

NEW YORK, June 10 (U.P.).—Smoldering ill feeling between the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers flamed into a battle royal at Ebbets Field today, and the fight-loving Flatbush fans enjoyed a double treat, a good free-for-all and a 4-to-3 Brooklyn victory.

This defeat cost Chicago the lead in the National League, as the Boston Braves again climbed to the top.

The melee, which had been brewing for some time, started when Bill Jurges, Chicago shortstop, and Mickey Finn, Brooklyn third baseman, became involved in fisticuffs. Finn was one of the runners put out on a double play, completed by Jurges, in the first inning.

Woody English, Cubs' third baseman, joined the fight, and Brooklyn players swarmed out of their dugout to save Finn. The Cubs rushed in from all parts of the field and soon fists were flying in all directions.

Managers Max Carey of the Dodgers and Rogers Hornsby of the Cubs, aided Umpires Klem and Reardon in trying to halt the battle. This was accomplished after fifteen minutes of merry slugging. Finn and Jurges were put out of the game.

Sarazen Wins British Open; Sets Mark

By FRANK H. KING.

SANDWICH, England, June 10 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen, little Hercules of American links, won the 1932 British open golf championship today with a record-breaking 283 and held the American dynasty firm on Britain's golfing throne.

His 70-69-70-74 for the 72 holes shattered par on every round except the last this afternoon. He finished 13 strokes better than regulation figures for the championship layout, a long, treacherous course on the edge of the English Channel.

Such remarkable golf, leaving the galleries of home folks awed, breaking the hearts of the British-professionals who fought vainly once more to stem an American tide that has swept them aside eleven of the past twelve years, carried Sarazen in a one-man parade to the title.

Led From Start To Finish.

Sarazen led from start to finish. He lowered by 2 strokes the tournament record of 285 set by the great Jones in 1927 at St. Andrews. He surpassed the best mark ever made in an American open, 286 by Chick Evans.

Only Macdonald Smith, perennial challenger, was able to keep the chunky New Yorker in sight and the best he could finish was 5 strokes back with 71-76-71-70—288, good enough to win any other British open in history save Bobby Jones' 285, but hopeless today.

Arthur Havers, whose victory in the open in 1923 was Britain's last, made the final stand of the homebreds this morning with a 68, breaking the course record, but he found the chase after Sarazen too exhausting. His final round this afternoon was a weak 76, giving him third place, a stroke behind Smith, with 74—71—68—76—289.

A discouraged figure, buried down in the tenth rung, was Tommy Armour, the "black Scot" from Detroit, and defending champion. His game burst wide open on the final eighteen, leaving him with an 83 and a 72-hole aggregate of 78—76—74—83—302.

Sarazen, of Italian parentage, raided these Kentish shores as did the noble old Roman Agricola of old, but he grinned all the way through the 72 holes of nerve-breaking stroke play over the longest course in Britain. He is as popular a winner as any of the champions who have carried the championship trophy to the United States on its many journeys since the World War.

"We're sportsmen enough to know that the best man won and we congratulate him on his remarkable effort," said Sir H. M. Mallaby Deeley, presenting Gene the cup.

Promises to Return Next Year.

The bronzed little Lakeville (Long Island) professional replied:

"I only hope that I'll be as worthy a champion as these"—and he ran his finger down the long list of engraved names that include numerous inscriptions of Harry Vardon, Jim Braid, J. H. Taylor, Walter Hagen and Bob Jones.

"I'll be back next year," he added, "to do the best I can."

The Prince of Wales saw Gene play today, but the heir to Britain's throne and all the other nabobs were just fans among the rushing galleries that numbered about 5,000.

W. L. Hope, with 299, was the lowest of the amateurs, and Mac Smith's 71—70 for the last two rounds was the best scoring of the day.

This Morning with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE golf calendar whizzed backward ten years yesterday when Gene Sarazen stroked his way to the British open championship, recalling the first startling triumph of the stocky Italian boy over the fairways of Skokie at Chicago in the American open of 1922.

Until yesterday, Sarazen had been unable to repeat his triumph in either a British or American national tournament, but ever since that day at Skokie when he topped Bobby Jones by a stroke, the first of professional golf stars who was born beyond the pale of Anglo-Saxon parentage has been a powerful figure in international golf.

The Scots, the Britons and the Americans had dominated the royal and ancient game until Sarazen crashed through in 1922. The Hutchisons, Rays, Vardons, Hagens, Joneses, Ouimets, Macfarlanes and Evanses had passed the important titles around in their small circle until the former caddy from Westchester interrupted the rotation.

Following Sarazen to challenge the supremacy of the Anglo Saxons came the Turnesa brothers, also of Italian parentage; the Espinosas, of Spanish extraction, and Bill Burke, nee Burkowski, whose Polish blood provided him with a remarkable golf temperament. But it was Sarazen who led the Latins and the Slavs into the elite of golf.

Another throw-back to the rough and ready era of Ty Cobb's heyday in baseball occurred yesterday when members of the Dodgers and Cubs engaged in an old-fashioned fist fight on the playing field at Brooklyn.

With Umpire Moriarty battling the players in wholesale lots, and the new outburst at Brooklyn, there is still hope for the old game which the magnates hoped to tame by forbidding even as much as a word between players and spectators.

With Clark Griffith admitting that he is still in search of another pitcher, and the deadline on trades expiring next Wednesday, it would not be surprising to see our old friend Bump Hadley figuring in a deal that would land him back with the Nats.

The Browns and the White Sox appear the only clubs willing to deal with the Washington team, and both could afford to divest themselves of a pitcher. The Nats would not be averse to welcoming Hadley back, this department is informed.

Phil Ball, owner of the Browns, has been a prolific trader where the Washington Club is concerned. In recent years he has sent the Nats Crowder, Manush, Zachary, Gaston and Bush.

SPANISH PLAY NOSES OUT PITTSBURGHER AT WASHINGTON

Stretch Duel Is Won by Favorite

Commuter Scores at Belmont; 5th Race Marked by Foul.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 10 (A.P.).—Spanish Play conquered Pittsburgher in the feature race here at Homewood today after a spectacular stretch drive between two game thoroughbreds.

Spanish Play, piloted by Jockey C. Landlot, nosed out his rival in the mile event and covered the distance in 1:37 1-5. Burning Up finished third.

Commuter Repeats At Belmont.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 10 (A.P.).—A good-sized crowd was on hand here today as the Queens County Jockey Club inaugurated its twenty-second day summer meeting with an interesting card, headed by the Rockaway Claiming Stakes. Commuter, carrying the white and claret silks of Ella de T. Simpson, registered his second victory in a row, showed marked superiority over some fine sprinters to collect the winner's share of $3,300.

The son of Transmute won by three lengths, covering the 6½ furlongs in the fast time of 1:18. Blind Bowboy, recently acquired from E. R. Bradley by G. H. ("Pete") Bostwick, was ridden into the place position by his new owner, the amateur pilot gaining the place by a nose from Frank Brown's Condescend. Caplan and Uncanny rounded out the field as named.

Kerry Patch Loses On Foul.

The first disqualification of the meeting occurred in the fifth race, when the stewards saw fit to disqualify Kerry Patch, the favorite. There was a lot of crowding rounding the elbow, and Kerry Patch was blamed for the trouble. Jockey Robertson, who had the mount, was suspended for five days. The official placing was Sun Captor, first; Mahomet, second, and Fingal, third. The 5 furlongs were run in 0:59 3-5.

(Watch Sunday's Post for New Secret Code)

—By Ken Kling

Popcorn popped down in front yesterday at $7.30. The other horse ran second, but Asbestos played it to win and third so the bank roll went up to $48.93. They scratched his code horse and today's code goes at Long Branch. This horse has not won a race in a year. Maybe the sap Asbestos spoke to the old nag last night. The code is 19-7-4-8-19-7-18-7-6-5-8.

ELIZABETH FOX began slowly, but came fast after half the distance and, taking command in the stretch, drew into a long lead in the last furlong. PEACE LADY improved her position gradually and was going well at the end. LORELLE stuck close to the pace at all times. NORMAHAL made up ground on the outside. PRINCELLA tired in the stretch. HARUM SCARUM closed a gap. BLACK JEWEL met with early interference and was never dangerous. WEE DROP quit in the last furlong. MISS PERFECTION bore out while approaching the far turn and tired thereafter.

TONY JOE, always close up, sprinted into a long lead in the last quarter and won as his rider pleased. FORT DEARBORN, in close quarters during the back stretch run, was blocked repeatedly, was shut off again in the stretch and forced to come to the outside, but finished gamely and may have been best. ENGLEWOOD closed a big rush to finish fast. SANDWRACK weakened near the end. BIG BUSINESS was shut off early and although making up ground, had little chance. JUDGE LUEDERS was in early trouble. STOP GAP tired badly when real racing began. BAD MINTON and NIATO had early speed. ROYAL MANAGER pulled up lame.

Baltimore, Md., June 10.—Baltimore County school athletes today won the eighteenth annual Maryland State Olympiad at the Stadium by scoring 62 points to 51 for Baltimore City representatives. Lanman reached the final round by defeating Miller B. Stevinson, 5 and 4, while Caldwell defeated Leroy D. Sasscer, who at one time was 4 down, on the eighteenth hole, when Sasscer pulled his drive and took three strokes to reach the green. The day was replete with interesting matches, not the least being when H. King Cornwell was defeated, 5 and 4, by his son, Page, the latter being able to reach 400-yard greens in two strokes, outdistancing his father. Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, playing in the consolation of the first sixteen, lost the eighteenth hole to M. Parker Nolan, Congressional, which squared the match, and then on the nineteenth was beaten by Parker's birdie 3.

In the qualification round, there was a triple tie between Thomas W. Sasscer, Baltimore Country Club; L. D. Sasscer, his brother, Indian Spring, and Byrn Curtiss, Beaver Dam. In the play-off yesterday afternoon Sasscer won with 75, against Curtiss' 77, the latter met his fate on the fifth hole when he played his third into a trap, failed to get out in 4 and finally holed out in 7. The cards:

Three Californians Win at Wimbledon

Mrs. Moody, Helen Jacobs, Anna Harper Fail to Lose Tennis Set.

Wimbledon, England, June 10 (A.P.).—Three Californians, Helen Wills Moody, Helen Jacobs and Anna Harper, swept the Wimbledon courts for three straight victories today without the loss of a set to give the United States a running start in the annual Wightman Cup tennis series with Great Britain.

Mrs. Moody, American and French singles champion, was decidedly erratic as she downed Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, 6—2, 6—4. Miss Jacobs played some of her finest tennis in trouncing Dorothy Round, 6—4, 6—3, and then teamed with Mrs. Harper to win the doubles match of the day from Miss Round and Mrs. L. R. C. Michell, 6—4, 6—1.

Barring accidents, the triple conquest should assure the United States retention of the cup won back from the British at Forest Hills last summer. In nine series since 1923 the United States has won five times, Great Britain four.

Mrs. Moody played with far greater effort than usual She had to come from behind and take six straight games to win the second and deciding set from Mrs. Whittingstall. Even during the rally several of her winning games went to deuce.

Three singles and a doubles match complete the series tomorrow. One victory will clinch the series for the United States.

Giants Win on Errors Behind Lucas, of Reds

New York, June 10 (A.P.).—Poor support robbed Red Lucas of a victory today and the Giants scored four unearned runs in the sixth and seventh innings to make it four straight against Cincinnati, 4 to 3.

It was Lucas' twelfth complete game, his fifth defeat and the ninth straight loss for the Reds. His own error in the sixth, followed by four hits, enabled the Giants to tie the score and Grantham's misplay and Ott's fly brought in the winning run.

Macks Win in 10th As Coleman Is Hurt

Right Fielder Is Out for 3 Months After Ankle Break at Cleveland.

Cleveland, June 10 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Athletics bounded back into the first division of the American League today as they scored four runs in the tenth inning to defeat Cleveland, 10 to 7, but lost the services for three months of Ed Coleman, right fielder, who broke an ankle bone sliding into the plate in the second inning.

Walberg was taken out in the tenth, although he received credit for the victory, Lefty Grove, Philadelphia ace, pitching two-thirds of an inning to hold the Indians hitless.

Pilots Name Brewer To Face Hilldales

Chet Brewer, strike-out and speed-ball sensation of the East-West Colored Baseball League, will toe the slab tomorrow when the revamped Washington Pilots oppose Philadelphia Hilldales at Griffith Stadium.

Touted as the George Earnshaw of colored baseball, Brewer yesterday was named to represent the rejuvenated Pilots in their home-coming against the vaunted Quakers.

Brewer turned in a one-hit shutout, whiffing an even dozen batsmen, earlier in the season. A year ago he checked in with 30 victories as against only 4 defeats.

Columbia Heights Shifts Style to Win in League

LEADING the field with a record of four victories and no defeats, and with the half-way post in view, Columbia Heights is sitting on top of the world, and Section B, of the unlimited division of The Post's Capital City League, where it hopes to remain until the schedule is completed.

The team is virtually assured of no worse than a tie for the top rung of the ladder the first time around the circuit. Tomorrow it meets the Federal Unionists, a team that has shown nothing to strike fear in the hearts of Manager Charley Edwards and his gang. The Sunday following it has an off day, and in the last game of the first half it meets one of the two teams it must hurdle to attain its goal, Federal Storage. Rock Creek Servicenter is the other obstacle in the path to the championship, but Columbia Heights already holds one decision over the senior champions of 1931.

Commenting on the success of the team, Edwards explained that it had merely reversed its system of winning and losing games. "Last year," he said, "we won practically every game we played outside of the league, and in the championship series, where every game counted, we enjoyed only mediocre success. The order has simply been reversed this season. We are hitting on all nine cylinders in the league, but can't win an outside game at any cost. But we're not complaining! In fact, every time the subject

LENGTHY FIGHT TO STOP ACTION ENDS IN FAILURE

Activities Termed Inimical to Best Interest of Local No. 2.

Efforts of a small but resourceful group to prevent the adoption of a resolution repudiating and condemning the activities of the insurgent joint conference on affiliation with the American Federation of Labor failed last night at the meeting of Board of Representatives of Federal Employes No. 2.

The resolution as adopted termed the activities of the conference, in that they tend to create the impression that it has the indorsement of Local No. 2, to be inimical to the best interest of the union.

The reaffiliation move was brought up after the National Federation of Federal Employes had by a referendum left the American Federation of Labor.

Vote Delayed.

Action was brought in the equity division of the District Supreme Court to have the officers of the national federation enjoined to rescind the withdrawal from the labor federation. A temporary injunction was refused by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, who asked that counsel furnish additional briefs.

Last night's resolution was adopted after nearly two hours of delay when opponents led by James G. Yaden, of the Civil Service Commission, and C. W. Browning, of the Navy Department, had exhausted all parliamentary means of delaying a vote.

After two substitute resolutions asking for indorsement of the conference on affiliation had been voted down, Mr. Browning submitted a petition signed by 1,000 members of the union which asked that the question of affiliation be referred to the membership of the local.

He stated that according to the constitution this petition could not be acted upon until the next meeting of the board and consequently it would necessarily postpone the vote on the resolution of condemnation until then.

Adopted by Large Margin.

President Joseph W. Stansfield, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, ruled that the petition was admissable but that its admission did not affect the previous resolution.

Finally a vote was taken on the resolution. It was adopted by a large majority.

The joint conference on affiliation has been very active in the organization of the national emergency committee on legislation affecting Federal employes. This group has enlisted the resources of organizations representing 25,000,000 persons in a concerted effort to beat congressional pay cut plans.

At times during last night's meeting debate was caustic. Mr. Yaden at one time stated that the administration of the local was a "ruthless machine to which the by-laws and constitution seem to mean nothing." There were several verbal clashes and several times President Stansfield was forced to relinquish the chair while appeals from his rulings on points of order were sustained by vote.

Man Gets Six Years For Passing Checks

With the assertion that he didn't "like to see this type of man in business here," Justice F. Dickinson Letts, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday sentenced Max Miller to three two-year terms in jail, following a finding of guilty to three charges of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Miller's attorney had made a plea for clemency on the ground that Miller was a business man and that he needed the money he fraudulently obtained to support his wife and four children. Miller had four checks, for $235, $325, $150 and $214, cashed by local people. None of the checks was good.

City Auto Tax Rate Tops Every Other

Cars Here Found to Bear Levy of 8.7 Per Cent of Their Value.

The highest rate of taxation on any form of property in the United States was established in the District of Columbia when motor vehicle property here paid 8.7 per cent of its value in taxes during 1931, according to a statement issued last night by the District of Columbia Division of the American Automobile Association.

The statement is based on figures compiled by the A. A. A. national headquarters and shows that the value of all motor vehicles in the District was $34,316,853, and the total tax bill was $3,000,432.

"The value of all motor vehicles in the country," the statement said, "was $5,105,257,524. Taxes imposed on this motor vehicle property amounted to $1,025,779,876. This means that the rate of taxation for the country was 20.1 per cent. It means that during the average life of a motor vehicle—seven years—it is taxed 140.7 per cent of its value."

DIVE IN LOW WATER MAY PROVE FATAL

Mishaps Make Three Ambulances Necessary to Convey Victims.

A dive of about 20 feet into 2 feet of water from a pier at Chesapeake Beach late yesterday afternoon sent William Rohrer, 43 years old, of 1515 Thirty-first street northwest, to Emergency Hospital with a possible neck fracture. His condition is regarded as serious.

It required three ambulances to get Mr. Rohrer to the hospital. Two of them broke down on the way to Washington. After Mr. Rohrer was taken from the water, paralyzed, the Marlboro unit of the Prince Georges Fire Rescue Squad was called. It broke down just above Marlboro on the way back.

The injured man was transferred to the Mount Rainier Fire Rescue Squad ambulance, which brought him as far as the State, War and Navy Building, where it broke down. The Emergency ambulance got him into the hospital.

Mr. Rohrer went to the beach in company with Byron Billingsley, of Falls Church, Va., and Berkley Jefferies, of Glen Carlin, Va. Mr. Billingsley said they were on their way to Baltimore by way of Annapolis and decided to stop at the beach for a swim.

Mr. Rohrer, he said, went out on the long pier at the beach. He believed the water there was deep enough for diving and plunged about 20 feet. He struck on the back of his head.

Raichle Refused More Trial Delay

Justice Letts Says Lawyer Must Be Ready With Defense June 20.

Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court yesterday refused to further delay the bringing to trial of Frank G. Raichle, former defense attorney for G. Bryan Pitts, one time head of the F. H. Smith Co.

Raichle sought a last minute delay because he said that he had not been able to secure an attorney he wished to have in the case. When Justice Letts learned that the Government was opposed to a continuance, he decided that Raichle must stand trial here June 20, as was scheduled two weeks ago.

Yesterday in court Raichle was accompanied by former United States Attorney John E. Laskey and William J. Hughes, Jr. Attorney Laskey asked Justice Letts for the continuance. Raichle is under indictment on charges of obstruction of justice and subornation of perjury.

Maj. Davison, who was acting Engineer Commissioner during the illness of Maj. John C. Gotwals, will end his service here on June 30.

Man Who Refused Probation Appeals

Frank Amato Under Bond on Charge of Selling Indecent Literature.

The contempt of court order passed Thursday by Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court, because Frank Amato would not raise his hand to take the oath given persons who are to be placed on probation, was rescinded yesterday by Judge Hitt. Amato was fined $5 and released on a $100 bond pending a appeal.

Amato, through his attorney, S. McComas Hawken, did not want probation because that would not enable him to appeal his conviction on a charge of offering for sale an indecent publication. He, therefore, refused to take the oath, and Judge Hitt found him in contempt and ordered him committed.

Attorney Hawken secured Amato's release on a $100 bond. He sued out a writ of habeas corpus and Justice Jesse C. Adkins signed it. The case will not go to the District Court of Appeals for a rehearing.

'CLOSED' GAMBLING HOUSE OPERATING

"Jimmy's Place" Is Found Going Full Blast, Despite Investigation.

The gambling house on the Bladensburg road just over the District line, popularly known as "Jimmy's Place," was running full blast last night in spite of the fact that Prince Georges County police officers declared after an "investigation" that the place was not open. Prince Georges County officers were ordered only last Tuesday by the county commissioners to see that "Jimmy's Place" was kept closed.

Following two specific complaints to county authorities from citizens that the place was running again, County Police Chief J. J. Crowley last night ordered Sergt. H. G. Machen and Constable Howard Slater to investigate. These officers, according to Chief Crowley, reported to him that only three caretakers were found in the casino.

Chief Crowley said last night that he was puzzled by the order of the county commissioners. He did not know, he said, if it meant that "the owner of the place couldn't entertain a few friends."

The order of the county commissioners to Chief Crowley resulted from a grand jury investigation as a result of which the commissioners were asked to inform the jury why "Jimmy's place" had been permitted to run so many years unmolested. The answer of the commissioners, if one was made, is not known.

Potomac Electric Man Wins $34,000 Suits

A jury in District Supreme Court yesterday brought in a verdict for the defendant in the suits instituted by Grant H. Billings, Bessie C. Billings and Grace M. Cissel against J. P. Schaefer, an engineer in the employ of the Potomac Electric Power Co., claiming a total of $34,000 as a result of an automobile collision between Jarvis B. Cissel and Mr. Schaefer two years ago.

The cases were on trial for two days. The jury found the accident to be unavoidable. Attorneys Charles S. Baker and Benjamin L. Tepper represented Mr. Schaefer.

EIGHT ZONE CHANGE PETITIONS GRANTED

Georgetown University Able to Erect 5-Story Building; Eight Others Denied.

The District zoning commission yesterday approved eight petitions for changes in zoning classifications, denied eight others and consented to the withdrawal of two more. Among the requests granted were those of the Potomac Electric Power Co. and Georgetown University.

The decisions enable the power company to proceed with its plan to construct a power plant in an area bounded by V, Second, T and Water streets southwest in connection with the Buzzards Point development. Georgetown University will likewise be able to build a five-story lecture hall and laboratories structure on a tract on the west side of Thirty-seventh street, north of O street.

Zoning Code Amendments.

Two amendments to the zoning code were also adopted. One slightly increases the minimum width of side yards in instances where building projections extend beyond the building line, whereas the other prohibits the storage of abandoned automobiles and debris on a first commercial zone lot.

An application to change 1001 to 1015 Third street and 302 K street northeast from residential to second commercial, 90-foot D area, was granted with modifications. Lots 809 and 811 to 816, inclusive, were classified as second commercial, while lots 810, 847 and 848 were designated as first commercial.

Other Petitions Approved.

North side of Tuckerman street, between Georgia avenue and Ninth street, for a distance of 58.66 feet west of the present first commercial line, from residential 40-foot A restricted to first commercial 60-foot C area.

Frontage on the west side of Fourth street, between Jefferson and Kennedy streets, from first commercial 40-foot C to residential 40-foot B area.

SENATE OPENS FIGHT ON $43,789,728 BILL AS DISTRICT BUDGET

BATTLE IS EXPECTED ON GOVERNMENT SHARE

Committee Offers Apology for Slashing Amount in Economy Drive.

Consideration of the $43,789,728 District supply bill, carrying an increase of $3,875,918 over House figures, got barely under way late yesterday in the Senate.

The measure will be taken up the first thing this morning when the Senate convenes at 11 o'clock. Passage early today was confidently predicted by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, chairman of the District appropriations subcommittee, who must leave tonight for the Republican national convention.

Reading Is Begun.

Reading of the bill was scarcely begun at yesterday's session. The first item in the bill, the only one read by the clerk, allots $8,550,000 as the Federal Government's share of District expenses.

Around this item a major battle is expected to center in conference with the House. The latter chamber appropriated only $6,500,000, holding the District should make up the rest in additional taxes.

Committee Is Apologetic.

The Senate committee, always generous in matters of District appropriations, was apologetic for not allowing a larger sum.

"The amount as recommended for the coming fiscal year does not reflect an equitable settlement of the question of fiscal relations between the United States and the District of Columbia in normal times, but is in accord with the general practice of reducing Federal expenditures by 10 per cent," their report stated.

Memorial Service Held for Alice Deal

Portrait of Late Principal Is Presented to School at Ceremony.

A memorial service for the late Alice Deal, principal of Columbia Junior High School, was held by the Alice Deal Memorial Association last night at Alice Deal Junior High School.

Presentation of a portrait of Miss Deal was made to the school by Dr. Lilian Welsh, president emeritus of Goucher College.

Presentation of a memorial tablet was made by Mrs. Edward L. Glenn, a former president of the school's Parent-Teacher Association. The tablet was a gift from the Alice Deal Memorial Association.

Girl Absolved of Blame In Death by Auto Crash

Catherine Marie Cuskey, 17-year-old Lancaster, Pa., high school student, who was visiting here with friends May 5 last, was absolved yesterday by a coroner's jury of all blame in connection with the death of Mrs. Lucy W. Cullen, following an automobile collision at Twenty-second and Otis streets northeast.

Miss Cuskey was the driver of one of the cars, while the other was driven by Miss Elizabeth Cullen, a daughter of the dead woman. Miss Cuskey was represented by Attorney Charles S. Baker.

Police Seize Stolen Car Laden With Rum

A large quantity of liquor and a stolen car were found early yesterday by Private A. T. Davis, of the Third Precinct, in the rear of 2201 Champlain street northwest. Searching the car, Davis found 78 gallons of corn whisky and 78½ half-gallons of "white" whisky.

The car bore dead tags, and investigation showed it had been stolen May 31 from Robert A. Lavender, of 2416 Woodley place northwest. Whoever stole it had installed a smoke screen, which also was confiscated by police.

P. U. C. CONSIDERING GAS RATE PETITION

Citizens Federation Asks Immediate Hearing on Reduction.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday took under advisement, without giving an indication of a favorable attitude, the petition of the Federation of Citizens Associations requesting an immediate public hearing to effect a reduction in the rates of the Washington and the Georgetown Gas Light Cos.

The petition, filed by William McK. Clayton, chairman of the public utilities committee of the federation, declared that the Washington company the first four months of this year made a return of 13.47 per cent on an undepreciated base of $21,000,000 and that this constituted a profit of $3,333.33 a day in excess of the 7 per cent considered a fair rate return for public utilities.

Other figures contained in a report of the public utilities committee to the federation last Saturday night, when the citizens body unanimously approved the resolution calling for a hearing, were quoted in the petition.

In a letter accompanying the petition Mr. Clayton urged the commission to speed the hearing, stating that "had the rate of return of the company for the year 1931 been at the rate of 7 per cent, there would have been in the pockets of the gas consumers in the District of Columbia at the close of the year $800,000."

Should the 13.47 per cent rate prevail throughout the year, he continued, Washington gas consumers "will pay the tidy sum of $1,200,000 during the year 1932 in excess of a 7 per cent rate of return."

Trio Gets 5 Years As Extortionists

Three Men Are Excoriated by Justice Letts as He Gives Sentences.

Two men who pleaded guilty to blackmail, and a third who stood trial and was found guilty of that same charge, yesterday were excoriated by Justice F. D. Letts in the District Supreme Court, as he sentenced each of them to serve five years in jail.

The three are Harry B. Lewis and John William Trevathan, who entered pleas of guilty, and Leonard Ferguson, who was found guilty by a jury. The three were accused of taking almost $2,500 from James M. Slusher, a grocery clerk, through threats of personal violence and assault. Slusher had worked in a chain grocery here and had saved most of his money in building and loan stock.

He had saved his wages for five years and the trio last fall found out that he had money. They took sums of money from him many times, and forced him to make tripe to the loan company to withdraw money to give them.

Two Merchants Accused Of Larceny of Deposits

At the instance of Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh, two Seventh street clothing merchants were arrested yesterday, on warrants charging them with larceny. The two were A. Sloan and James R. Martin. Both pleaded not guilty.

According to Mr. Keogh, the two accepted deposits on suits of clothing, telling the customers to return the next day. When the return trip was made, the customers were told their credit rating had been found unsatisfactory, and they were given neither the suit nor a refund, it was alleged.

STROLLING PLAYERS GIVE COMEDY HERE

Mid-Victorian Production Entertains Society at Sidwell's School.

Strolling players recruited from the ranks of well-known Broadway actors, presented a mid-Victorian romantic comedy, which they staged on a picturesque canvass-walled platform in the gardens of Sidwell's Friends Country School, 3901 Wisconsin avenue, last night.

"The Jitney Players," who tour the country in caravans, carrying their knockdown stage with them, were given their odd name from their mode of conveyance. Ten years ago when the troupe started their trek in gypsy fashion, light autos were used for their transportation, and the name of "jitney" has remained.

The play was presented as it was produced in the old English theater in the days of Queen Victoria. "Caste," a three-act play by Tom Robertson, demonstrated that "good hearts are nobler than coronets" to a capacity audience of Washington society. Alice Keating Cheney, who directs the players as well as plays a role, first won fame on the Broadway stage as Ophelia to John Barrymore's "Hamlet." Other members of the cast were John O'Connor, Harrison Dowd, Edmund Forde, Philippa Bevans, Helen Morrow and Douglas Rowland.

Tonight the group will present, "The Murder in the Red Barn." The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is sponsoring the company's local engagement.

Nebraska Groups Plan Fete at American U.

President R. A. Van Orsdel of the latter organization is in charge of arrangements for the occasion. Nebraskans in Washington not affiliated with either organization are invited to attend the occasion, which will begin at 3 o'clock.

Dorothy M. Fisk Wins Flag Contest

Central High Student's Design Is Selected as Best Submitted.

Miss Dorothy M. Fisk, 16, a student at Central High School, has been adjudged winner of first prize in the flag design contest for the All-States Officers Society, conducted under the auspices of the Community Center Department.

Ninety-nine art students participated in the contest which closed June 2. The judges are Clifford K. Berryman, Theo. J. Morgan, Louis Janof, Elizabeth K. Peeples, director of the Community Center Department, and Eva Whitford Lovette, of the All-States Officers Society. Another student of Central, Frances McWilliams, 18, was awarded the second prize, and Frank X. Kilroy, 20, of Eastern High, was third. The winners will receive cash prizes of $25, $10 and $5, respectively.

The contest, which was under the actual direction of the teachers of the art departments of the senior high schools, was productive of so many excellent designs that the judges designated others for honorable mention. They are Richard M. Blaisdell, Evelyn R. Coakley, and Lee Wade, of McKinley High; James A. Stone and Albert Carter, of Dunbar; Frances L. Clana and Cleo M. Lewis, of Eastern; Mabel Howard, Jane Bullough, Peggy Dorsett, and Margaret Stong, of Central.

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES TIGHT RULES FOR CITY BONDSMEN

GAMING FREQUENTERS HIT IN ANOTHER BILL

Group Fails to Report on Remedies for Defects in Jury System.

Rigid regulation of the operations of District bondsmen was voted yesterday by the Senate District committee in one of three bills favorably reported to the Senate.

The bill imposed maximum penalties ranging from $100 to 60 days, or both for "fee splitting" between bondsmen, policemen or attorneys-at-law in the District. The penalty was tightened at yesterday's hearing, by making combined jail sentence and fine discretionary.

The measure, advocated before the committee by a former Police Court judge, Robert Hardison, and Thomas Lodge, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, makes it unlawful for police to show preference for any particular bondsmen, even at the urgent behest of prisoners.

Giving Prisoners Choice.

It requires each precinct to supply a complete list of bondsmen, allowing the prisoner to make his own selection without the aid of officers who might influence his choice.

The drastic Rover gambling bill, which would make even frequenters of gambling establishments subject to penalty, was referred to Senators King (Democrat), Utah, and Carey (Republican), Wyoming. They may modify certain stringent provisions and report it favorably.

Bills ordered favorably reported yesterday included one measure providing additional steam boiler inspectors for the District and another regulating the administration of the estates of incompetent veterans.

Jury System Reform.

The committee failed to report a bill for remedying defects in the local jury system, which forced retrial of the Harker beating case at great expense to the Government. Senators objected to the expense involved in appointment of an additional District official to effect the reform.

Testifying in behalf of the measure were Neil Burkinshaw, special assistant to the Attorney General; Justice Jesse Adkins, of the District Supreme Court; John E. Laskey, former district attorney; Acting Corporation Counsel Vernon West, William H. Collins, assistant district attorney, and Judge Hardison.

Welsh Picnic This Afternoon.

Games, music and a Welsh singing contest will feature the annual picnic of the Welsh Society of Washington at the Sixteenth street reservoir grounds this afternoon.

Man Felled by Police Club Escapes But Rum Is Taken

A hurled baton almost got his man for Private R. W. Creel, of the Second Precinct, yesterday, but the man scrambled to his feet after the blow and got away. Creel, however, confiscated an automobile and 36 half gallons of liquor.

He said he was standing in the rear of 1330 Chester court northwest when a sedan with two colored men drove up. When they caught sight of him they jumped from the car and ran. He hurled his baton at one of them, and the club caught the man in the back of the neck, knocking him flat.

The man regained his feet and disappeared up the maze of alleys in the court. After the liquor car had been towed to the station, Creel searched 1330 Chester court and found three additional gallons of liquor.

Sleeper Rescued by Sons As Flames Menace Row

Fire that for a time threatened a row of brick houses in the 600 block of Morton street northeast last night destroyed the kitchen of one building and razed several wooden shacks in the rear of five others.

So intense was the blaze when first discovered that three alarms were sounded by neighbors. Despite hindrance by hundreds of spectators who gathered at the scene, firemen quickly brought the flames under control.

The greatest damage was done in the home of Harry Rithman, 638 Morton street. Mr. Rithman was asleep when the fire broke out and might have been overcome by the dense smoke had it not been for the prompt action of his two sons, Harry, jr., 14, and Joseph, 18.

Several small boys were seen in an alley in the rear of the houses shortly before the fire was discovered. It was believed they were playing with matches.
